Cooper Set to Complete Full 22 Orbits; to Land in Pacific

By BEM PRICE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Gordon Cooper, a superbly performing space pilot, sped on toward completion of his marathon 22-orbit flight today, heading for an afternoon splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

With astronaut and spacecraft in excellent working order, Mercury Control Center flashed the good word to Cooper during his 16th orbit that he had the green light to go all the way.

If there is no emergency hitch, the reverse rockets on Cooper's Faith 7 capsule are to be fired east of Shanghai, China, about 6:03 p.m. Eastern Standard Time to begin a gradual descent to a parachute landing in the Pacific some 80 miles southeast of Midway Island.

Touchdown time was scheduled about 6:23 p.m.—12:23 p.m. Midway Time.

A large Pacific recovery force, headed by the carrier Kearsarge, waited in the area. The Kearsarge hoped to improve on its record of last Oct. 3, when it had astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. on board just 42 minutes after he landed some 9,000 yards from the craft.

Cooper was waved on for the full flight not long after he awakened from a good night's sleep.

Then he went into action as a camera bug.

Over the Indian Ocean he pulled out a 35mm robot still camera with a fast lens to photograph the zodiacal light, a weird glow visible on the horizon in the east before sunrise and after sunset. Scientists believe the color pictures will prove a theory that the phenomena is caused by the sun's rays reflecting off dust clouds.

"Hello down dere! Did I take pictures, pictures, pictures!" Cooper exclaimed to communicator Virgil Grissom on the ground at Guaymas, Mexico. Then he reported he was turning the capsule

More Race Marches Are Staged

By United Press International

Negroes staged another big demonstration in North Carolina Wednesday night in a protest against segregation at restaurants and theaters.

At Birmingham, Ala., a group of businessmen urged citizens of the racially tense city to accept an agreement with Negro leaders to desegregate downtown stores. Mayor Art Hanes called for repudiation of the agreement.

Biracial committees at Nashville, Tenn., and Raleigh, N. C., continued working toward a solution of racial problems in those capital cities.

An estimated [illegible] Negro college students marched at Greensboro, N. C., in attempts to integrate restaurants and theaters in that textile city which gave birth to the sit-in movement against lunch counter segregation. There was no violence.

Police arrested 200 demonstrators on trespass charges. Some of the Negroes were carried bodily to paddy wagons from the establishments after they refused requests to leave. Two white girls and two white youths were arrested with the Negroes at one cafeteria when they blocked a serving line.

More than 800 Negroes had marched through Raleigh Tuesday night to back up desegregation demands. Police arrested 34 of the demonstrators. The previous day, a similar march at Nashville touched off fighting with white youths. Officials of both cities began negotiations with Negro leaders to ease the situation.

Another Negro Seeks Study At Ole Miss

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — University of Mississippi officials said Wednesday a young Negro has applied for admission to the university law school.

Dean Robert Farley of the "Ole Miss" law school revealed in an interview with the editor of the campus newspaper that a Negro who visited the school Tuesday had submitted an application for admission. However, the dean told student editor John Corlew he had not completed processing it.

Farley declined to release the applicant's name but said the applicant sought enrollment for the fall term.

Goldwater Asks Stop to Raising Campaign Funds

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., says he has asked three California GOP groups to stop raising presidential campaign funds for him.

Goldwater said Wednesday he had written two organizations of volunteers, notifying them he isn't a candidate for the 1964 nomination and that he wants them to halt any fund collection for that purpose.

To avoid embarrassment of individuals involved, he didn't name the groups. He said he had reports a third organization was collecting funds, but didn't know its name so had written a GOP county chairman asking him to act.

The action by Goldwater was somewhat similar to that taken by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in calling off the efforts of former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight to organize a nomination drive for the New Yorker in California.

Goldwater insisted he was acting only in line with his repeated announcements that he is only running for re-election to the Senate next year.

"We are still sending back 'Goldwater for President' checks that come in," he said. "Of

Prison Guard Is Injured in Women's Fight

CANON CITY (UPI) — A Colorado State Penitentiary guard captain who was trying to break up "a little ruckus" in the woman's section of the prison Monday night was severely cut on the face during the melee, prison officials said Wednesday.

Infirmary spokesmen said Capt. Donald O'Neil was cut so severely it took about 20 stitches to close the facial wound, caused by a broken pop bottle.

A prison spokesman said O'Neil "went to the woman's prison to break up a 'little ruckus,'" which involved three women. Two of them, Mrs. Patricia Acosta, 24, and Mrs. Dorothy Lopez, 23, were taken from their quarters and isolated in Fremont County Jail.

The spokesman said charges against the Acosta woman probably would be filed, possibly for assault with a deadly weapon. He said the bottle apparently broke when it hit O'Neil's face.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (UPI) — Magistrate B. P. Loots ordered a 30-year-old man to prison for four months because he drove his bicycle while drunk.

Strike Threats Cost $4 Million, Railroad Says

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) —Six weeks of continuing strike threats by the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks cost the Southern Pacific lines $4 million in revenues, President D. J. Russell told the annual meeting Wednesday.

He said even though the strike was averted, shippers shifted that much traffic to competing lines as a precautionary measure.

Russell blamed the strike threat for the fact Southern Pacific had $1.1 million less rail revenue in the first quarter of 1963 than a year ago.

However, he said net earnings increased to $15.09 million or 56 cents a share compared with 47 cents a share in the first quarter of 1962.

Modernization of equipment and streamlining of operations produced the improved earnings, he said.

Golden Eagles Wreak Havoc, Ranchers Say

DENVER (AP) — Golden eagles are swooping down from the mountains of western Colorado, carrying off newborn lambs, and ranchers want permission to kill them in an effort to save flocks.

Sometimes a single ranch will lose four or five lambs a day during the spring lambing season, Gov. John Love said he has been advised.

He requested the secretary of the interior to issue an order relaxing a regulation protecting the eagles. The ranchers want permission to kill them from March 1 through June 30 of each year.

Love said he had ranchers' claims investigated by the Colorado Department of Agriculture before making the request.

The area affected, he said, is in Mesa, Garfield and Montrose counties.

The governor said the ranchers emphasized that they do not want to wipe out the golden eagles, only thin their ranks to more manageable size. He quoted the stockmen as saying the eagles do much good helping to control the rodent population.

Love said the situation is not as bad as it was a few years ago when ranchers took to airplanes and used shotguns to reduce the number of eagles.

Integrated U.S. Power System Being Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A powerful congressional voice backed up Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall Wednesday in his call for a nationwide integrated electric power system.

Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., chairman of the House Interior Committee, testified during a hearing on a Bonneville power bill.

"I am in favor of a complete intertie of all generating facilities in the United States, providing all equities of private, federal and public generating agencies are protected," he said.

The congressman made the statement while Udall and Charles F. Luce, administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration, shared the witness table.

The witnesses were called to testify on a bill that would give such preference and private electric users in the Pacific North[illegible] tric power generated at government plants in the Columbia River Basin.

Reps. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., and Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., vehemently oppose the bill. Saylor contends it would crack federal policy on the books since 1902 that municipal and public bodies have first call on federally generated electricity. Hosmer objects to possible restrictions he fears might result on Southern California's right to federally produced power.

Udall himself was not in complete disagreement with the Republicans. He said that if he "felt this would set a precedent I would not favor this legislation." But he added the Pacific Northwest was the only region where there could reasonably be expected a surplus on secondary federal hydroelectric energy will be produced. He said the firm power should stay in the region to serve all users, [illegible] and private

Cardinal Will Leave Hungary, Report Indicates

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—The Vatican, the United States and Hungary's Communist government reportedly have reached an agreement that will allow Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty to leave for Rome.

High Vatican sources said they expected the 71-year-old Roman Catholic primate of Hungary in Rome in a few days to assume a high Vatican post.

Informants in Budapest reported Wednesday night that long negotiations proved fruitful.

Freeing of the cardinal would remove one barrier to resumption of normal diplomatic relations between the United States and Hungary and would improve relations between the Vatican and the Hungarian government.

No information was available on details of the agreement, but it is believed to include other concessions to the Vatican.

The Hungarian Communists sentenced the prelate to life imprisonment in 1949 for alleged high treason. Liberated in the 1956 uprising, he took refuge in the U.S. Legation in Budapest when the Soviets crushed the revolt and he has been there ever since.

JFK Re-Election Drive Started, Allott Declares

DENVER (UPI)— Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who might be nominated for a high national elective office, said Wednesday President Kennedy already has started his 1964 re-election campaign.

Allott, on a visit to his home state, said the Kennedy Administration was playing politics with the economy—"taking a calculated gamble to create a prosperity, false or otherwise, that will carry through the next election year."

Allott spoke to the Colorado Public Expenditures Council here.

Gov. John Love of Colorado said last week he was seriously considering trying to get Colorado's delegation to go to the Republican National Convention pledged to Allott as a favorite son.

Allott later commented he would "be honored" to accept such a nomination at the convention. "It's strictly up to the Republican Party of Colorado," he said.

Allott also leveled charges at Kennedy for the handling of the Cuban crisis, management of news, sluggish economy, tax proposals, deficit spending, and decisions on Berlin and Laos.

Snooping Soviet Vessel Sighted Near U.S. Ship

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — A Soviet trawler of the type the Soviets use for electronic snooping was sighted today near a U.S. ship monitoring astronaut Gordon Cooper's space flight, an informed source said.

A U.S. destroyer sighted the trawler in international waters in the general vicinity of the American ship Coastal Sentry, which is monitoring Cooper's flight and may control his re-entry at the end of the 22-orbit flight.

The trawler's mission has not been determined, the source said.

Fremont County Drought Said To Be Worsening

Water, or the lack of it, has become the No. 1 problem and subject of discussion in Eastern Fremont County as drought conditions continue and grow worse.

Florence city officials, now in the process of calling for bids June 3 on a new water plant, are sweating out the continuing dry weather which has forced the establishment of irrigation regulations and threatens to bring about even stricter measures.

Friday night, Fremont Ditch Company stockholders including several Florence officials, were on hand to establish a regulated distribution of water in the Fremont ditch which has proved inadequate for irrigation in Florence.

A division of the ditch by sections was agreed upon on a trial basis in hopes of bringing more water to the majority of users.

Richard Telck, ditch superintendent, will have charge of the new distribution plan which may bring more water into Florence for local users.

At Penrose, Nick Goodall, manager of the Beaver Park Company, is pessimistic over the apple crop which he believes already damaged by dry weather and hot winds.

He is also seeking to locate vandals who broke the Beaver Park Company headgate controls on the company's retaining dam on Beaver Creek allowing 127 acre feet of precious water to drain down the creek.

Loss of water and damage to the equipment has been estimated at $2,000. Goodall made it known that this type of vandalism is a felony and is a penitentiary offense.

Meanwhile, the Beaver Park Company manager reported that the Brush Hollow Reservoir, which serves Penrose, now has 2,000 acre feet of water and is recording an intake of about 22 acre feet per day.

Extreme Danger of Forest Fires Seen in Colorado

No precipitation and continuous drying winds have caused Colorado's forest fire danger to reach the extreme stage, Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall cautioned today.

The slightest spark in the tinder-dry forests can touch off a major holocaust, Nordwall said, urging extreme caution by forest visitors.

No National Forest camp or picnic grounds have been closed to cooking fires. The Denver city-county mountain parks, however, have been closed to fires of any kind, including gasoline stoves.

Those visiting National Forest recreation areas are asked to build fires only in the fireplaces provided. To put out a cooking fire, or any small fire, the embers should be thoroly soaked with water, stirred with a stick or shovel, and then doused again with water before leaving. Covering a fire with dirt will not necessarily put out the fire —use water.

Pointing out that there have already been fires, 20 of them in the Pike National Forest, Nordwall asked the cooperation of the public. Most of these early fires have been due to accident or carelessness on the part of man.

The 1963 spring has been described as one of the worst early fire hazard seasons in history. Forest Service personnel are on standby and a Denver regional office fire dispatcher has been placed on duty to help cope with the situation.

Half the fires in the Pike National Forest have been caused by campers, with the remainder caused by hikers, smokers and others. All have been caused by man. More than 130 acres have been burned.

The Roosevelt National Forest reports five fires to date. One started from a broken power line insulator in Estes Park, another was started by a hiker, and lightning in Buckhorn Canyon touched off another.

A delayed action burn was started by a smoldering slab and sawdust pile held over from last fall. This blaze destroyed a lumber mill and some piled logs.

Another Roosevelt blaze stemmed from a man's carelessness near the Pinecliff area in Coal Creek Canyon. Some seven acres have been burned and conditions are very dry in the lower elevations.

The San Isabel National Forest reported a Comanche National Grassland fire near Camp-

Haiti President Says He Will Stay in Office

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Haiti's Dictator President Francois Duvalier insists he will remain in office despite reports abroad that he is planning to flee his rebellion-threatened country.

"Haiti will continue under my administration," Duvalier told American correspondents summoned to his palace Wednesday in an apparent effort to scotch reports he intended to flee.

By showing himself unscathed, Duvalier, 56, scored a victory over enemies who had sworn to kill him rather than let him begin a new presidential term.

Duvalier's constitutional term of office expired Wednesday, but he declared himself re-elected for six more years after a rigged ballot two years ago.

Duvalier's regime plans a splurge for his inauguration May 22. Haitians throughout the countryside are being herded into trucks and carted to Port au Prince.

The people also are being forced to "contribute" to help defray expenses of the inaugural celebration.

"Papa Doc," as he is known to the Negro Haitians, may survive that day, too, but foreign observers of Haiti's troubles give him no more than another year at the helm of his impoverished, fear-ridden little nation.

Clement Barbot, once Duvalier's right-hand man, has sworn to kill his former chief and is at large somewhere in Haiti with a band of underground fighters.

Haitian exiles abroad have been reported planning invasions of the country.

Alexander Film Vice President C. E. Parker Dies

Clifford E. Parker, 928 N. Sheridan Ave., died Wednesday at Penrose Hospital, at the age of 57. He was a vice president of the Alexander Film Company.

Parker had been with Alexander Film since 1934. He was made general sales manager of the company in 1953 and in 1958 became vice president of the Alexander Film Co. Theater Division.

CLIFFORD E. PARKER

Following the merger of Alexander Film with Motion Picture Advertisers Service Inc. of New Orleans, La., in March, Parker was made vice president of the new company and was the director of the company's activities in the western half of the United States.

Parker was a native of New Britain, Conn. He is survived by his widow, Martha Parker, Colorado Springs, and three sons, Clifford Parker Jr. of Grand Junction and Jerry and David Parker of Colorado Springs.

Funeral services will be held at the Swan Drawing Room at 9 a.m. Saturday with the Rev. Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg officiating. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Red Proposes Peaceful Competition

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Differences between communism and capitalism should be settled "Not by a nuclear war but by peaceful competition between systems," a Soviet official said Wednesday night.

Nestor Levchenko, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D. C., spoke to about 60 persons at a meeting at the University of Colorado. He is touring the state and speaking to collegiate and other groups.

Levchenko said he was making the trip because of "A need to eliminate mutual mistrust spawned by the cold war."

Body of Springs Youth Recovered From Boyd Lake

Funeral arrangements had not been completed this morning for Philip Michael Chadwell, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry D. Chadwell, 1301 N. El Paso St., who drowned Tuesday in Boyd Lake northeast of Loveland.

Loveland firemen recovered Chadwell's body Wednesday from 30 feet of water where he was pitched from a motor boat he was driving.

Chadwell was a senior in biological sciences at Colorado State University and the father of a one-year-old boy. His wife, Kathy, works in the registrar's office at CSU.

Chadwell was driving a motor boat towing another CSU student, Duane Johnson, 20, on water skis when Johnson lost his balance and fell into the water.

In an attempt to rescue his companion, Chadwell turned the motor boat sharply. The powerful craft bucked, tossing him into the water.

The driverless boat then headed directly for Johnson, inflicting painful lacerations on his arm and shoulder. Witnesses said the boat then cruised wildly on the lake for two hours before running aground at the east shore.

Johnson was rescued by Terry Russell, 18, of Westminster, a Navy sailor home on leave and visiting the lake. Johnson was taken to Loveland Memorial Hospital where he was in good condition Wednesday.

The body of another CSU student, Susan Henry, 21, Trenton, N.J., was located in 100 feet of water in Horsetooth Reservoir Wednesday by scuba divers. She was on a diving expedition with five other CSU students when she drowned last Saturday.

Searchers continued today for the bodies of Philip Oliver, 28, of Wheat Ridge, believed drowned in Gross Reservoir near Boulder, and Ralph DeFreese, about 60, of Burlington, feared lost in Bonny Reservoir in eastern Colorado.

Limon Couple Robbed of $400; Bandit Hunted

Lincoln County Sheriff Alfred Clarke and Colorado Highway Patrol officials have put an all-states bulletin out for a man who robbed a Limon couple of $400-$500 Wednesday afternoon.

Clarke said the man, about 35 years old and six feet tall, was driving a 1955 green Plymouth with a special Colorado License permit.

The man drove to the trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Chartere Wednesday afternoon, parked, and went inside the trailer where Mrs. Chartere was alone. He frightened Mrs. Chartere, who screamed for her husband. By the time Chartere arrived, the man had taken the money and fled in his car headed west thru Limon.

Clarke said Chartere estimated the man took between $400 and $500 cash.

Two Types of Orbits Are Orbited by Cooper

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—When is an orbit not an orbit? When its a revolution, of course. Except that even then it's called an orbit.

Confused? Well, relax—it isn't bothering astronaut Gordon Cooper and it boils down to semantics anyway.

An orbit for Cooper is one of two things—both of them different.

A Keplerian orbit is a complete circle from one point in space around and back to that same point in space again.

But experts at Mercury Control—for simplicity's sake—have used a different measure.

They drew an imaginary line, north to south, through Cape Canaveral, and measured an orbit as the amount of time it takes Cooper to make it once around and cross that line.

The earth rotates in the same direction that Cooper is flying—to the east—and he has to travel a little more than a full circle each time to cross the Cape Canaveral line. Experts at Mercury Control call this an earth-fixed orbit—or a revolution.

The Keplerian orbit takes about 88½ minutes. The earth orbit take five minutes longer, about 93.5 minutes—the full circle plus the amount of time it takes to catch up with the Cape Canaveral line.

Cooper's flight—advertised by NASA as a 22-orbit mission—was figured on the basis of almost 22 of the earth-fixed orbits or revolutions. In the traditional sense, he is traveling more than 23 of the circular or Keplerian orbits before he returns to earth.

Lt. Col. John A. Powers, Mercury public affairs officer, said today the Keplerian orbit is a "point to point in space which has no relation to the earth beneath it."

"NASA begins each orbit count on Faith 7 at the same point in space directly overhead the geographical spot in which the spacecraft was injected into orbit."

Goldwater Asks Stop to Raising Campaign Funds

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., says he has asked three California GOP groups to stop raising presidential campaign funds for him.

Goldwater said Wednesday he had written two organizations of volunteers, notifying them he isn't a candidate for the 1964 nomination and that he wants them to halt any fund collection for that purpose.

To avoid embarrassment of individuals involved, he didn't name the groups. He said he had reports a third organization was collecting funds, but didnt know its name so had written a GOP county chairman asking him to act.

The action by Goldwater was somewhat similar to that taken by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in calling off the efforts of former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight to organize a nomination drive for the New Yorker in California.

Goldwater insisted he was acting only in line with his repeated announcements that he is only running for re-election to the Senate next year.

"We are still sending back 'Goldwater for President' checks that come in," he said. "Of

Prison Guard Is Injured in Women's Fight

CANON CITY (UPI) — A Colorado State Penitentiary guard captain who was trying to break up "a little ruckus" in the woman's section of the prison Monday night was severely cut on the face during the melee, prison officials said Wednesday.

Infirmary spokesmen said Capt. Donald O'Neil was cut so severely it took about 20 stitches to close the facial wound, caused by a broken pop bottle.

A prison spokesman said O'Neil "went to the woman's prison to break up a little ruckus," which involved three women. Two of them, Mrs. Patricia Acosta, 24, and Mrs. Dorothy Lopez, 23, were taken from their quarters and isolated in Fremont County Jail.

The spokesman said charges against the Acosta woman probably would be filed, possibly for assault with a deadly weapon. He said the bottle apparently broke when it hit O'Neil's face.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (UPI) — Magistrate B. P. Loots ordered a 30-year-old man to prison for four months because he drove his bicycle while drunk.

Integrated U.S. Power System Being Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A powerful congressional voice backed up Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall Wednesday in his call for a nationwide integrated electric power system.

Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., chairman of the House Interior Committee, testified during a hearing on a Bonneville power bill.

"I am in favor of a complete intertie of all generating facilities in the United States, providing all equities of private, federal and public generating agencies are protected," he said.

The congressman made the statement while Udall and Charles F. Luce, administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration, shared the witness table.

The witnesses were called to testify on a bill that would give both preference and private electricity users in the Pacific Northwest first call on all hydro-electric power generated at government plants in the Columbia River Basin.

Reps. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., and Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., vehemently oppose the bill. Saylor contends it would crack federal policy on the books since 1902 that municipal and public bodies have first call on federally generated electricity. Hosmer objects to possible restrictions he fears might result on Southern California's right to federally produced power.

Udall himself was not in complete disagreement with the Republicans. He said that if he "felt this would set a precedent I would not favor this legislation." But he added, the Pacific Northwest was the only region where there could reasonably be expected a surplus on secondary federal hydro-electric energy will be produced. He said the firm power should stay in the region to serve all users—both public and private.

Strike Threats Cost $4 Million, Railroad Says

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)—Six weeks of continuing strike threats by the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks cost the Southern Pacific lines $4 million in revenues, President D. J. Russell told the annual meeting Wednesday.

He said even though the strike was averted, shippers shifted that much traffic to competing lines as a precautionary measure.

Russell blamed the strike threat for the fact Southern Pacific had $1.1 million less rail revenue in the first quarter of 1963 than a year ago.

However, he said net earnings increased to $15.09 million or 56 cents a share compared with 47 cents a share in the first quarter of 1962.

Modernization of equipment and streamlining of operations produced the improved earnings, he said.

Golden Eagles Wreak Havoc, Ranchers Say

DENVER (AP) — Golden eagles are swooping down from the mountains of western Colorado, carrying off newborn lambs, and ranchers want permission to kill them in an effort to save flocks.

Sometimes a single ranch will lose four or five lambs a day during the spring lambing season, Gov. John Love said he has been advised.

He requested the secretary of the interior to issue an order relaxing a regulation protecting the eagles. The ranchers want permission to kill them from March 1 through June 30 of each year.

Love said he had ranchers' claims investigated by the Colorado Department of Agriculture before making the request.

The area affected, he said, is in Mesa, Garfield and Montrose counties.

The governor said the ranchers emphasized that they do not want to wipe out the golden eagles, only thin their ranks to more manageable size. He quoted the stockmen as saying the eagles do much good, helping to control the rodent population.

Love said the situation is not as bad as it was a few years ago when ranchers took to airplanes and used shotguns to reduce the number of eagles.

Cardinal Will Leave Hungary, Report Indicates

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—The Vatican, the United States and Hungary's Communist government reportedly have reached an agreement that will allow Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty to leave for Rome.

High Vatican sources said they expected the 71-year-old Roman Catholic primate of Hungary in Rome in a few days to assume a high Vatican post.

Informants in Budapest reported Wednesday night that long negotiations proved fruitful.

Freeing of the cardinal would remove one barrier to resumption of normal diplomatic relations between the United States and Hungary and would improve relations between the Vatican and the Hungarian government.

No information was available on details of the agreement, but it is believed to include other concessions to the Vatican.

The Hungarian Communists sentenced the prelate to life imprisonment in 1949 for alleged high treason. Liberated in the 1956 uprising, he took refuge in the U.S. Legation in Budapest when the Soviets crushed the revolt and he has been there ever since.

JFK Re-Election Drive Started, Allott Declares

DENVER (UPI)— Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who might be nominated for a high national elective office, said Wednesday President Kennedy already has started his 1964 re-election campaign.

Allott, on a visit to his home state, said the Kennedy Administration was playing politics with the economy—"taking a calculated gamble to create a prosperity, false or otherwise, that will carry through the next election year."

Allott spoke to the Colorado Public Expenditures Council here.

Gov. John Love of Colorado said last week he was seriously considering trying to get Colorado's delegation to go to the Republican National Convention pledged to Allott as a favorite son.

Allott later commented he would "be honored" to accept such a nomination at the convention. "It's strictly up to the Republican Party of Colorado," he said.

Allott also leveled charges at Kennedy for the handling of the Cuban crisis, management of news, sluggish economy, tax proposals, deficit spending, and decisions on Berlin and Laos.

Snooping Soviet Vessel Sighted Near U.S. Ship

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — A Soviet trawler of the type the Soviets use for electronic snooping was sighted today near a U.S. ship monitoring astronaut Gordon Cooper's space flight, an informed source said.

A U.S. destroyer sighted the trawler in international waters in the general vicinity of the American ship Coastal Sentry, which is monitoring Cooper's flight and may control his re-entry at the end of the 22-orbit flight.

The trawler's mission has not been determined, the source said.

Fremont County Drought Said To Be Worsening

Water, or the lack of it, has become the No. 1 problem and subject of discussion in Eastern Fremont County as drought conditions continue and grow worse.

Florence city officials, now in the process of calling for bids June 3 on a new water plant, are sweating out the continuing dry weather which has forced the establishment of irrigation regulations and threatens to bring about even stricter measures.

Friday night, Fremont Ditch Company stockholders including several Florence officials, were on hand to establish a regulated distribution of water in the Fremont ditch which has proved inadequate for irrigation in Florence.

A division of the ditch by sections was agreed upon on a trial basis in hopes of bringing more water to the majority of users.

Richard Telck, ditch superintendent, will have charge of the new distribution plan which may bring more water into Florence for local users.

At Penrose, Nick Goodall, manager of the Beaver Park Company, is pessimistic over the apple crop which he believes already damaged by dry weather and hot winds.

He is also seeking to locate vandals who broke the Beaver Park Company headgate controls on the company's retaining dam on Beaver Creek allowing 127 acre feet of precious water to drain down the creek.

Loss of water and damage to the equipment has been estimated at $2,000. Goodall made it known that this type of vandalism is a felony and is a penitentiary offense.

Meanwhile, the Beaver Park Company manager reported that the Brush Hollow Reservoir, which serves Penrose, now has 2,000 acre feet of water and is recording an intake of about 22 acre feet per day.

Extreme Danger of Forest Fires Seen in Colorado

No precipitation and continuous drying winds have caused Colorado's forest fire danger to reach the extreme stage, Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall cautioned today.

The slightest spark in the tinder-dry forests can touch off a major holocaust, Nordwall said, urging extreme caution by forest visitors.

No National Forest camp or picnic grounds have been closed to cooking fires. The Denver city-county mountain parks, however, have been closed to fires of any kind, including gasoline stoves.

Those visiting National Forest recreation areas are asked to build fires only in the fireplaces provided. To put out a cooking fire, or any small fire, the embers should be thoroly soaked with water, stirred with a stick or shovel, and then doused again with water before leaving. Covering a fire with dirt will not necessarily put out the fire —use water.

Pointing out that there have already been fires, 20 of them in the Pike National Forest, Nordwall asked the cooperation of the public. Most of these early fires have been due to accident or carelessness on the part of man.

The 1963 spring has been described as one of the worst early fire hazard seasons in history. Forest Service personnel are on standby and a Denver regional office fire dispatcher has been placed on duty to help cope with the situation.

Half the fires in the Pike National Forest have been caused by campers, with the remainder caused by hikers, smokers and others. All have been caused by man. More than 130 acres have been burned.

The Roosevelt National Forest reports five fires to date. One started from a broken power line insulator in Estes Park, another was started by a hiker, and lightning in Buckhorn Canyon touched off another.

A delayed action burn was started by a smoldering slab and sawdust pile held over from last fall. This blaze destroyed a lumber mill and some piled logs.

Another Roosevelt blaze stemmed from a man's carelessness near the Pinecliff area in Coal Creek Canyon. Some seven acres have been burned and conditions are very dry in the lower elevations.

Haiti President Says He Will Stay in Office

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Haiti's Dictator-President Francois Duvalier insists he will remain in office despite reports abroad that he is planning to flee his rebellion-threatened country.

"Haiti will continue under my administration," Duvalier told American correspondents summoned to his palace Wednesday in an apparent effort to scotch reports he intended to flee.

By showing himself unscathed, Duvalier, 56, scored a victory over enemies who had sworn to kill him rather than let him begin a new presidential term.

Duvalier's constitutional term of office expired Wednesday, but he declared himself re-elected for six more years after a rigged ballot two years ago.

Duvalier's regime plans a splurge for his inauguration May 22. Haitians throughout the countryside are being herded into trucks and carted to Port au Prince.

The people also are being forced to "contribute" to help defray expenses of the inaugural celebration.

"Papa Doc," as he is known to the Negro Haitians, may survive that day, too, but foreign observers of Haiti's troubles give him no more than another year at the helm of his impoverished, fear-ridden little nation.

Clement Barbot, once Duvalier's right-hand man, has sworn to kill his former chief and is at large somewhere in Haiti with a band of underground fighters.

Haitian exiles abroad have been reported planning invasions of the country.

Following the merger of Alexander Film with Motion Picture Advertisers Service Inc. of New Orleans, La. in March, Parker was made vice president of the new company and was the director of the company's activities in the western half of the United States.

Parker was a native of New Britain, Conn. He is survived by his widow, Martha Parker, Colorado Springs, and three sons, Clifford Parker Jr. of Grand Junction and Jerry and David Parker of Colorado Springs.

Funeral services will be held at the Swan Drawing Room at 9 a.m. Saturday with the Rev. Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg officiating. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Red Proposes Peaceful Competition

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Differences between communism and capitalism should be settled "Not by a nuclear war but by peaceful competition between systems," a Soviet official said Wednesday night.

Nikifor Levchenko, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D. C., spoke to about 60 persons at a meeting at the University of Colorado. He is touring the state and speaking to collegiate and other groups.

Levchenko said he was making the trip because of "A need to eliminate mutual mistrust spawned by the cold war."

Body of Springs Youth Recovered From Boyd Lake

Funeral arrangements had not been completed this morning for Phillip Michael Chadwell, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry D. Chadwell, 1301 N. El Paso St., who drowned Tuesday in Boyd Lake northeast of Loveland.

Loveland firemen recovered Chadwell's body Wednesday from 30 feet of water where he was pitched from a motor boat he was driving.

Chadwell was a senior in biological sciences at Colorado State University and the father of a one-year-old boy. His wife, Kathy, works in the registrar's office at CSU.

Chadwell was driving a motor boat towing another CSU student, Duane Johnson, 20, on water skis when Johnson lost his balance and fell into the water.

In an attempt to rescue his companion, Chadwell turned the motor boat sharply. The powerful craft bucked, tossing him into the water.

The driverless boat then headed directly for Johnson, inflicting painful lacerations on his arm and shoulder. Witnesses said the boat then cruised wildly on the lake for two hours before running aground at the east shore.

Johnson was rescued by Terry Russell, 18, of Westminster, a Navy sailor home on leave and visiting the lake. Johnson was taken to Loveland Memorial Hospital where he was in good condition Wednesday.

The body of another CSU student, Susan Henry, 21, Trenton, N.J., was located in 100 feet of water in Horsetooth Reservoir Wednesday by scuba divers. She was on a diving expedition with five other CSU students when she drowned last Saturday.

Searchers continued today for the bodies of Philip Oliver, 28, of Wheat Ridge, believed drowned in Gross Reservoir near Boulder, and Ralph DeFreese, about 60, of Burlington, feared lost in Bonny Reservoir in eastern Colorado.

Two Types of Orbits Are Orbited by Cooper

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—When is an orbit not an orbit? When its a revolution, of course. Except that even then it's called an orbit.

Confused? Well, relax—it isn't bothering astronaut Gordon Cooper and it boils down to semantics anyway.

An orbit for Cooper is one of two things—both of them different.

A Keplerian orbit is a complete circle from one point in space around and back to that same point in space again.

But experts at Mercury Control —for simplicity's sake—have used a different measure.

They drew an imaginary line, north to south, through Cape Canaveral, and measured an orbit as the amount of time it takes Cooper to make it once around and cross that line.

The earth rotates in the same direction that Cooper is flying—to the east—and he has to travel a little more than a full circle each time to cross the Cape Canaveral line. Experts at Mercury Control call this an earth-fixed orbit—or a revolution.

The Keplerian orbit takes about 88½ minutes. The earth orbit take five minutes longer, about 93.5 minutes—the full circle plus the amount of time it takes to catch up with the Cape Canaveral line.

Cooper's flight—advertised by NASA as a 22-orbit mission—was figured on the basis of almost 22 of the earth-fixed orbits or revolutions. In the traditional sense, he is traveling more than 23 of the circular or Keplerian orbits before he returns to earth.

Lt. Col. John A. Powers, Mercury public affairs officer, said today the Keplerian orbit is a "point to point in space which has no relation to the earth beneath it.

"NASA begins each orbit count on Faith 7 at the same point in space directly overhead the geographical spot in which the spacecraft was injected into orbit."

By BEM PRICE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Gordon Cooper, a superbly performing space pilot, sped on toward completion of his marathon 22-orbit flight today, heading for an afternoon splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

With astronaut and spacecraft in excellent working order, Mercury Control Center flashed the good word to Cooper during his 16th orbit that he had the green light to go all the way.

If there is no emergency hitch, the reverse rockets on Cooper's Faith 7 capsule are to be fired east of Shanghai, China, about 6:03 p.m. Eastern Standard Time to begin a gradual descent to a parachute landing in the Pacific some 80 miles southeast of Midway Island.

Touchdown time was scheduled about 6:23 p.m.—12:23 p.m. Midway Time.

A large Pacific recovery force, headed by the carrier Kearsarge, waited in the area. The Kearsarge hoped to improve on its record of last Oct. 3, when it had astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. on board just 42 minutes after he landed some 9,000 yards from the craft.

Cooper was waved on for the full flight not long after he awakened from a good night's sleep.

Then he went into action as a camera bug.

Over the Indian Ocean he pulled out a 35mm robot still camera with a fast lens to photograph the zodiacal light, a weird glow visible on the horizon in the east before sunrise and after sunset. Scientists believe the color pictures will prove a theory that the phenomena is caused by the sun's rays reflecting off dust clouds.

"Hello down dere! Did I take pictures, pictures, pictures!" Cooper exclaimed to communicator Virgil Grissom on the ground at Guaymas, Mexico. Then he reported he was turning the capsule

Limon Couple Robbed of $400; Bandit Hunted

Lincoln County Sheriff Alfred Clarke and Colorado Highway Patrol officials have put an all-states bulletin out for a man who robbed a Limon couple of $400-$500 Wednesday afternoon.

Clarke said the man, about 35 years old and six feet tall, was driving a 1955 green Plymouth with a special Colorado License permit.

The man drove to the trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Chartere Wednesday afternoon, parked, and went inside the trailer where Mrs. Chartere was alone. He frightened Mrs. Chartere, who screamed for her husband. By the time Chartere arrived, the man had taken the money and fled in his car headed west thru Limon.

Clarke said Chartere estimated the man took between $400 and $500 cash.

New Parliament Elected by Dutch

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The Dutch elected a new Parliament Wednesday that assured continued support for the North Atlantic alliance.

There were no major issues raised during the campaign.

Premier Jan Eduard de Quay's Catholic People's party emerged the strongest. It gained one seat to total 50 on the new 150-man House. He called the results a vote of confidence in the colition regime he headed with the Free-Enterprise Liberals and two right wing Protestant parties.

The opposition Labor party, which held 48 seats in the old Parliament, dropped 5 in the only substantial loss by a major faction.

The other surprise was by the new Rightist Farmers party which won 3 seats.

ART REJECT DISPLAYED — "Ex-Beauty-Dead Horse," a life-size welded steel construction of a woman standing on top of a dead horse, is on display on a lawn in Kansas City. The creation by James Sterritt, a sculptor in Lawrence, Kan., was not accepted by the Mid-America art exhibition at the Nelson Gallery of Art, so a friend of Sterritt, William A Wisner installed it in his front yard, which attracted attention of news photographers, and has been printed in newspapers all over the country. Kentucky Misery Is 'Home' for Workless Miner

By SY RAMSEY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —Why do they stay in the poverty-stricken, flood-wracked mountains of Eastern Kentucky?

The typical answer of the natives comes from a gaunt, unemployed miner near Harlan, bailing water out of his shack after recent devastating floods: "Buddy, this is home. There's nowhere else I wanna go."

The census-takers report differently. In 1950 there were 900,000 people in a 32-county area comprising a more populous slice of picturesque Appalachia. Today there may be 650,000.

Says John Whisman, head of Kentucky's area program office: "Eastern Kentucky has the largest out-migration rate of any comparable area in the nation. The closer you get to the deep southeast, where the floods always are worst, the heavier the out-migration becomes."

Still, there are the 650,000, many living under severe hardships. In one county the unemployment rate is 22 per cent; in another 81 per cent of families earn less than $3,000 a year.

Although no politician dares say so publicly, the area is a drain on Kentucky's financial resources.

The brutal reality is that too much of the Appalachian region is engulfed in economic misery and inertia.

Bert Combs, who rose from humble origins in the area to become Kentucky's present governor, says candidly there are some residents "who just don't have enough initiative to do anything else."

But he says another stay-at-home group "has some sort of feeling it's the land of their birth and they ought not leave as long as there is any hope."

Jimmie Thompson, who left the tiny hamlet of Wayland for government work, gives this explanation:

"The mountains are like a drug. It's a beautiful place to live in the summertime and for generations and generations these people have lived there.

"Poverty and misery is a part of life to them. They expect it. As sure as winter ends, the floods come and they go through the same miserable cycle."

Floods in March chased more than 30,000 Kentucky families from their homes and caused millions of dollars damage.

"My 80-year-old grandmother has five children living elsewhere, all wanting to take care of her in comfortable homes," Thompson said. "But do you know what she says? 'When they carry me from here it'll be to my grave.'"

Whisman, who comes from Clay City, another tiny Appalachian town, says: "These are the kind of people who fight for a homeland. They consider natural disasters just another enemy and they won't be pushed around.

"And, remember this: it's not easy to leave when you have a large family, no cash, no known destination and no assurance of work."

The official hope is that Eastern Kentucky, if it gets adequate federal flood protection and state attention, eventually will lift itself into a prosperous tourist area.

At least one acute observer thinks not.

"I doubt if it would do any good for the area if the entire budget of Kentucky was poured into Eastern Kentucky in the next five years," says Harry M. Caudill, a Whitesburg lawyer and conservation champion.

No Indictments Returned by Jury in Pueblo

PUEBLO (AP) — The Pueblo County grand jury closed a session Wednesday that began March 1 but returned no indictments.

It recommended fire safety changes at certain schools and other public buildings, and criticized the operation of the county jail.

The jury said the age of the jail building was no excuse for its unkempt condition.

It said child mistreatment cases in the Pueblo area are "heart-rending and prevalent." The jury praised the administration of Mrs. Martha Cencel, city welfare director.

The jury was commended by Dist. Judge S. Philip Cabibi and then dismissed. It was the third grand jury impaneled under a law making such action mandatory each year because of Pueblo's growth in population.

Neither the 1962 nor the 1961 juries returned any indictments. The last grand jury prior to 1961 was in 1927.

Commuter Goes 176 Round Trips to Job

ARCADIA, Mo. (UPI) — Robert Edgar is a pioneer of sorts who wears a Homburg hat and carries a briefcase instead of a coon skin cap and flintlock rifle. He rides a commuter train instead of a Missouri mule.

For the past 14 years, Edgar has been living a commuter's life on one-upmanship on the boy who had to walk 10 miles to school through the snow.

He spends 24 to 30 hours a week commuting to his insurance business in St. Louis from this Ozark Mountains community. It's a 176-mile round trip by rail.

Edgar said he wanted his sons, Robert and James, to be brought up in the community where their great-grandfather first settled in 1866 "so his son could go to the college that was here."

"Arcadia is derived from the Greek and it means 'a scene of peace, quiet, simplicity and happiness,'" Edgar said, describing another reason he goes through the lengthy commuter routine.

Edgar maintained a winter home in St. Louis and a summer home here until 1949, when he decided to become a full time resident "and I've been commuting ever since."

Edgar boards the Texas Eagle at 6:15 a.m. and arrives in St. Louis at 7:40. The return trip aboard the Eagle begins at 5:40 q.m. and he arrives here at 7:40.

He said the routine is more relaxing than living in the suburbs and driving like mad down the freeway so you can get home five minutes earlier.

"I do some work on the train," Edgar said, but he indicated most of his time was spent in contemplating the mountain scenery.

Home is on a 27-acre, wooded tract in the Arcadia Valley. Nine of these acres are lawn, the insurance man said.

The dominating structure is a tower, which he said is all that remains of original buildings on the land.

Edgar is a booster of the area and perennially serves as secretary-treasurer of the local chamber of commerce, a man who didn't wait until he retired to move to the mountains he loved.

The Japanese began dwarfing trees about 800 years ago.

Car Slashing Reported To Sheriff by Woman

Doris Lewis of 3118 Jon St. called the sheriff's department Wednesday and reported that a tire on her car had been slashed.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Newman said the vehicle was parked in front of her home and that there were several other reported cases of tire slashing in the area at the same time.

Kennedy Orders Reduction in Pesticide Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has ordered immediate government steps to cut down the health hazards resulting from the widespread use of pesticides.

Kennedy Wednesday night revealed a 46-page report from his Science Advisory Committee warning that the environment is suffering "increasing contamination" from chemical poisons.

The scientists said pesticides have been a great boon to mankind and their "judicious" use must be continued. But it urged prompt steps to "minimize risks" to humans resulting from "continued exposures to small amounts of these chemicals."

The committee made a study of pesticides following the controversy that arose around Rachel Carson's book "Silent Spring."

In a statement accompanying the report, Kennedy said he had ordered federal agencies to carry out the committee's recommendations within their authority, and to prepare legislation for Congress where warranted.

A senate subcommittee begins hearings today on pesticide hazards. Dr. Jerome Weisner, chairman of the President's Science Advisory Committee, will present the committee's report formally to Congress at the opening session.

The committee agreed with Miss Carson that there was "evidental of increasing environmental contamination."

The committee said there is urgent need for more research to determine how much pesticide is reaching human beings through food, water and air, and what "long-term impact" small quantities of these poisons may have on health. It recommended that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare undertake "comprehensive" studies of these questions."

TV Satellite Transmits Cooper Pictures

By United Press International

The relay communications satellite early today transmitted pictures of L. Gordon Cooper's blast-off from Cape Canaveral to millions of European television viewers.

The British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) and the French and West German television networks carried the films. European viewers also saw a shot of Cooper sitting in his space capsule and a view of the Florida coastline as recorded by a television camera in the capsule.

The scenes witnessed in Europe were transmitted from Cape Canaveral to New York, then sent from American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (AT&T) offices there to the relay tracking station in Andover, Maine.

Then, as the satellite made a pass, they were bounced off it to the Goonhilly Downs, England tracking station, which transmitted the pictures to European television screens through the facilities of the BBC.

Soviets Execute Spy; Britisher Loses Appeal

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass said today Oleg Penkovsky has been executed in accordance with the sentence pronounced last Saturday in the spy case involving Greville Wynne, a British businessman.

The Soviet news agency said the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet rejected an appeal for clemency by Penkovsky, 44, sentenced to death after being convicted of high treason. He was shot. Penkovsky was a former deputy chief of the State Committee on Scientific Research and Coordination.

Wynne, also 44, was sentenced to eight years in confinement. He contended before the military court which tried him with Penkovsky that he had been tricked by the British intelligence service into serving as a courier for Soviet military, political and economic secrets ferreted out by Penkovsky. The court ruled the two were members of a spy network that fed 5,000 films of secret Soviet documents to the West in 16 months.

No-Account Check Charge Is Filed

A charge of no account check was fined in District Court Wednesday against Florence L. Toms, 35, of 203 Crestmoor St.

Information states the defendant gave a $20 check to the Palmer House April 16. It was drawn on the Southgate Bank.

Judge David W. Enoch set bond at $1,500.

Four Nationally Known Speakers At Conference

Four nationally-known speakers on consumer finance and public relations will be presented to some 200 Colorado businessmen and their guests, including Colorado Springs finance company executives, at the 31st annual meeting of the Colorado Consumer Finance Association at the Broadmoor Friday thru Sunday.

J. Miller Redfield, St. Louis, president of National Consumer Finance Association headquartered in Washington, D. C., will talk on "Tomorrow's Challenge Today," a review of national politics and business conditions.

Charles W. Pine of Phoenix, nationally known public relations consultant who recently took part in a public relations seminar for Denver area businessmen at the Brown Palace Hotel, will point out the value of good community relations for businesses.

David M. Molthrop, director of community education for the National Small Business Association, Washington, D. C., will talk on recent developments in the credit union field.

William J. Malatesta, new director of educational relations for National Consumer Finance Association, will show why it is necessary to "Saddle Your Public Relations or It Will Run Wild."

Meetings in the Little Theater will be presided over by Colorado president Albert Cox of Grand Junction and vice president Wallace Koster of Salida.

The annual election of directors and officers will be held Saturday morning.

Friday will be devoted to the annual golf tournament.

Vandalism Reported At House Construction

Jim Cox of the Cox Construction Co. reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday that someone had spread drywall cement on the kitchen wall and broken two windows of a house he was building at 2414 Parkview Blvd.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs said damage is estimated at $22.

Tools Reported Stolen From Car

Tools and a tool box were stolen from a car owned by Charles J. Pribble, 1334 N. Wahsatch Ave., sometime this month, police reported.

The tools were taken from the trunk of the car which was unlocked, and their value is unknown, according to the report.

New Parliament Elected by Dutch

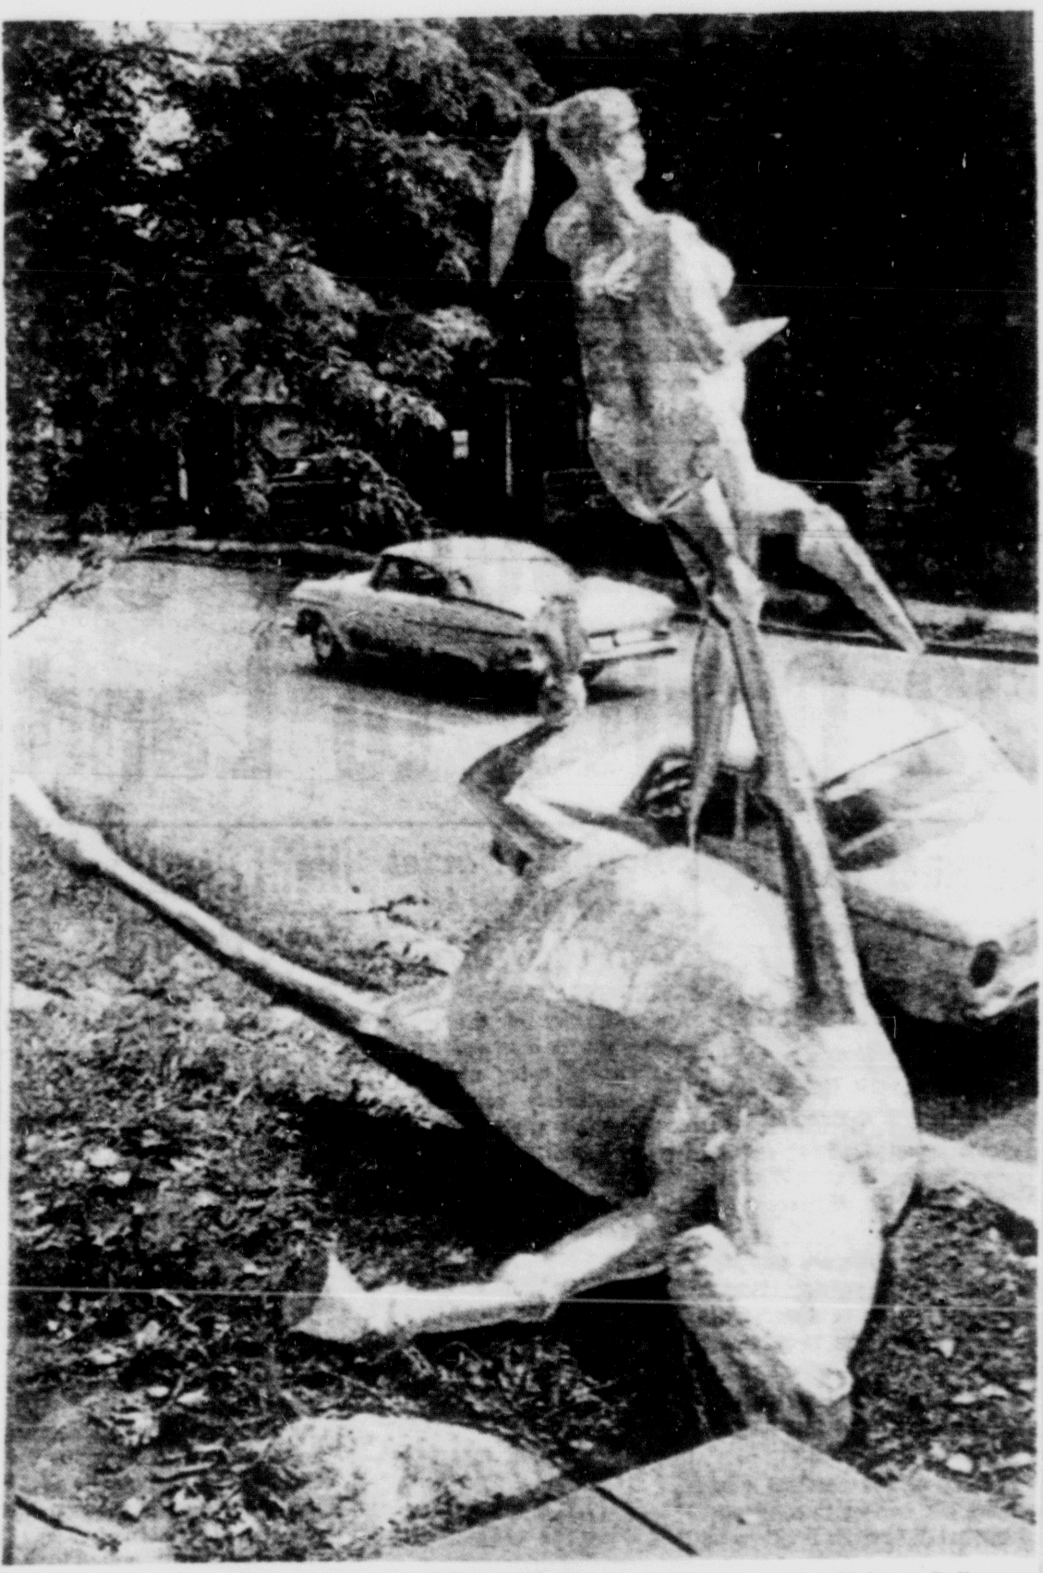
THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) The Dutch elected a new Parliament Wednesday that assured continued support for the North Atlantic alliance.

There were no major issues raised during the campaign.

Premier Jan Eduard de Quay's Catholic People's party emerged the strongest. It gained one seat to total 50 on the new 150-man House. He called the results a vote of confidence in the colition regime he headed with the Free-Enterprise Liberals and two right wing Protestant parties.

The opposition Labor party, which held 48 seats in the old Parliament, dropped 5 in the only substantial loss by a major faction.

The other surprise was by the new Rightist Farmers' party which won 3 seats.



ART REJECT DISPLAYED — "Ex-Beauty-Dead Horse," a life-size welded steel construction of a woman standing on top of a dead horse, is on display on a lawn in Kansas City. The creation by James Sterritt, a sculptor in Lawrence, Kan., was not accepted by the Mid-America art exhibition at the Nelson Gallery of Art, so a friend of Sterritt, William A Wisner installed it in his front yard, which attracted attention of news photographers, and has been printed in newspapers all over the country. Kentucky Misery Is 'Home' for Workless Miner

By SY RAMSEY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Why do they stay in the poverty-stricken, flood-wracked mountains of Eastern Kentucky?

The typical answer of the natives comes from a gaunt, unemployed miner near Harlan, bailing water out of his shack after recent devastating floods: "Buddy, this is home. There's nowhere else I wanna go."

The census-takers report differently. In 1950 there were 900,000 people in a 32-county area comprising a more populous slice of picturesque Appalachia. Today there may be 650,000.

Says John Whisman, head of Kentucky's area program office: "Eastern Kentucky has the largest out-migration rate of any comparable area in the nation. The closer you get to the deep southeast, where the floods always are worst, the heavier the out-migration becomes."

Still, there are the 650,000, many living under severe hardships. In one county the unemployment rate is 22 per cent; in another 81 per cent of families earn less than $3,000 a year.

Although no politician dares say so publicly, the area is a drain on Kentucky's financial resources.

The brutal reality is that too much of the Appalachian region is engulfed in economic misery and inertia.

Bert Combs, who rose from humble origins in the area to become Kentucky's present governor, says candidly there are some residents "who just don't have enough initiative to do anything else."

But he says another stay-at-home group "has some sort of feeling it's the land of their birth and they ought not leave as long as there is any hope."

Jimmie Thompson, who left the tiny hamlet of Wayland for government work, gives this explanation:

"The mountains are like a drug. It's a beautiful place to live in the summertime and for generations and generations these people have lived there.

"Poverty and misery is a part of life to them. They expect it. As sure as winter ends, the floods come and they go through the same miserable cycle."

Floods in March chased more than 30,000 Kentucky families from their homes and caused millions of dollars damage.

"My 80-year-old grandmother has five children living elsewhere, all wanting to take care of her in comfortable homes," Thompson said. "But do you know what she says? 'When they carry me from here it'll be to my grave.'"

Whisman, who comes from Clay City, another tiny Appalachian town, says: "These are the kind of people who fight for a homeland. They consider natural disasters just another enemy and they won't be pushed around.

"And, remember this: it's not easy to leave when you have a large family, no cash, no known destination and no assurance of work."

The official hope is that Eastern Kentucky, if it gets adequate federal flood protection and state attention, eventually will lift itself into a prosperous tourist area.

At least one acute observer thinks not.

"I doubt if it would do any good for the area if the entire budget of Kentucky was poured into Eastern Kentucky in the next five years," says Harry M. Caudill, a Whitesburg lawyer and conservation champion.

No Indictments Returned by Jury in Pueblo

PUEBLO (AP) — The Pueblo County grand jury closed a session Wednesday that began March 1 but returned no indictments.

It recommended fire safety changes at certain schools and other public buildings, and criticized the operation of the county jail.

The jury said the age of the jail building was no excuse for its unkempt condition.

It said child mistreatment cases in the Pueblo area are "heart-rending and prevalent." The jury praised the administration of Mrs. Martha Cencel, city welfare director.

The jury was commended by Dist. Judge S. Philip Cabibi and then dismissed. It was the third grand jury impaneled under a law making such action mandatory each year because of Pueblo's growth in population.

Neither the 1962 nor the 1961 juries returned any indictments. The last grand jury prior to 1961 was in 1927.

Commuter Goes 176 Round Trips to Job

ARCADIA, Mo. (UPI) — Robert Edgar is a pioneer of sorts who wears a Homburg hat and carries a briefcase instead of a coon skin cap and flintlock rifle. He rides a commuter train instead of a Missouri mule.

For the past 14 years, Edgar has been living a commuter's life on one-upmanship on the boy who had to walk 10 miles to school through the snow.

He spends 24 to 30 hours a week commuting to his insurance business in St. Louis from this Ozark Mountains community. It's a 176-mile round trip by rail.

Edgar said he wanted his sons, Robert and James, to be brought up in the community where their great-grandfather first settled in 1866 " so his son could go to the college that was here."

"Arcadia is derived from the Greek and it means 'a scene of peace, quiet, simplicity and happiness,'" Edgar said, describing another reason he goes through the lengthy commuter routine.

Edgar maintained a winter home in St. Louis and a summer home here until 1949, when he decided to become a full time resident "and I've been commuting ever since."

Edgar boards the Texas Eagle at 6:15 a.m. and arrives in St. Louis at 7:40. The return trip aboard the Eagle begins at 5:40 q.m. and he arrives here at 7:40.

He said the routine is more relaxing than living in the suburbs and driving like mad down the freeway so you can get home five minutes earlier.

"I do some work on the train," Edgar said, but he indicated most of his time was spent in contemplating the mountain scenery.

Home is on a 27-acre, wooded tract in the Arcadia Valley. Nine of these acres are lawn, the insurance man said.

The dominating structure is a tower, which he said is all that remains of original buildings on the land.

Edgar is a booster of the area and perennially serves as secretary-treasurer of the local chamber of commerce, a man who didn't wait until he retired to move to the mountains he loved.

The Japanese began dwarfing trees about 800 years ago.

Car Slashing Reported To Sheriff by Woman

Doris Lewis of 3118 Jon St. called the sheriff's department Wednesday and reported that a tire on her car had been slashed.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Newman said the vehicle was parked in front of her home and that there were several other reported cases of tire slashing in the area at the same time.

Kennedy Orders Reduction in Pesticide Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has ordered immediate government steps to cut down the health hazards resulting from the widespread use of pesticides.

Kennedy Wednesday night revealed a 46-page report from his Science Advisory Committee warning that the environment is suffering "increasing contamination" from chemical poisons.

The scientists said pesticides have been a great boon to mankind and their "judicious" use must be continued. But it urged prompt steps to "minimize risks" to humans resulting from "continued exposures to small amounts of these chemicals."

The committee made a study of pesticides following the controversy that arose around Rachel Carson's book "Silent Spring."

In a statement accompanying the report, Kennedy said he had ordered federal agencies to carry out the committee's recommendations within their authority, and to prepare legislation for Congress where warranted.

A senate subcommittee begins hearings today on pesticide hazards. Dr. Jerome Weisner, chairman of the President's Science Advisory Committee, will present the committee's report formally to Congress at the opening session.

The committee agreed with Miss Carson that there was "evidental of increasing environmental contamination."

The committee said there is urgent need for more research to determine how much pesticide is reaching human beings through food, water and air, and what "long-term impact" small quantities of these poisons may have on health. It recommended that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare undertake "comprehensive" studies of these questions."

Reds in Italy Surprised Over Gain in Votes

By EUGENE LEVIN

ROME (AP)—In Rome's "street of the dark shops," where Italy's Communist party has headquarters, it is no dark secret that the Red leaders were surprised at the million votes their party gained in Italy's national election.

They had reason to expect the opposite. The party has been having trouble holding its card-carrying members. Its leadership is behind Moscow, but a strong pro-Peking faction exists, creating internal friction. Part of its strength is backing from many Italian intellectuals. Yet at the height of the campaign Moscow launched an attack on Soviet intellectuals.

"We thought we would be lucky to hold our own," one Communist leader said.

The outcome strengthened the hand of Palmiro Togliatti, 70, who has crossed verbal swords with Peking and followed all the Kremlin's political turns except its campaign against liberal artists and intellectuals.

In March, as the election campaign warmed up, the Communist Chinese news agency said Togliatti engaged in "parliamentary idiocy." The Chinese chided his view that communism could come to power in Italy through constitutional means.

The Italian Reds smart whenever anyone suggests they are tainted by middle-class customs. At the Italian party congress last year one of Togliatti's top lieutenants, Giancarlo Pajetta, looked straight at a Communist Chinese delegation and said:

"Our policy is one responding perfectly to the needs of the Italian people."

But there has not always been agreement on that policy in Communist headquarters on 2,200-year-old Via Delle Botteghe Oscure—named the "street of the dark shops" because it once was lined with arcades of stalls.

Tugs-of-war have been frequent between those who would tune party policy closer to Italian needs and those who would lean closer to the Kremlin line or even the more extreme Peking line.

Communist officials made no real effort to hide a fear that the intraparty squabbling might hurt in the elections.

Italian political experts in general believe the Communist gained through factors not directly determined by them.

Italy's economic boom had taken hundreds of thousands of southern Italians to factories in the North. In the South, they had lived in Christian Democrat strongholds. In the North they were in contact with Communist labor leaders for the first time.

The Communists probably attracted a number of votes from Socialists disgruntled because the alliance of their leader, Pietro Nenni, with Christian Democratic Premier Amintore Fanfani had not produced the sweeping social reforms they expected.

Another factor was an easing in Vatican relations with the Communist world. In central Italy's Red belt, men often voted Communist but their church-going wives, fearing excommunication, voted Christian Democrat. Big Communist gains indicated that many wives went along with their husbands this year.

The audience that Pope John XXIII granted to Khrushchev's atheist son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, "was a disaster," says one of Italy's leading commentators, Augusto Guerriero.

The Vatican accuses those who hold this view of incorrect interpretation.

"We have written and rewritten that the admission of Mr. Adzhubei to the presence of the Holy Father was due to the fact that the Pope welcomes all and rejects none," the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano said.

Prospects on Fruit Crops Are Reported

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today prospects for all fruit crops except apples were poor to fair on May 1. The outlook was generally good for apple production.

Extreme cold in January and some spring frosts have resulted in poor peach crop the report said. The sour cherry crop was expected to be 47 per cent of normal and sweet cherries 16 per cent of normal.

The report gave no estimated production figures.

But there has not always been agreement on that policy in Communist headquarters on 2,200-year-old Via Delle Botteghe Oscure—named the "street of the dark shops" because it once was lined with arcades of stalls.

Tugs-of-war have been frequent between those who would tune partly policy closer to Italian needs and those who would lean closer to the Kremlin line or even the more extreme Peking line.

Communist officials made no real effort to hide a fear that the intraparty squabbling might hurt in the elections.

Italian political experts in general believe the Communist gained through factors not directly determined by them.

Italy's economic boom had taken hundreds of thousands of southern Italians to factories in the North. In the South, they had lived in Christian Democrat strongholds. In the North they were in contact with Communist labor leaders for the first time.

The Communists probably attracted a number of votes from Socialists disgruntled because the alliance of their leader, Pietro Nenni, with Chrisitan Democratic Premier Amintore Fanfani had not produced the sweeping social reforms they expected.

Another factor was an easing in Vatican relations with the Communist world. In central Italy's Red belt, men often voted Communist but their church-going wives, fearing excommunication, voted Christian Democrat. Big Communist gains indicated that many wives went along with their husbands this year.

The audience that Pope John XXIII granted to Khrushchev's atheist son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, "was a disaster," says one of Italy's leading commentators, Augusto Guerriero.

The Vatican accuses those who hold this view of incorrect interpretation.

"We have written and rewritten that the admission of Mr. Adzhubei to the presence of the Holy Father was due to the fact that the Pope welcomes all and rejects none," the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano said.

Prospects on Fruit Crops Are Reported

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today prospects for all fruit crops except apples were poor to fair on May 1. The outlook was generally good for apple production.

Extreme cold in January and some spring frosts have resulted in poor peach crop the report said. The sour cherry crop was expected to be 47 per cent of normal and sweet cherries 16 per cent of normal.

The report gave no estimated production figures.

TO VISIT U.S.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, commander-in-chief of the Congolese army, will go to the United States next Thursday, informed sources said Monday.

The sources said Mobutu had been invited by the U.S. Army for discussions on reorganizing the Congolese army.

Uranium Deal Damage Suit Is Restated

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wallace, Idaho, interests have restated their claims, in a brief, to damages of $5 million because, they contend, the Atomic Energy Commission failed to go through with agreements to buy their uranium.

The brief was filed in the Court of Claims by attorneys for Jack D. Gay, trustee for shareholders of Northwest Uranium Mines, Inc. and Silver Buckle Mining Co.

The commission's conduct, the brief said, "is an affront to one's sense of justice and fair play, and certainly far below the standard of conduct which citizens of a free nation should expect from their administrative representatives."

The government, defendant in the suit, contends there were no agreements for purchase of the ore.

The plaintiffs contend the AEC refused to buy uranium ores and concentrate after they had completed an expensive exploration and development program. The suit was filed originally in 1959.

"The record clearly establishes beyond doubt that no reason was ever given to Northwest, either orally or in writing, for the commission's refusal to formalize a uranium concentrate contract" subsequent to submission of formal proposals by Northwest, the brief said.

"Such arbitrary and capricious conduct on the part of the commission is clearly in violation of published procedure to which the AEC is legally bound to adhere," the brief added.

"The failure of the AEC to honor its obligation to Northwest and to negotiate a formal contract was the direct and approximate cause of the dissolution of the company with the resultant loss being borne by the stockholders of the company."

The government has asked dismissal of the suit on grounds there were no agreements and the plaintiffs had failed to establish a right to recover damages.

Commissioner Ronald A. Hogenson gave the government until June 19 to respond to the plaintiff's brief. Thereafter he will prepare his final recommendations to the court.

Ex-Employe Admits Setting Hotel Fire

DENVER (AP) — Angered because he was fired for drinking on the job, a former employe has admitted starting a destructive fire at the Kenmark Hotel here, fire investigators disclosed Tuesday.

The five-story building in downtown Denver was damaged by smoke and flames, and 100 residents were driven to the street in the May 3 fire.

Fire Investigator Jim Jordan said Jack S. Bowen, 56, admitted setting a match to a stack of furniture, mattresses and bedding stored in the basement of the hotel.

Bowen had been discharged as room clerk one week before, Jordan said.

Jordan had visited the hotel the day of the fire, the investigator said, and was seen to walk in the direction of a basement entrance.

Questioned over a period of a week, Bowen finally admitted Tuesday that he caused the blaze, Jordan said.

WASHINGTON — Thru a fortuitous circumstance, which must remain under security wraps, we have been made privy to the secret report of a Russian Investigating subcommittee which has been looking into the performance of Soviet experts on American affairs — or as they are known in the trade, Yankologists.

It is an altogether fascinating document, even entertaining in spots, but it must have brough tears to Khrushchev's eyes for it reveals that his Yankologists have an unaccountable weakness for human error. They apparently embrace wrong conclusions — we won't say as often as United States Officials but as eagerly, for example, as a wino seizes his bottle.

This, of course, is encouraging to our own home-grown Kremlinologists. They have been feeling especially misunderstood this week because of all that criticism in the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee report on the Cuban Crisis. And it is some comfort to know that their fellow tradesmen in Moscow are in the same boat.

Actually, the Russian investigators deal much more harshly with their experts than the senators do with ours. They are unsparing even tho they were appointed by by the Central Committee of the Communist Party and therefore could not be accused of trying to score points for a political opposition.

The Soviet Preparedness Subcommittee, for instance, was particularly caustic about the way the Kremlin Yankologists recently flubbed an analysis of the Rockefeller romance rumors. 8

"On exactly the second day before the new Rockefeller marriage," the report laments, "Our Worthy Experts submit their formal estimate that the capitalist governor will be reconciled with his wife and, consequently, was certain to be given the Republican nomination for President.

"The American press is saying almost unanimously that Rockefeller will be married to a Happy Murphy. But our experts do not trust the American press. They prefer to believe the report of an Intourist Guide who thinks she overheard a traveling American housewife say she thought there would be a reconciliation."

The Russian Investigators said, however, that this was not nearly as serious as the sorry performance of the Yankologists during the Cuban Crisis. Their analyses and predictions, the report complains, were "worse than worthless" and led to "important blunders."

"Despite much evidence to the contrary," says the report, "our esteemed experts refused to believe the americans would fly reconnaissance planes over Cuba. They ignored the intelligence reports from Cuba and they refused to believe Comrade Castro.

"They kept insisting on their own pet theories. They kept telling the authorities in charge that the Americans would never fly their U-2S over Cuba because they learned their lesson when we shot down Gary Powers in 1960."

As a result, the Red Army never even bothered to use camouflage when it began setting up the missiles. The Soviet investigators said the Army puts its faith in the Yankologists and the Americans took pictures to their heart's' content.

"And what about the blockade" says the report, plunging onward. "Where were our experts then" On the wrong side, as usual. When Chairman Khrushchev asked them for an opinion on whether the Americans would take such a risk, they were very positive that they would not. They said the talk about a blockade was just bluff. And they had all types of theories to show that they were right."

It didn't seem to matter to the Yankologists, the report said, that their blunders might have started an atomic war. They simply prepared a new report attempting to show how new and unexpected factors had changed the situation so that they could not be blamed.

The Russian investigating subcommittee went on to report in sorrow that these aforementioned flubs were not just an isolated event but symptons of a kind of epidemic. In fact, it would appear that the Yankologists had seldom been right.

They goofed on American military intervention in the Korean War, on the dispatch of United States Marines to Lebanon, and on Ike's admission of the u-2 spy flights. They picked Willkie in 1940, Dewey in 1944, and Stevenson in 1952.

In 1960, the Yankologists made a strong bid for a comeback. They hedged their bets thruout the campaign, sending "on-the-one-hand" and "on-the-other-hand" reports to the Presidium. But in the final weeks, when they felt they had to make up their collective mind, they came down hard in favor of Nixon. As a result, the late and unlamented Soviet ambassador in Washington, Mikhail Menshikov, gave the New Frontiersmen the brushoff and had to be recalled to Moscow after the election.

Last year, the Yankologists pulled still another blooper. They put a lot of rumors together, carefully studied scores of news photographs, and came up with "definite evidence" that Jackie was expecting a baby in the fall. In an accompanying analysis, the Soviet Investigating Committee reports, the experts suggested that the event would be a distinct distraction so that the fall would perhaps be a good time to trigger a new cold war crisis.

There is no way of being absolutely sure, of course, that the secret report on the Soviet Yankologists is authentic. It might be just a ruse to give us a false sense of superiority. Our own resident Kremlinologists say it has a very familiar ring. And some of the cases cited have been confirmed by Cuban refugees. But our Kremlinologists don't have a very good batting average either.

Wherever the truth may lie, it is clear that the Yankologists and the Kremlinologists have much in common. They are frequently wrong and constantly under attack. Report has it that they are thinking of forming a mutual protective association against investigating committees. There is even a proposal that they change places for a while to get some badly needed on-the-job training.

Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thompson were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Daniels and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dustrude and Joe and Joan.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis and family were guests of the Dave Beneze family of Security for ice cream and cake. The occasion celebrated was Michelle Beneze's birthday.

The JGN Club met at the home of Mrs. Gene Hamley, Thursday afternoon. Fourteen members, six visitors and nine children attended. Mrs. Carl Johnson demonstrated cosmetics and Mrs. Paul Lamlin furnished the mystery package which was drawn by Mrs. G. E. Flinn.

Several received packages from their secret pals. Mrs. Hamby served delicious and attractive refreshments. The next meeting will be a picnic in Memorial Park. Hosts will be Mrs. Roger Hawkins and Mrs. Arless Fiero.

Awards Day was held at the school house Wednesday at which time honor student awards, band pins, citizenship awards, reading circle certificates, and other awards were given out.

The eighth grade students and their teacher, Mr. Kinney, entertained their mothers at a tea Friday afternoon.

The high school students and teachers surprised Mrs. Simpson with a birthday party recently. Cake, punch, nuts and mints were served.

Mrs. G. E. Flinn has sold her property in Falcon and has moved to an apartment in Colorado Springs. We wish her the best of luck in her new home.

Increase in U.S. Oil Production Reported

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — U.S. oil production rose last week on gains in Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and other states, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Average daily production of crude oil and lease condensate last week was 7,300,225 barrels, up 34,575 barrels a day from the previous week, reflecting increased May allowables in some states, the magazine said.

Increases included Oklahoma, up 22,100 barrels a day to 561,500, Utah, up 3,000 to 96,800 and New Mexico, up 2,275 to 304,300.

Decreases included Wyoming, down 4,800 barrels a day to 388,300 daily.

Figures for other states, with the previous week's output were Colorado 112,100, 112,100, Montana 88,700, 88,700, and Nebraska 64,100, 63,700.

Millions of monarch butterflies winter in the eucalyptus and pine trees of Pacific Grove, Calif.

All-in-One High Fidelity Uses Transistors

By PRESTON McGRAW
United Press International

Altec's Astro stereo AM-FM tuner-amplifier is a tuner pre-amplifier on one chassis.

The addition of speakers makes it a high fidelity stereo system with either AM or FM radio as a music source. A turntable and tape deck can be added for records and tape as sources.

One of the major objections to the all-in-one high fidelity receiver in the past has been the fact that it generated a lot of heat, which broke the components down.

Altec remedied this in the Astro by using transistors in the pre-amplifier and power output sections. Tubes are used where they are superior to transistors and the result is a tuner-amplifier that never gets really hot.

The Astro is distinguished by a "big sound" performance and by exceedingly low hum. Even when played at maximum volume, the hum level is so low that it is hardly audible.

Without going into technicalities, the FM tuner sensitivity is upper-average. Tested in a location with perhaps 15 FM stations audible within 60 miles, the Astro's FM tuner actually sounded better on the dipole antenna of flat wire that came in the carton.

That is not to say that the tuner picked up all FM stations within the 60 miles with the dipole antenna. But it picked all up within 20-25 miles, giving perfect reception on FM multiplex as well as regular FM.

A high gain antenna overloaded the tuner. Empty spots on the FM band sounded as full of noise and cross-talk as the AM band. This, however, would not be the case where FM stations were few and far between and a high gain antenna would be necessary.

The amplifier turns out, according to the specifications, 27.5 watts per channel, measured by Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturer's standards.

This is not enough power for some of the low-efficiency speakers on the market. It should be enough for any of Altec's speaker systems, including the expensive and highly-regarded Voice of the Theater systems.

Altec claims a frequency response of 20-20,000 cycles per second, plus or minus one decibel, for both the FM tuner and the amplifier.

Tests with records and tape showed the performance of the amplifier and preamplifier with these music sources matched the performance of the amplifier and pre-amplifier with the tuner as a music source.

The Astro uses a so-called tuning eye to indicate when the FM tuner is in the middle of the signal, as well as the comparative signal strength. An amber light goes on when the tuner receives a stereo multiplex signal.

Another feature of the set includes headphone-speaker selector switch to keep the head-phone listener from being accidentally deafened.

10 Appointments Are Made by Gov. Love

DENVER (AP) — Ten appointments were made here by Gov. John A. Love, nine of them when he reactivated the unified State Coordinating Advisory Board for the Department of Institutions.

The other appointment was that of Gerald M. Quiat, Denver attorney, to the Anti-Discrimination Commission. Quiat, a Democrat, will succeed Ed Miller, also a Denver attorney, for a term expiring April 13, 1967.

Named to the advisory board, for terms ending next April 11 were Dr. Elwyn N. Akers, representing the Health Department, Dr. Ellis Graham, representing the Education Department, and Sen. Roy McVicker, D-Wheat Ridge.

Appointed for terms ending April 11, 1965 were Dr. Farnell McLaughlin, representing the Vocational Rehabilitation Department, Rabbi Samuel Adelman of Denver, and State Rep. Kathleen P. Littler of Greeley.

Appointed for terms ending April 11, 1966 were Dr. Wesley White, representing the State Institutions Department, Miss Marie C. Smith, representing the Welfare Department and [illegible], a Denver attorney.

Chairman Named For Recodification

DENVER (AP) — Rep. Ruth Clark, R-Fort Collins, was elected permanent chairman today of a legislative committee going into the question of recodification of state school laws.

Chosen vice chairman was Sen. Fay DeBerard, R-Kremmling.

The committee, which held its organizational meeting at the Capitol, is composed of the education committees of the House of Representatives and Senate.

Rep. Clark is the House committee chairman and DeBerard heads the Senate committee.

Humorist Tries To Find More Rare Dishes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some months ago I was advised in confidence that our neighborhood gourmet society might invite me to deliver its annual J. Belcher McBurpp memorial lecture on gastronomy.

The lecture comes each year just before the start of the Japanese beetle season. The society always chooses a distinguished epicure to address it, so I naturally was flattered to hear that it was considering me.

Apparently, the trustees were impressed by the series of papers I presented last year on "Great Dishes of the Western World."

Thus far, the lecture invitation has not been forthcoming, but in anticipation of the honor I have been doing some additional research on great dishes.

In this connection, I recently made a trip to the Pennsylvania Dutch region to investigate a report that it had spawned a great dish called "hog maw."

At the time, I was under the impression that "hog maw" referred to a motherly type pig. Subsequently, however, I learned that the maw is the lining of the hog's stomach.

That somewhat diminished my intellectual curiosity, as well as my appetite. However, the trip was not entirely fruitless.

I can use it to advantage the next time I get involved in a "place-dropping" contest with some of my far flung friends.

When they start casually mentioning the famous places where they have dined, I can counter by saying, "Yes, but did you ever dine at the Jefferson, Pa., Volunteer Fire Department?"

I happen to have been at the fire hall on the evening that the ladies auxiliary was serving its annual spring dinner. As a matter of fact, that was where I learned the truth about hog maw.

The auxiliary also was selling a Pennsylvania Dutch cookbook and I bought a copy as a present for my wife. She was delighted with the gift until she opened it.

Right on the first page it listed "amounts required for 50." My wife said "I don't like to seem unappreciative, but we rarely have more than 49 people for dinner."

"Well," I said, "you can take the receipes and divide them by 12½. That should be about right for us."

One of the dishes I had at the fire hall was "snitz and nepp." I suggested that my wife try it for a starter.

The receipe said "wash and soak snitz over night."

"If you can catch one, I'll try to wash it," my wife said.

I was forced to confess that I didn't know what snitz was either, so we had hamburgers instead.

I have since been told that snitz is Pennsylvania Dutch for dried apples. I suppose my wife could soak one all night, but I doubt she could divide it by 12½.

Educator Denounces North's Black Ghetto

DENVER (AP) — "Black ghettos" in big Northern cities, overcrowded schools and unemployment represent problems as important to the Negro as the integration crisis in Birmingham, says a prominent Negro educator.

Dr. Herman Long of Nashville, Tenn., added that responsible Negro leaders are taking the initiative in seeking solutions.

Dr. Long is director of the department of race relations of the American Missionary Association at Fisk University in Nashville.

Speaking to a committee on religion and race at Scott Methodist Church Tuesday night, he emphasized that current Negro programs for Southern integration and greater recognition are a strictly Negro effort that is bypassing what he called the white liberal community.

"This movement of great reality is the Negro community awakened," he said.

Dr. Long termed it "unfortunate" that a byproduct of the drive for full integration "has been Black Nationalism and the Black Muslim movement."

The first of the original 13 colonies to ratify the Constitution were Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Red China, Soviets Agree to Meeting

TOKYO (AP)—Red China and the Soviet Union finally have agreed to meet July 5 in Moscow to begin an attempt to iron out their ideological differences.

The Russians had suggested the meeting be held in mid-May. The Chinese proposed mid-June. There was no official explanation of the further delay, but Moscow observers believe the Russians want to conclude the meeting of the Soviet party's Central Committee—scheduled for June—before they meet the Chinese.

New Showdown Is Expected in Argentine Vote

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

Bullet scars mar the metal grill work at the entry way to Argentina's General Confederation of Labor headquarters in Buenos Aires and a patch of concrete is a memento to a bomb.

These are the leftovers of the revolution in 1955 which toppled the dictatorship of Juan Peron but left behind more than two million of his angry followers who continue to dream of his return.

Peron drew his power from the "shirtless ones" organized in the General Confederation of Labor (GGT), and although Peron has been gone for eight years, his followers continue to be the decisive fator in Argentine politics.

It was fear of their return to power that led Argentina's military forces to depose President Arturo Frondizi 13 months ago, that led to two unsuccessful military revolts against current provisional President Jose Maria Guido last September and in April and which also precipitated the current government crisis.

These bitterly opposing elements, the Personistas on the one hand and the military on the other, now are approaching national elections scheduled for July 7.

Their differences still are unresolved and even should Guido solve his present crisis, there remain more reasons than not to believe it is only the beginning of another series between now and election day.

In the end, elections may not even be held.

Outside the military, there are at the moment in Argentina three political groupings.

One of these is the Peronista Popular Union.

Another is the intransigent Radicals, the party of former President Frondizi, which hopes for Peronista support behind the presidential candidacy of Dr. Oscar Alende, a former governor of Buenos Aires.

The third is the Popular Radical Party which backs Dr Arturo Illia, another physician, as its presidential candidate.

Running hard for office but without a popular following is Gen. Pedro Aremburo, who served as provisional president after Peron's overthrow in 1955 until 1958.

Aramburo's main hope is that differences among the political parties will prevent any candidate from receiving a majority vote.

In that case the electoral college could name him as the compromise choice.

In the elections held little more than a year ago and later annulled, the Peronistas piled up more than 30 per cent of the total vote. Argentina's continuing economic ills have led to forecasts that in any free election now, they might poll as high as 40 per cent.

Their appeal lies in a vague program of "social justice."

They claim to be in favor of the U. S. sponsored Alliance for Progress, for economic and industrial development and a third force which would walk between capitalism and communism.

PLACE IS HUMMING

ABINGDON, Ill. (AP) — Nor rain nor sleet nor swarming bees stopped the postal workers from performing their duties.

Employes reporting for work found thins buzzing at the post office. A box of bees consigned to Ralph Chandler had been damaged during shipment, allowing the bees to escape. Chandler, an experience bee handler, was summoned to capture the insects while business went on as usual.

ABILITY DOES COUNT— Judith Keith Sikes, 16, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., is this year's winner of the "Ability Counts" essay contest, sponsored by the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. Her theme, "How My Community Benefits from the Abilities of Handicapped Workers," won the [illegible] first prize in nationwide competition for junior and senior high school [illegible]

More Race Marches Are Staged

Birmingham said its agreement with Negroes to desegregate business "violates no law. It binds no one in the white community except the businesses involved." It urged Birmingham citizens "to appraise the cost of him or her of more thoughtless irresponsibility, violence or hate."

Hanes, however, told some 600 persons Wednesday night to "do everything in your power" to resist desegregation. He called the citizens committee "a group of fuzzy minded liberals, pinkos and Reds . . ."

Gov. George Wallace said Wednesday he would go to court in an effort to get federal troops removed from Alabama. He accused the government of illegally sending the troops into the state. President Kennedy dispatched more than 3,000 soldiers to military bases near Birmingham Sunday following six hours of racial rioting in the steel city.

There were these other developments:

—Three Negroes asked a federal court in Birmingham today to order their admission to the all-white University of Alabama.

—The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans Wednesday released the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) from an injunction prohibiting its members from making "freedom rides" to McComb, Miss.

—A federal judge at Richmond, Va., was asked Wednesday to rule that southern communities must accept desegregation along with government aid to schools serving military dependents.

—Four integrationists Wednesday picketed the Gadsden, Ala., jail in protest against the arrest of 10 "freedom walkers" early this month. The "walkers," however, had been transferred to the state prison at Montgomery.

—City officials in Jackson, Miss., planned to meet with local Negro leaders today or Friday to discuss the racial situation in Jackson where plans for a desegregation drive were announced.

Goldwater Asks Stop to Raising Campaign Funds

course, we're glad to keep contributions made for the senatorial campaign."

Behond that, Goldwater said he has continued to refuse any help from groups who are trying to "draft" him for the national niminations.

The Arizona senator professed ignorance of internal moves to realign the Republican party organization in California since former Vice President Richard M. Nixon decided to move to New York.

Speculating on this situation, Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., predicted in a statement Wednesday that GOP former Sen. William F. Knowland might head an unpledged slate of delegate candidates in the next June's primary.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., maintained silence about the party realignment in his state. But it was obvious that he expetcs to be a convention delegate.

West Germany Ratifies Pact With France

BONN, Germany (UPI) — The West German Parliament today gave overwhelming approval to the historic French - German friendship treaty which Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French President Charles de Gaulle signed in Paris in January.

All three parliamentary parties voted for the treaty.

Both men are known to consider the treaty—designed to end centuries of hostility between their nations—a capstone to their personal careers.

The signing of the treaty in January, coincidental with the collapse of Common Market negotiations with Britain, caused an uproar in the United States and in London, where it was feared the treaty was the beginning of attempts to push Britain and the United States out of Europe.

Man Reports Thieves Take All but Axles

Woodrow Peterson of Tarman Tours, 4680 N. Nevada Ave., reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday that two new front tires, two wheels and hubcaps and 10 lug bolts had been stolen from a car parked in front of his office.

Deputy Sheriff Vincent Denboske said the value of the missing items was estimated at $150. The car had been jacked up and there were several footprints around it.

Traffic Signal Failure Claimed in Violation Case

A signal light which a defendant said changed from red to caution to green figured in a hearing Wednesday in Municipal Court.

The alleged malfunction in the light took place May 13 at Boulder and Tejon Streets when two men involved in a collision were cited by Patrolman Emmett Butler for careless driving.

Both pled not guilty to the charges Wednesday in Municipal Court.

Robert Kushnir, 40, 1412 Iowa, said that as he entered the intersection, the light changed from red to caution and he drove on thru. William Ternosky, 18, 1324 E. La Salle St., said the light was green when he entered. His car struck Kushnir's truck.

Kushnir said he had later checked with the traffic control department and was told the red to yellow light change was possible. He added that he witnessed the same light change at another intersection Tuesday.

Judge Allan Asher found Ternosky not guilty of the charge but continued Kushnir's hearing until Tuesday to allow time for an investigation to be made of the particular signal light.

Four men had their $25 bonds each ordered forfeited when they failed to appear in court on drunk charges. They were James Irwin, 27, 3117 Drakestone Dr.; Dale Thompson, 47, Savoy Hotel; Marvin Vickery, no address listed, and Ray Norton, 50, Stratton hotel. Norton was also charged with riotous conduct.

John Hutchinson, 12 Oklahoma Rd., Manitou Springs, pled guilty to a disorderly conduct charge and was fined $50 and given a 30-day jail sentence. Judge Asher suspended the sentence, placing the man on probation for one year.

Hutchinson was represented by attorney George Gibson.

At the request of a complaining witness, Judge Asher dismissed a breach of the peace charge against Janice Jones, 24, 306 N. Cascade Ave. He also dismissed disorderly conduct and riotous conduct charges against Joseph Crowley, 21, 318 N. 20th St., resulting from a February hearing when the man was placed on probation for a three-month period.

At the request of Mrs. Albert Ringler, the judge dismissed charges of careless driving riotous conduct and drunkenness she had brought against her husband. Ringler, 22, 2526 W. Ehrich, pled guilty to a second drunk charge and was fined $25. This was suspended on there being no further violations within a year.

John Collins, 34, Ft. Carson, pled guilty to being drunk and was fined $25.

Max Hemmingway 69, 1008 E. Vermijo St., pled not guilty to a drunk charge and a disorderly conduct charge and had May 22 set for his hearing.

Haiti President Says He Will Stay in Office

phere ars solidly opposed to his dictatorship though as yet they have not been able to agree on any action against him.

Despite the opposition, Duvalier exuded self-confidence as he appealed for better relations with the United States but made plain he would not tolerate outside interference in his rule.

Duvalier assailed the "shortcomings of certain men" in the United States "who should have directed their efforts toward understanding Haiti and its people."

He added, however, that relations between Haiti and the United States are easier at the moment.

Should Duvalier remain in office much longer, it likely will be embarrassing to the United States. Washington has made no secret of its desire to see him fall, and the tenacious little man would be in a position to say he defied the northern colossus.

An investigating committee of the Organization of American States was due here today to inquire further into the Haitian crisis, but Duvalier has no intention of letting it probe charges of repression inside the country.

"The Haitian government certainly cannot permit any meddling by any 'state' or 'superstate' in its internal affairs," he declared.

"I have already said that it would be unthinkable that anyone might want to reproach a chief of state for defending his government—born of national sovereignty — against armed subversion, against aggressive forces and against subversive actions.

"Were a chief of state so lax as not to defend his country thus, he would have betrayed his mission to govern."

The OAS mission ostensibly is still working to end the crisis that nearly torched off war with the neighboring Dominican Republic, but that crisis has largely evaporated. Dominican President Juan Bosch mobilized troops two weeks ago to bolster demands for safety of Haitian political refugees in the Dominican Embassy. Bosch later pulled back his troops.

Twenty of the 22 refugees from the Dominican Embassy arrived in Jamaica Wednesday en route to the Dominican Republic.

The other two are under the protection of the Colombian Embassy.

Political refugees in other Latin-American embassies also are being allowed to leave the country.

Duvalier insisted to newsmen that Haiti is peaceful.

He said all foreigners will "continue to enjoy all guarantees for their safety under the protection of the law."

Duvalier denied any intent to head his country toward the Communist bloc and said he is not receiving aid from any country in the Red orbit.

Peyton Man Charged With No Account Check

A charge of no account check was filed in District Court Wednesday against William C. Capps, 30, of Peyton.

Information states the defendant gave a no account $7.50 check to Kenny's Fine Liquors Feb. 5. Bond was set at $2,000 by Judge David W. Enoch.

Capps who is currently in county jail also has a charge of forgery against him and is scheduled to be tried on this issue May 28.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

A nearly stationary front stretching from the central Plains region southeastward across Kentucky into the Carolinas was the main weather-maker on the map this morning.

Along this front and to the north of it, numerous thunderstorms were in progress. Sections of Kansas and Missouri, southern Illinois and Indiana, Kentucky and eastern Tennessee, into the Carolina mountains were experiencing thunderstorms and shower activity tho of diminishing intensity as is usually the case during morning hours.

A few isolated thunderstorms were reported in the Red River Valley of eastern North Dakota and western Minnesota and over the slopes of the Rockies in Colorado.

Elsewhere in the country, skies were mostly clear.

Early morning temperatures were on the cool side in New England and over the Great Lakes and central Appalachian region. Temperatures were in the 30s and 40s in these areas with scattered reports of light frost received from northern Maine.

The southern states enjoyed summer-like weather with readings in the 60s and 70s. The 60s were also found in the desert southwest.

Elsewhere in the west, temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s with a fair scattering of 30s over the mountain areas.

ASCS Office To Be Open Saturday

The Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service office, 2351 E. Platte Ave., will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday for the convenience of farmers who need information on the forthcoming wheat referendum.

John Person, office manager of ASCS, urges farmers and other interested people to visit the office for information on the wheat program.

MONEY BEES—Karen Chess, employe of the Colorado Springs National Bank, bravely points to some 1,000 bees which swarmed to the bank Wednesday and landed in a tree on the Kiowa Street side of the building. Since the bees would not leave of their own accord, bank officials called a local bee-keeper who captured the Italian-type bees and removed them from the downtown area. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Cooper Set to Complete His Full 22 Orbit Flight

360 degrees on its yaw axis to take the "MIT jobbies."

He referred to a series of eight horizon pictures made especially for Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which is studying the possibility of using the horizon as a navigation reference point for spaceships returning from the moon.

"You have my sympathy," Grissom commented.

"I'm not complaining," Cooper replied.

Grissom then passed on some camera lens setting and filter suggestions from Mercury Control Center. Cooper went about his picture-taking business and sped across the southern United States to the start of his 17th earth orbit.

Cape Canaveral contacted Faith 7 at 9:09 a.m. and astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. commented on how well Cooper was conserving his fuel and oxygen.

"You sure are a miser on consummables," Shepard said. "You're saving things very well."

During the 16th orbit, Mercury Control Center at Cape Canaveral evaluated the condition of the astronaut and spacecraft systems and then waved Cooper's Faith 7 past a go-no-go decision point over Australia.

"Roger, very good," was Cooper's reaction when the tracking station at Muchea, Australia, relayed the good word.

If anything had been amiss, Cooper would have been ordered to fire his spacecraft reverse rockets over the eastern Pacific for a landing in the Atlantic Ocean.

Control center officials reported the pilot was "in excellent condition. He is strong, his attitude is good and he is managing his systems excellently."

Cooper, 36, an Air Force major completed his first 24 hours in space shortly after 8 a.m. while whirling eastward in his 16th orbit. During that time, he got a good night's rest of about 7½ hours.

"Did you have any dreams?" Cooper was asked as he passed near Cape Canaveral not long aft he awoke.

"Negative," he replied. "I slept too soundly."

Cooper wasn't saying much.

"I think he must be saving words for posterity or something," said Lt. Col. John A. Powers, the voice of Mercury Control.

But as a pilot, Cooper's performance topped anything by a U.S. astronaut so far.

His use of the fuel and oxygen supplies of his Faith 7 spacecraft were excellent. As his 16th orbit began, Powers reported that Cooper had 70 per cent of the fuel supply remaining in Faith 7's automatic control system, 90 per cent in the manual system. In his first 24 hours aloft, he consumed only 25 per cent of his primary oxygen supply and none of his emergency supply.

However, Powers said absolutely no consideration was being given to a possible extension of the flight past 22 orbits.

Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., said he had spoken to Cooper's wife, Trudy, in Houston, Tex., this morning and that she told him she had awakened about the same time her husband apparently awoke.

She wished to know when she could listen in again on the special radio installed in the Cooper home for the conversations between her husband and Cape Canaveral, Schirra said.

He added, "She's in good spirits."

Cooper went to sleep about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday night, after talking with astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., who is aboard the tracking ship Coastal Sentry off the coast of Japan. Tracking stations kept silent through the night.

And then at 5:26 a.m., Powers said, trackers in Muchea, Australia, "heard a familiar voice, and it was that of Gordon Cooper."

Cooper reported that he had some discomfort during the night when his spacesuit heated up. But he said he adjusted the temperature setting and went back to sleep.

Powers said the astronaut reported that "as far as he was concerned everything on the spacecraft was nominal."

Nominal is an astronaut word meaning normal.

If all goes as planned, Cooper's "Faith 7" spacecraft will parachute into the Pacific Ocean during the 22nd orbit, landing at 6:23 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, today some 80 miles southeast of Midway Island near the aircraft carrier, Kearsarge.

Early in the flight, and while Cooper, 36, chatted his way from sunset to sunset as if he did this sort of thing every day, the earth-bound technicians and scientists were jubilant.

After describing the operation as a "textbook flight" "perfect" and "beautiful," they described themselves as "overjoyed" — and then ran out of adjectives.

As for Cooper, he dined—sort of—around 5 p.m., some nine hours after he blasted aloft with a rumble and a flash from Cape Canaveral atop a 360,000-pound thrust Atlas rocket.

For food he had aboard some bite-sized protein packed cubes which he could consume, wrapping and all, and some squeeze tube stuff which has yet to be endorsed by gourmets.

During the 9th orbit—about 8:45 p.m.—the 47-pound Cooper reported he was knocking off work for a while.

With this word, the ground communications stations hung a verbal "do not disturb" sign on the "Faith 7."

However, when the spacecraft passed over the command ship, Coastal Sentry off the coast of Japan, Cooper checked in with astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Said Glenn: "We had a message out around the range to keep things quiet."

Cooper: "Roger."

Glenn: "Did you say you were asleep just before this pass?"

Cooper: "I was daydreaming, looking out the window."

At this point, Glenn said he knew Cooper wanted to get some slumber and "We'll tell everyone to go away and leave you alone. Okay?"

It was difficult to tell whether Cooper yawned at this point, but if so, it was the longest distance yawn in history. In any case the "Roger" was asleepy one.

During the 11th orbit there was a moment when doctors thought the astronaut was dreaming. His heartbeat jumped suddenly to 100 beats a minute, and then dropped back to a steady 58 to 60 beats.

After a study of telemetry data, however, the space monitors said Cooper's spacesuit temperature had risen 20 degrees. He apparently awoke suddenly — causing the faster heartbeat — reset the temperature and went back to sleep.

Since Cooper had been launched on an inclination to the equator of 32.5 degrees and the earth kept moving under him, the capsule slipped more and more to the southeast from the Cape during the day.

He passed South Africa, Australia, India, Indo-China and mainland China.

On the 7th orbit Cooper had gone into drifting flight which meant the spacecraft was rotating aimlessly through the trajectory remained fixed by the ballistic impulse.

But it didn't make any difference to Cooper since he was weightless anyway and couldn't tell up from down.

As America's foremost space jockey, Cooper was so completely unawed by his experience that he took an unscheduled doze during his second orbit—which was understandable since he had been up since 2:50 a.m. Wednesday.

At one point early in the flight the Cape Canaveral capsule communicator, astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., asked Cooper, "Great sport, isn't it?"

Cooper's answer was a succinct, "Yeah."

Schirra was the holder of the previous U.S. record of nine hours and 13 minutes, set Oct. 3, 1962.

The world record is held by a Soviet Andrian Nikolayev, who began a 94-hour, 34-minute flight across 1,612,000 miles on Aug. 11, 1962. Cooper will go 600,000 miles at most.

Whatever else Cooper does, record or not, he will prove for American space scientists the ability of a man to survive and work during prolonged pace flight.

Over South Africa he tested the ability of an astronaut to sight three million-candlepower lights on the ground.

If he gives a favorable report such lights probably will be placed around the world to guide future astronauts back from trips to the moon.

This whole business started at 8:04 a.m. Wednesday whn Cooper blasted off Launch Pad 14 here. He went into a true orbital altitude over Bermuda at 17,546 jiles per hour.

Bermuda thus became the first low point on his flight — 100.2 miles—while he reached a maximum altitude of 165.8 miles initially over Australia. The elapsed time from low point to low point was 88.45 minutes.

In the course of his flight, Cooper became the first American astronaut to pass over Red China. He was to make six passes over mainland China.

The Chinese had no immediate comment.

President Kennedy watched the launch on a television set in his office.

In Japan, Europe, Africa and South Africa there were regular news reports on the progress of the flight. The Soviet's Tass news agency gave the flight only 62 words, but Radio Free Europe was beaming the report behind the iron curtain.

The attempt to beam live television to Europe however, was a flop because of a mixup which sent meaningless pictures and sound across the Atlantic via the Relay I communications satellite. There was better reception later.

Extreme Danger of Fires Seen in Colorado Forests

A long range goal which includes the construction of a community center to meet recreational needs of people of all ages especially senior citizens was recommended as a result of a preliminary study done by the National Recreation Association, a United Fund agency, earlier this year. The N. R. A. recommended that the Colorado Springs Park and Recreation Department assume leadership in this project.

The report was presented early this week to the Senior Coordinating Council by Mrs. Harry S. Bunker, Chairman of the Planning Committee of the Pikes Peak United Fund. The Senior Coordinating Council requested that the United Fund arrange with the National Recreation Association to complete the study and present a plan for implementing the results as soon as possible.

Mrs. Verna Rensvold, of Kansas City, Mo., was the researcher assigned to the preliminary study.

Mrs. Rensvold recommended the following immediate steps and short term plans to meet needs for recreation, educational, and cultural activities for the aged:

1. Step up existing programs of private and public organizations, expanding the variety and frequency of activities.

2. Capitalize on interest shown in Seminars in which many older people participated who have not previously been involved.

3. Marshall all resources of the city and establish effective coordination, through the Senior Coordinating Council.

4. Employ one paid staff person, part time at first, to coordinate the program. The City Park and Recreation Department was recommended as the agency through which coordination could best be affected since the city would not have a limited clientele or circumscribed area of service such as the Senior Coordinating Council and the United Fund.

Tire Slashed; Radio, Hub Caps Reported Stolen

The sheriff's office reported Wednesday that a tire on a car belonging to Mrs. James Anderson of 3113 N. Institute Ave. had been slashed and a radio stolen from the vehicle.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Newman said the slashing happened about one week ago and that the radio which is a transistor type and worth $49.95, was stolen Tuesday night. The vehicle was parked in front of Mrs. Anderson's home.

Four hub caps worth $40 were stolen from a car belonging to Raymond Langford of 1048 Norwood Ave. the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Edward Pakenham the car was parked at the Norad site on Cheyenne Mountain.

LeFevre Outlines Why He Founded 'Freedom School'

Introduced to the Young Republicans Wednesday night as a "controversial" figure, Editor Robert LeFevre of the Gazette Telegraph told the group, "I never feel controversial. I feel that the people of Colorado Springs are my friends. I don't have any enemies.

"Of course some people are angry at me, but that's their privilege."

As background for his discussion of the proposed Rampart College, LeFevre briefly sketched his own career and previous efforts to educate people in the doctrines of libertarianism.

As a volunteer in World War II, he said, he approved of the emergency measures passed by the government. He figured that they would be lifted after the war, since the government had promised they would be only for the duration.

But when he was mustered out after the hostilities ended, he found that many restrictions, such as the Office of Price Administration, were still in effect. A protest to his congressman elicited the reply that "the emergency is not over, the reasons for the OPA are more applicable than ever, and in fact we are looking for ways to strengthen it."

This, thought LeFevre, was the "negation of a contract." Conversations with friends revealed to him "a very dangerous series of conceptions being introduced into the body politic of the U.S.

"You heard of cells in schools, churches and governmental agencies . . . very dangerous, and deserving of the keenest attention."

Most leaders weren't subversives, he said — they did the best they knew — but still, the right to property and other rights were being impaired.

He made up his mind to study communism and fight it.

"I'll never forget my first brush with a card-carrying Communist," LeFevre said. Like LeFevre, he was a Los Angeles radio announcer.

"I was so morally certain I was right, I didn't prepare for the debate. I knew I would win.

"I never had a prayer. I was demolished, reduced to glittering generalities."

He found he was not alone in his inability to deal with the issues. A lecture tour of the U.S. revealed to him that this was the cause of the national malaise. Answers to a questionnaire he distributed to his audiences indicated that while they felt they knew what communism was and were against it, on specific issues such as the graduated income tax and subsidized housing, many were in agreement with Marx and Lenin.

"My fellow Americans were being led down the road to the collectivist state and they hadn't even taken the time to study what it is," said LeFevre.

He decided to make, with friends, a thoro study of the whole problem of freedom.

First they tried to meet one night a week for two hours. This failed, since they lost continuity from week to week and had to spend an inordinate amount of time reviewing.

Next they tried meeting three nights a week. This failed too because of absenteeism and the consequent delays involved in trying to catch people up.

And so, several years later after he had moved to Colorado Springs, LeFevre founded the Freedom School.

"To understand a complex philosophy you have to have a school," he said. "You have to make a point, stand on it, and make another. Otherwise, those who come in at Point Five will say, 'he's nuts.'"

This system, he continued, "has succeeded beyond our wildest dreams."

At a question and answer period following the speech, TV announcer John Bartholomew asked LeFevre whether he felt that most teachers of political science, especially in "Ivy League universities," knew about Marx and Lenin.

"Many have studied them," LeFevre replied.

"Do you feel that they are deliberately pro - communist?" Bartholomew continued.

"Let's say, many are deliberately pro-socialist," the speaker answered, noting that "pro-communism" connotes a pro-Russian bias that may not exist.

Another questioner asked whether everything proclaimed by Marx must necessarily be considered evil.

"I can prove, not that Marx is evil," replied LeFevre, "but that Marx is wrong."

'Bird Farm Land' Near Wasson Gets Soil Treatment

Members of the City Park and Recreation Department are currently engaged in soil conservation schooling work on city park land near Wasson High School, according to James Taylor, department director.

The 15 acres of land is located between the high school stadium and North Circle Drive and between Constitution Avenue and Patrician Way. It is sometimes known as the bird farm land.

Purpose of the work, Taylor said, is to establish a natural vegetation cover to prevent erosion and blowing dust. Some of the area is already covered with a stand of native grasses.

But Taylor said there is a problem on the west end of the tract where there are deep gullies caused by runoff and indiscriminate filling.

Once grass becomes available, a sprinkling system will be installed and more suitable grasses, trees and shrubs planted. Dr. John Monteith Jr., a part time department consultant and an expert in these matters, is assisting in the program.

The City Park and Recreation Department acquired the land from the State Game and Fish Department. More recently, there was an exchange of property that will give the state agency a new regional headquarters near the intersection of Madison and Weber Streets. The office is still at the old location.

Taylor said the same type of work is planned on a three-acre park site near Jefferson School.

Prowler Risks Life in Radio Station Entry

Someone unwittingly risked his life by entering a local radio station's transmitter building at 600 E. Brookside St. the sheriff's department reported Wednesday.

Clay Lockhart of KVOR received a call that someone was running in and out of the building. Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche said the doors had been pushed open but apparently nothing was taken.

He also said there was grave danger of an intruder being killed if he touched the wrong object as there is, extremely high voltage equipment in the building.

Sheriff Reports Theft Of Spare Tire, Wheel

A spare tire and wheel worth a total of $175 was stolen from Roger Faye of 209 Cunningham Dr. the sheriff's department reported Wednesday.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Newman said the wheel and tire were under a trailer parked at the W W Gas Ranch, 1207 S. Nevada Ave.

Smoke Damages Lung Tissue, Doctor Warns

DENVER (UPI) — A Veterans Administration doctor told the annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association today cigarette smoking damages lung tissue essential to breathing.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach of East Orange, N.J., reported on a study made of 1,592 patients, mostly men, who had died at the East Orange VA Hospital.

Auerbach said the study revealed a high correlation between heavy smoking and the scarring of tissue. Other effects, he said, are a thickening of the walls of the small arteries and arterioles, and rupturing of the partitions between the air sacs.

"All four types of histologic change . were found to be highly related to the smoking habits of these subjects," Auerbach said. "The least changes were found in persons who had never smoked, the most extensive changes were found in current cigarette smokers, and the degree of the changes increased greatly with the amount of cigarette smoking.

"Current pipe and cigar smokers and ex - cigarette smokers showed somewhat more changes than did persons who had never smoked."

At another session of the meeting today, Robert C. Loudon of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas reported on a study proving that coughs go up as the temperature of the air goes down.

It is nothing that the average doctor, and patient, does not already know from bitter experience. But it now has been established on a scientific basis through a two-year survey of two large hospitals in Dallas.

Loudon said there was a definite correlation between how cold it was outside and the number of anti-cough prescriptions written at the hospitals.

The second most significant factor governing the number of prescriptions was increases in humidity and rainfall. But Loudon said barometric pressure was found to have no effect on cough frequency.

He said the correlation between weather and deaths from respiratory illnesses was not as clear as between weather and cough prescriptions.

Segregated Schools May Lose Public Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House Education subcommittee voted here to cut off all federal aid to public schools that are still segregated as of June 30, 1964.

This provision was put into a bill to continue for one more year the payment of federal funds to school districts burdened because of activities of the federal government.

Known as the impacted areas program, it annually pours about $350 million into 4,000 school districts and reaches all 50 states. Many are in the South.

The anti-segregation amendment was approved unanimously by the subcommittee, which then voted unanimously to report the bill to the full Education and Labor Committee.

HER HONORS, THE MAYORS

NEW ALBANY, Kan. (AP) — Spring elections left women in control of New Albany city gover ment as they have been since 1930.

Mrs. Susie Murphy became the first woman mayor of New Albany in 1930 and there has been a woman in the mayor's chair ever since.

Mrs. Winfred Hoover, incumbent mayor, drew no opposition this year and succeeded herself in office.

Another Try Planned To Stop Denver Vote

DENVER (UPI)— The attorney for Denver Mayor candidate Sheldon Greene said Tuesday he would appeal to the Colorado Supreme Court a lower court ruling which dismissed his client's suit to block next week's municipal elections.

Denver Dist. Judge Robert W. Steele dismissed the suit Monday. Greene alleged candidates Bill Grant, Tom Currigan and incumbent Dick Batterton had violated the city charter in heir campaigns.

The suit claimed Batterton and Currigan were supported by political parties and all three had spent more than the $1,000 allowed for campaign expenses.

Steele ruled that the charter provisions deal only with city employes—not candidaes, thus opening the way for a suit after the election next Tuesday.

Attorney Edward S. Barlock said he doubted if the Supreme Court would act in time to remove the candidates names in time to block the election, but the appeal is being made "for the record" to show that he and Greene disagree with Steele's ruling.

Utah Asked to Protect Lake Powell Interests

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A Salt Lake County commissioner has called on the State of Utah to protect its interests in the Lake Powell area of southern Utah.

Commissioner C. W. Brady said the state will have to wait 10 years for recreational development on the lake if it does not take action. He said the Bureau of Reclamation is programming its recreation funds for projects on the Arizona side of the lake.

The lake is being formed by waters back up by Glen Canyon Dam just below the Utah-Arizona border.

West Rejects Soviet Protest on A-Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and West Germany have agreed on notes rejecting Soviet protests against a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force. The notes will be delivered in Moscow by next Monday.

Diplomatic informants said the theme of the Western replies will be that the proposed NATO multilateral nuclear weapons force is entirely defensive.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin has been called home to Moscow for consultation on the state of East-West relations—and U.S.-Soviet relations, specifically—and plans to leave the middle of next week.

Ancient Egypt Ruins May Go Under Water

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA)—Lack of money has compelled an international group to abandon plans to raise one of Egypt's most famous monuments into the air to escape the rising waters of the Nile Lake. But the temple at Abut Simbel, now in danger of being lost from view, may yet be saved if an English skin diver has his way.

He has come up with a novel idea for saving the 3,200-year-old temple in Egypt, which my soon disappear beneath the muddy waters of the Nile.

He is William MacQuitty, a Belfast film producer, and he proposes to build a light protective wall, or "membrane," around the temples and fill the enclousre with filtered water.

MacQuitty argues that the filtered water would not only protect the temples from corrosion, but would make them visible to sightseers viewing them from underwater chambers. The estimatel cost of the scheme is less than $14 million.

On a trip up the Nile last year, MacQuitty saw the temple, which is due to be flooded under 200 feet of water as a result of the construction of the new Aswan Dam. He was appalled at the prospect of this architectural wonder being lost to mankind.

Then MacQuitty remembered something that he had learned while skin diving. When a diver wishes to see an object clearly in muddy water, or to mark it, he filled with clean water against the object.

Why not do the same with the Abu Simbel temples — submerge them in filtered water" He claims these advantages for his idea: it is less expensive than other schemes put forward, it would preserve the temples in their original position.

Meanwhile, time is running out. The United Arab Republic and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) must decide soon whether to save the temple or to abandon it. If a rescue operation is agreed upon work must start immediately, for the Nile will begin to flood the area in October, 1964.

The temple was built 3,200 years ago by Rameses II, who left the landscape dotted with giant statues of himself. The Great Temple at Abu Simbel has four such statues of Rameses II, each 70 feet high, flanking its entrance. There are also decorated underground passages and rooms extending 200 feet into the cliff. The temple is so oriented that at sunrise a shaft of light strikes into the inner sanctuary.

A smaller temple nearby is dedicated to Rameses' queen, Nefertari.

Various schemes have been put forward for saving the temples, but most of them have been too costly. UNESCO's appeal for money has not been heeded.

In April, UNESCO was forced to reject as too expensive an Italian project to jack the face of the Great Temple up above the water level. This would have involved cutting the temple face from rock, encasing it in reinforced concerte and raising it 200 feet. The cost was estimated at $72 million, including landscaping.

From Italy has come another proposal to cut up the temples into numbered blocks by means of helicoidal wire such as is used to cut enormous pieces of marble out of the mountains at Carrara. The blocks would then be reassembled at Shallal, near the Aswan Dam.

The protective membrane to be built around the temples is the key to MacQuitty's scheme. Of reinforced concrete," corrugated for stability, the membrane would enclose clean water on the temple side and keep it constantly at the same level as the Nile side.

Elevators would take sightseers down to airconditioned galleries built in the thickness of the mzmbrane, from which the visitors could see the temples through underwater windows. From the galleries a tunnel would be set into the floor of the temple, and sightseers could go into viewing chambers within the underground halls.

More Race Marches Are Staged

Birmingham said its agreement with Negroes to desegregate business "violates no law. It binds no one in the white community except the businesses involved." It urged Birmingham citizens "to appraise the cost of him or her of more thoughtless irresponsibility, violence or hate."

Hanes, however, told some 600 persons Wednesday night to "do everything in your power" to resist desegregation. He called the citizens committee "a group of fuzzy minded liberals, pinkos and Reds . . ."

Gov. George Wallace said Wednesday he would go to court in an effort to get federal troops removed from Alabama. He accused the government of illegally sending the troops into the state. President Kennedy dispatched more than 3,000 soldiers to military bases near Birmingham Sunday following six hours of racial rioting in the steel city.

There were these other developments:

—Three Negroes asked a federal court in Birmingham today to order their admission to the all-white University of Alabama.

—The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans Wednesday released the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) from an injunction prohibiting its members from making "freedom rides" to McComb, Miss.

—A federal judge at Richmond, Va., was asked Wednesday to rule that southern communities must accept desegregation along with government aid to schools serving military dependents.

—Four integrationists Wednesday picketed the Gadsden, Ala., jail in protest against the arrest of 10 "freedom walkers" early this month. The "walkers," however, had been transferred to the state prison at Montgomery.

—City officials in Jackson, Miss., planned to meet with local Negro leaders today or Friday to discuss the racial situation in Jackson where plans for a desegregation drive were announced.

Goldwater Asks Stop to Raising Campaign Funds

course, we're glad to keep contributions made for the senatorial campaign."

Behond that, Goldwater said he has continued to refuse any help from groups who are trying to "draft" him for the national nominations.

The Arizona senator professed ignorance of internal moves to realign the Republican party organization in California since former Vice President Richard M. Nixon decided to move to New York.

Speculating on this situation, Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., predicted in a statement Wednesday that GOP former Sen. William F. Knowland might head an unpledged slate of delegate candidates in the next June's primary.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., maintained silence about the party realignment in his state. But it was obvious that he expetcs to be a convention delegate.

West Germany Ratifies Pact With France

BONN, Germany (UPI) — The West German Parliament today gave overwhelming approval to the historic French - German friendship treaty which Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French President Charles de Gaulle signed in Paris in January.

All three parliamentary parties voted for the treaty.

Both men are known to consider the treaty—designed to end centuries of hostility between their nations—a capstone to their personal careers.

The signing of the treaty in January, coincidental with the collapse of Common Market negotiations with Britain, caused an uproar in the United States and in London, where it was feared the treaty was the beginning of attempts to push Britain and the United States out of Europe.

Man Reports Thieves Take All but Axles

Woodrow Peterson of Tarman Tours, 4680 N. Nevada Ave., reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday that two new front tires, two wheels and hubcaps and 10 lug bolts had been stolen from a car parked in front of his office.

Deputy Sheriff Vincent Denboske said the value of the missing items was estimated at $130. The car had been jacked up and there were several footprints around it.

Traffic Signal Failure Claimed in Violation Case

A signal light which a defendant said changed from red to caution to green figured in a hearing Wednesday in Municipal Court.

The alleged malfunction in the light took place May 13 at Boulder and Tejon Streets when two men involved in a collision were cited by Patrolman Emmett Butler for careless driving.

Both pled not guilty to the charges Wednesday in Municipal Court.

Robert Kushnir, 40, 1412 Iowa, said that as he entered the intersection, the light changed from red to caution and he drove on thru. William Ternosky, 18, 1324 E. La Salle St., said the light was green when he entered. His car struck Kushnir's truck.

Kushnir said he had later checked with the traffic control department and was told the red to yellow light change was possible. He added that he witnessed the same light change at another intersection Tuesday.

Judge Allan Asher found Ternosky not guilty of the charge but continued Kushnir's hearing until Tuesday to allow time for an investigation to be made of the particular signal light.

Four men had their $25 bonds each ordered forfeited when they failed to appear in court on drunk charges. They were James Irwin, 27, 3117 Drakestone Dr.; Dale Thompson, 47, Savoy Hotel; Marvin Vickery, no address listed, and Ray Norton, 50, Stratton hotel. Norton was also charged with riotous conduct.

John Hutchinson, 12 Oklahoma Rd., Manitou Springs, pled guilty to a disorderly conduct charge and was fined $50 and given a 30-day jail sentence. Judge Asher suspended the sentence, placing the man on probation for one year.

Hutchinson was represented by attorney George Gibson.

At the request of a complaining witness, Judge Asher dismissed a breach of the peace charge against Janice Jones, 24, 306 N. Cascade Ave. He also dismissed disorderly conduct and riotous conduct charges against Joseph Crowley, 21, 318 N. 20th St., resulting from a February hearing when the man was placed on probation for a three-month period.

At the request of Mrs. Albert Ringler, the judge dismissed charges of careless driving riotous conduct and drunkenness she had brought against her husband. Ringler, 22, 2526 W. Ehrich, pled guilty to a second drunk charge and was fined $25. This was suspended on there being no further violations within a year.

John Collins, 34, Ft. Carson, pled guilty to being drunk and was fined $25.

Max Hemmingway 69, 1008 E. Vermijo St., pled not guilty to a drunk charge and a disorderly conduct charge and had May 22 set for his hearing.

Haiti President Says He Will Stay in Office

phere ars solidly opposed to his dictatorship though as yet they have not been able to agree on any action against him.

Despite the opposition, Duvalier exuded self-confidence as he appealed for better relations with the United States but made plain he would not tolerate outside interference in his rule.

Duvalier assailed the "shortcomings of certain men" in the United States "who should have directed their efforts toward understanding Haiti and its people."

He added, however, that relations between Haiti and the United States are easier at the moment.

Should Duvalier remain in office much longer, it likely will be embarrassing to the United States. Washington has made no secret of its desire to see him fall, and the tenacious little man would be in a position to say he defied the northern colossus.

An investigating committee of the Organization of American States was due here today to inquire further into the Haitian crisis, but Duvalier has no intention of letting it probe charges of repression inside the country.

"The Haitian government certainly cannot permit any meddling by any 'state' or 'superstate' in its internal affairs," he declared.

"I have already said that it would be unthinkable that anyone might want to reproach a chief of state for defending his government—born of national sovereignty — against armed subversion, against aggressive forces and against subversive actions.

"Were a chief of state so lax as not to defend his country thus, he would have betrayed his mission to govern."

The OAS mission ostensibly is still working to end the crisis that nearly torched off war with the neighboring Dominican Republic, but that crisis has largely evaporated. Dominican President Juan Bosch mobilized troops two weeks ago to bolster demands for safety of Haitian political refugees in the Dominican Embassy. Bosch later pulled back his troops.

Twenty of the 22 refugees from the Dominican Embassy arrived in Jamaica Wednesday en route to the Dominican Republic.

The other two are under the protection of the Colombian Embassy.

Political refugees in other Latin-American embassies also are being allowed to leave the country.

Duvalier insisted to newsmen that Haiti is peaceful.

He said all foreigners will "continue to enjoy all guarantees for their safety under the protection of the law."

Duvalier denied any intent to head his country toward the Communist bloc and said he is not receiving aid from any country in the Red orbit.

Peyton Man Charged With No Account Check

A charge of no account check was filed in District Court Wednesday against William C. Capps, 30, of Peyton.

Information states the defendant gave a no account $7.50 check to Kenny's Fine Liquors Feb. 5. Bond was set at $2,000 by Judge David W. Enoch.

Capps who is currently in county jail also has a charge of forgery against him and is scheduled to be tried on this issue May 28.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today))

A nearly stationary front stretching from the central Plains region southeastward across Kentucky into the Carolinas was the main weather-maker on the map this morning.

Along this front and to the north of it, numerous thunderstorms were in progress. Sections of Kansas and Missouri, southern Illinois and Indiana, Kentucky and eastern Tennessee, into the Carolina mountains were experiencing thunderstorms and shower activity tho of diminishing intensity as is usually the case during morning hours.

A few isolated thunderstorms were reported in the Red River Valley of eastern North Dakota and western Minnesota and over the slopes of the Rockies in Colorado.

Elsewhere in the country, skies were mostly clear.

Early morning temperatures were on the cool side in New England and over the Great Lakes and central Appalachian region. Temperatures were in the 30s and 40s in these areas with scattered reports of light frost received from northern Maine.

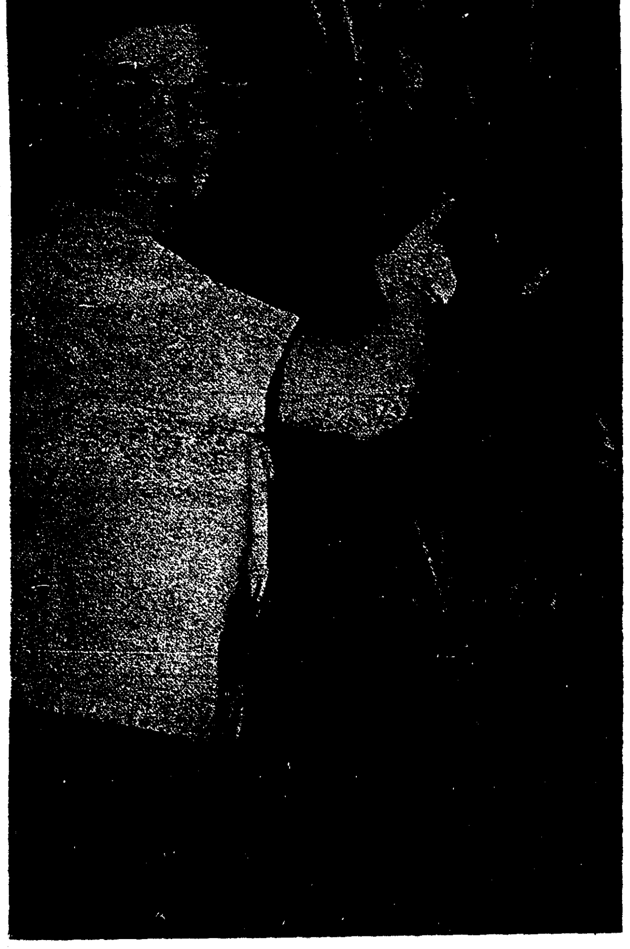
The southern states enjoyed summer-like weather with readings in the 60s and 70s. The 60s were also found in the desert southwest.

Elsewhere in the west, temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s with a fair scattering of 30s over the mountain areas.

ASCS Office To Be Open Saturday

The Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service office, 2351 E. Platte Ave., will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday for the convenience of farmers who need information on the forthcoming wheat referendum.

John Person, office manager of ASCS, urges farmers and other interested people to visit the office for information on the wheat program.



MONEY BEES—Karen Chess, employe of the Colorado Springs National Bank, bravely points to some 1,000 bees which swarmed to the bank Wednesday and landed in a tree on the Kiowa Street side of the building. Since the bees would not leave of their own accord, bank officials called a local bee-keeper who captured the Italian-type bees and removed them from the downtown area. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Cooper Set to Complete His Full 22 Orbit Flight

360 degrees on its yaw axis to take the "MIT jobbies."

He referred to a series of eight horizon pictures made especially for Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which is studying the possibility of using the horizon as a navigation reference point for spaceships returning from the moon.

"You have my sympathy," Grissom commented.

"I'm not complaining," Cooper replied.

Grissom then passed on some camera lens setting and filter suggestions from Mercury Control Center. Cooper went about his picture-taking business and sped across the southern United States to the start of his 17th earth orbit.

Cape Canaveral contacted Faith 7 at 9:09 a.m. and astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. commented on how well Cooper was conserving his fuel and oxygen.

"You sure are a miser on consummables," Shepard said. "You're saving things very well."

During the 16th orbit, Mercury Control Center at Cape Canaveral evaluated the condition of the astronaut and spacecraft systems and then waved Cooper's Faith 7 past a go-no-go decision point over Australia.

"Roger, very good," was Cooper's reaction when the tracking station at Muchea, Australia, relayed the good word.

If anything had been amiss, Cooper would have been ordered to fire his spacecraft reverse rockets over the eastern Pacific for a landing in the Atlantic Ocean.

Control center officials reported the pilot was "in excellent condition. He is strong, his attitude is good and he is managing his systems excellently."

Cooper, 36, an Air Force major completed his first 24 hours in space shortly after 8 a.m. while whirling eastward in his 16th orbit. During that time, he got a good night's rest of about 7½ hours.

"Did you have any dreams?" Cooper was asked as he passed near Cape Canaveral not long aft he awoke.

"Negative," he replied. "I slept too soundly."

Cooper wasn't saying much.

"I think he must be saving words for posterity or something," said Lt. Col. John A. Powers, the voice of Mercury Control.

But as a pilot, Cooper's performance topped anything by a U.S. astronaut so far.

His use of the fuel and oxygen supplies of his Faith 7 spacecraft were excellent. As his 16th orbit began, Powers reported that Cooper had 70 per cent of the fuel supply remaining in Faith 7's automatic control system, 90 per cent in the manual system. In his first 24 hours aloft, he consumed only 25 per cent of his primary oxygen supply and none of his emergency supply.

However, Powers said absolutely no consideration was being given to a possible extension of the flight past 22 orbits.

Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., said he had spoken to Cooper's wife, Trudy, in Houston, Tex., this morning and that she told him she had awakened about the same time her husband apparently awoke.

She wished to know when she could listen in again on the special radio installed in the Cooper home for the conversations between her husband and Cape Canaveral, Schirra said.

He added, "She's in good spirits."

Cooper went to sleep about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday night, after talking with astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., who is aboard the tracking ship Coastal Sentry off the coast of Japan. Tracking stations kept silent through the night.

And then at 5:26 a.m., Powers said, trackers in Muchea, Australia, "heard a familiar voice, and it was that of Gordon Cooper."

Cooper reported that he had some discomfort during the night when his spacesuit heated up. But he said he adjusted the temperature setting and went back to sleep.

Powers said the astronaut reported that "as far as he was concerned everything on the spacecraft was nominal."

Nominal is an astronaut word meaning normal.

If all goes as planned, Cooper's "Faith 7" spacecraft will parachute into the Pacific Ocean during the 22nd orbit, landing at 6:23 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, today some 80 miles southeast of Midway Island near the aircraft carrier, Kearsarge.

Early in the flight, and while Cooper, 36, chatted his way from sunset to sunset as if he did this sort of thing every day, the earth-bound technicians and scientists were jubilant.

After describing the operation as a "textbook flight" "perfect" and "beautiful," they described themselves as "overjoyed" — and then ran out of adjectives.

As for Cooper, he dined—sort of—around 5 p.m., some nine hours after he blasted aloft with a rumble and a flash from Cape Canaveral atop a 360,000-pound thrust Atlas rocket.

For food he had aboard some bite-sized protein packed cubes which he could consume, wrapping and all, and some squeeze tube stuff which has yet to be endorsed by gourmets.

During the 9th orbit—about 8:45 p.m.—the 47-pound Cooper reported he was knocking off work for a while.

With this word, the ground communications stations hung a verbal "do not disturb" sign on the "Faith 7."

However, when the spacecraft passed over the command ship Coastal Sentry off the coast of Japan, Cooper checked in with astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Said Glenn: "We had a message out around the range to keep things quiet."

Cooper: "Roger."

Glenn: "Did you say you were asleep just before this pass?"

Cooper: "I was daydreaming, looking out the window."

At this point, Glenn said he knew Cooper wanted to get some slumber and "We'll tell everyone to go away and leave you alone. Okay?"

It was difficult to tell whether Cooper yawned at this point, but if so, it was the longest distance yawn in history. In any case the "Roger" was asleepy one.

During the 11th orbit there was a moment when doctors thought the astronaut was dreaming. His heartbeat jumped suddenly to 100 beats a minute, and then dropped back to a steady 58 to 60 beats.

After a study of telemetry data, however, the space monitors said Cooper's spacesuit temperature had risen 20 degrees. He apparently awoke suddenly — causing the faster heartbeat — reset the temperature and went back to sleep.

Since Cooper had been launched on an inclination to the equator of 32.5 degrees and the earth kept moving under him, the capsule slipped more and more to the southeast from the Cape during the day.

He passed South Africa, Australia, India, Indo-China and mainland China.

On the 7th orbit Cooper had gone into drifting flight which meant the spacecraft was rotating aimlessly through the trajectory remained fixed by the ballistic impulse.

But it didn't make any difference to Cooper since he was weightless anyway and couldn't tell up from down.

As America's foremost space jockey, Cooper was so completely unawed by his experience that he took an unscheduled doze during his second orbit—which was understandable since he had been up since 2:50 a.m. Wednesday.

At one point early in the flight the Cape Canaveral capsule communicator, astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., asked Cooper, "Great sport, isn't it?"

Cooper's answer was a succinct, "Yeah."

Schirra was the holder of the previous U.S. record of nine hours and 13 minutes, set Oct. 3, 1962.

The world record is held by a Soviet Andrian Nikolayev, who began a 94-hour, 34-minute flight across 1,612,000 miles on Aug. 11, 1962. Cooper will go 600,000 miles at most.

Whatever else Cooper does, record or not, he will prove for American space scientists the ability of a man to survive and work during prolonged pace flight.

Over South Africa he tested the ability of an astronaut to sight three million-candlepower lights on the ground.

If he gives a favorable report such lights probably will be placed around the world to guide future astronauts back from trips to the moon.

This whole business started at 8:04 a.m. Wednesday whn Cooper blasted off Launch Pad 14 here. He went into a true orbital attitude over Bermuda at 17,546 jiles per hour.

Bermuda thus became the first low point on his flight — 100.2 miles—while he reached a maximum altitude of 165.8 miles initially over Australia. The elapsed time from low point to low point was 88.45 minutes.

In the course of his flight, Cooper became the first American astronaut to pass over Red China. He was to make six passes over mainland China.

The Chinese had no immediate comment.

President Kennedy watched the launch on a television set in his office.

In Japan, Europe, Africa and South Africa there were regular news reports on the progress of the flight. The Soviet's Tass news agency gave the flight only 62 words, but Radio Free Europe was beaming the report behind the iron curtain.

The attempt to beam live television to Europe however, was a flop because of a mixup which sent meaningless pictures and sound across the Atlantic via the [illegible] communications satellite. There was better reception later

Senior Citizen Recreation Studied by UF

A long range goal which includes the construction of a community center to meet recreational needs of people of all ages especially senior citizens was recommended as a result of a preliminary study done by the National Recreation Association, a United Fund agency, earlier this year. The N. R. A. recommended that the Colorado Springs Park and Recreation Department assume leadership in this project.

The report was presented early this week to the Senior Coordinating Council by Mrs. Harry S. Bunker, Chairman of the Planning Committee of the Pikes Peak United Fund. The Senior Coordinating Council requested that the United Fund arrange with the National Recreation Association to complete the study and present a plan for implementing the results as soon as possible.

Mrs. Verna Rensvold, of Kansas City, Mo., was the researcher assigned to the preliminary study.

Mrs. Rensvold recommended the following immediate steps and short term plans to meet needs for recreation, educational, and cultural activities for the aged.

1. Step up existing programs of private and public organizations, expanding the variety and frequency of activities.
2. Capitalize on interest shown in Seminars in which many older people participated who have not previously been involved.
3. Marshall all resources of the city and establish effective coordination, through the Senior Coordinating Council.
4. Employ one paid staff person, part time at first, to coordinate the program. The City Park and Recreation Department was recommended as the agency through which coordination could best be affected since the city would not have a limited clientele or circumscribed area of service such as the Senior Coordinating Council and the United Fund.

Tire Slashed; Radio, Hub Caps Reported Stolen

The sheriff's office reported, Wednesday that a tire on a car belonging to Mrs. James Anderson of 3113 N. Institute Ave. had been slashed and a radio stolen from the vehicle.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Newman said the slashing happened about one week ago and that the radio which is a transistor type and worth $49.95, was stolen Tuesday night. The vehicle was parked in front of Mrs. Anderson's home.

Four hub caps worth $40 were stolen from a car belonging to Raymond Langford of 1048 Norwood Ave. the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Edward Pakenham the car was parked at the N[illegible] [illegible]enne Mountain.

LeFevre Outlines Why He Founded 'Freedom School'

Introduced to the Young Republicans Wednesday night as a "controversial" figure, Editor Robert LeFevre of the Gazette Telegraph told the group, "I never feel controversial. I feel that the people of Colorado Springs are my friends. I don't have any enemies.

"Of course some people are angry at me, but that's their privilege."

As background for his discussion of the proposed Rampart College, LeFevre briefly sketched his own career and previous efforts to educate people in the doctrines of libertarianism.

As a volunteer in World War II, he said, he approved of the emergency measures passed by the government. He figured that they would be lifted after the war, since the government had promised they would be only for the duration.

But when he was mustered out after the hostilities ended, he found that many restrictions, such as the Office of Price Administration, were still in effect. A protest to his congressman elicited the reply that "the emergency is not over, the reasons for the OPA are more applicable than ever, and in fact we are looking for ways to strengthen it."

This, thought LeFevre, was the "negation of a contract." Conversations with friends revealed to him "a very dangerous series of conceptions being introduced into the body politic of the U.S.

"You heard of cells in schools, churches and governmental agencies . . . very dangerous, and deserving of the keenest attention."

Most leaders weren't subversives, he said — they did the best they knew — but still, the right to property and other rights were being impaired.

He made up his mind to study communism and fight it.

"I'll never forget my first brush with a card-carrying Communist," LeFevre said. Like LeFevre, he was a Los Angeles radio announcer.

"I was so morally certain I was right, I didn't prepare for the debate. I knew I would win.

"I never had a prayer. I was demolished, reduced to glittering generalities."

He found he was not alone in his inability to deal with the issues. A lecture tour of the U.S. revealed to him that this was the cause of the national malaise. Answers to a questionnaire he distributed to his audiences indicated that while they felt they knew what communism was and were against it, on specific issues such as the graduated income tax and subsidized housing, many were in agreement with Marx and Lenin.

"My fellow Americans were being led down the road to the collectivist state and they hadn't even taken the time to study what it is," said LeFevre.

He decided to make, with friends, a thoro study of the whole problem of freedom.

First they tried to meet one night a week for two hours. This failed, since they lost continuity from week to week and had to spend an inordinate amount of time reviewing.

Next they tried meeting three nights a week. This failed too because of absenteeism and the consequent delays involved in trying to catch people up.

And so, several years later after he had moved to Colorado Springs, LeFevre founded the Freedom School.

"To understand a complex philosophy you have to have a school," he said. "You have to make a point, stand on it, and make another. Otherwise, those who come in at Point Five will say, 'he's nuts.'"

This system, he continued, has succeeded beyond our wildest dreams.

At a question and answer period following the speech TV announcer John Bartholomew asked LeFevre whether he felt that most teachers of political science, especially in "Ivy League universities," knew about Marx and Lenin.

"Many have studied them," LeFevre replied.

"Do you feel that they are deliberately pro - communist?" Bartholomew continued.

"Let's say, many are deliberately pro-socialist," the speaker answered, noting that "pro-communism" connotes a pro-Russian bias that may not exist.

Another questioner asked whether everything proclaimed by Marx must necessarily be considered evil.

"I can prove, not that Marx is evil," replied LeFevre, "but that Marx is wrong."

'Bird Farm Land' Near Wasson Gets Soil Treatment

Members of the City Park and Recreation Department are currently engaged in soil conservation schooling work on city park land near Wasson High School, according to James Taylor, department director.

The 15 acres of land is located between the high school stadium and North Circle Drive and between Constitution Avenue and Patrician Way. It is sometimes known as the bird farm land.

Purpose of the work, Taylor said, is to establish a natural vegetation cover to prevent erosion and blowing dust. Some of the area is already covered with a stand of native grasses.

But Taylor said there is a problem on the west end of the tract where there are deep gullies caused by runoff and indiscriminate filling.

Once funds become available, a sprinkling system will be installed and more suitable grasses, trees and shrubs planted. Dr. John Monteith Jr., a part time department consultant and an expert in these matters, is assiting in the program.

The City Park and Recreation Department acquired the land from the State Game and Fish Department. More recently, there was an exchange of property that will give the state agency a new regional headquarters near the intersection of Madison and Weber Streets. The office is still at the old location.

Taylor said the same type of work is planned on a three-acre park site near Jefferson School.

Prowler Risks Life in Radio Station Entry

Someone unwittingly risked his life by entering a local radio station's transmitter building at 600 E. Brookside St. the sheriff's department reported Wednesday.

Clay Lockhart of KVOR received a call that someone was running in and out of the building. Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche said the doors had been pushed open but apparently nothing was taken.

He also said there was grave danger of an intruder being killed if he touched the wrong object as there is extremely high voltage equipment in the building.

Sheriff Reports Theft Of Spare Tire, Wheel

A spare tire and wheel worth a total of $175 was stolen from Roger Faye of 209 Cunningham Dr. the sheriff's department reported Wednesday.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Newman said the wheel and tire were under a trailer parked behind the W. W. Gas Ranch, 1207 S. Nevada Ave.

Memorial Day Decorations Go by Rules

Those who plan grave decorations at either Evergreen or Fairview Cemeteries prior to Memorial Day should first check with the office at each cemetery to determine what can and what can't be planted.

Since rules and regulations about planting are different for different blocks, "it is essential that all persons check first with the cemetery office," Dee Rhodes, superintendent at Evergreen Cemetery, said.

An explanation can also be obtained as to the adviseability of decorating graves with artificial flowers and plants.

"But a quick check with the two offices will eliminate any later problems which could arise from planting certain things in blocks which forbid it," Rhodes said.

Most of the region greenhouses and floral establishments are familiar with what can be planted where at the two city-maintained cemeteries.

Horse's 'Tumor' Turns Into Colt

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bell were grieved that their old mare, Topsy, was developing a large tumor and apparently hadn't long to live. But then Topsy was 23 years old so it wasn't too surprising.

The Bells looked out the window one morning to find that the "tumor" had turned into a colt which was running around the pasture. They named it Topsy Too.

Biery Attends City Managers Annual Meeting

Colorado Springs City Manager John M. Biery will be in Boulder the rest of the week attending an annual meeting of the International City Managers Association, Rocky Mountain Division.

This will be the 13th such meeting for Biery. The meeting in Boulder will be sponsored by the University of Colorado. Managers from several Rocky Mountain states will be in attendance.

One of the featured speakers at the conference will be Elder Gunter of Des Moines, Iowa, immediate past president of the International Association of City Managers. Warren F. Nolting of Chicago, executive director of the organization, will also attend.

Plans will be made at the Boulder meeting for the annual convention of the International Association of City Managers to be held Oct. 13-16 at the Denver Hilton Hotel.

Biery said that between 550 and 600 managers will attend the Denver meeting. Many will bring along other members of their families, too.

Colorado city managers will be hosts for the Denver convention in October. City Manager Jim Jensen of Arvada and City Manager Robert Wright of Aurora are co-chairmen in charge of arrangements.

Biery said that he will make plans for about 400 or so of the managers to take a trip to Colorado Springs for a tour of the Air Force Academy Oct. 15, plus maing arrangements for a dinner and entertainment.

'Interpretation' of Spy News Can Be Humorous

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. government has a staff of experts whose job is to study developments in other countries and try to figure out what they mean.

I think it is safe to assume that other countries have similar experts whose duty is to provide interpretations of events in the United States.

Presumably, as a routine matter foreign agents stationed here file reports to the home office on actions taken by the Congress.

If such is the case, it would be interesting to know how Soviet experts on American affairs will interpret the report they will receive this week on House passage of HR. 4274.

This is a bill to permit school teachers in the District of Columbia to paddle their students.

Just for the heck of ti, let us suppose that the commissar in charge of interpreting events in the United States is a comrade Samovar, and that his assistant is a comrade Babuska.

If we could penetrate their office deep inside the Kremlin, I fancy we would come upon a scene something like this:

"Comrade Babuska, there appears to be something wrong with this report. It says the U.S. House of Representatives has passed legislation to permit teachers to paddle their pupils."

"I have already checked that with the embassy in Washington, comrade Samovar. There is no mistake. That is the way the message was transmitted."

"Then it must be some sort of code. Take it to the code room and see if they can decipher it."

"I have already done so, comrade. It was not coded. The report was meant to be read as sent."

"Hmmmnnn. What is your thinking on it, comrade?"

"Perhaps there has been a big power shift. The President and the Supreme Court have ganged up on Congress and reduced it to the level of a school board."

"Good thinking, comrade. On the other hand, this may be the beginning of a new 'get tough' policy. Some of the congressmen who voted to paddle students are the same ones who have been demanding action on Cuba."

"That sounds plausible. However, we must not overlook the possibility that it is a plot against the President. His children will soon be of school age and his enemies may be seeking to strike at him through them."

"Yes, comrade, but such a plan could backfire. If the President vetoed the bill, children now in school would be certain to show their gratitude by voting for his kids when they grow up."

"Very well, comrade. Destroy the report and we will pretend we didn't receive it. Khrushchev would never believe it anyhow."

Monument Man Fined $20 on Speeding Charge

Samuel MacWhittier, 20, of Monument, was fined $20 and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Friday for speeding. MacWhittier was driving at 55 miles per hour in a 35 zone May 5 on Interstate Highway 25. State Patrolman J. Mathis was the officer.

Robert D. Pleasant 28, of 415 E. St. Vrain St. paid a $5 fine and costs for having no valid operator's license May 6. He was ticketed by State Patrolman C. W. Hubbard on Hancock Avenue.

State Patrolman John L. Baker gave a ticket to Gary Slater McKibber who was charged with allowing an unauthorized person to drive. McKibber, 22, of 16 N. 25th St. received the summons on U.S. Highway 85-87 April 28 and paid a $5 fine and costs.

27,000 Work Force Counted at Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—When Cape Canaveral first opened its gates in 1950, it had a working population of 850 and total area of 15,000 acres.

Present working force is 27,000, including 1,500 on a dozen down-range tracking stations stretching 9,000 miles to South Africa. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is acquiring land to increase the acreage to 140,743.

When construction and planning for the Apollo man-on-the-moon program is at a peak in 1965, experts estimate there will be 48,000 workers here.

Another Try Planned To Stop Denver Vote

DENVER (UPI)— The attorney for Denver Mayor candidate Sheldon Greene said Tuesday he would appeal to the Colorado Supreme Court a lower court ruling which dismissed his client's suit to block next week's municipal elections.

Denver Dist. Judge Robert W. Steele dismissed the suit Monday. Greene alleged candidates Bill Grant, Tom Currigan and incumbent Dick Batterton had violated the city charter in heir campaigns.

The suit claimed Batterton and Currigan were supported by political parties and all three had spent more than the $1,000 allowed for campaign expenses.

Steele ruled that the charter provisions deal only with city employes—not candidaes, thus opening the way for a suit after the election next Tuesday.

Attorney Edward S. Barlock said he doubted if the Supreme Court would act in time to remove the candidates names in time to block the election, but the appeal is being made "for the record" to show that he and Greene disagree with Steele's ruling.

Utah Asked to Protect Lake Powell Interests

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A Salt Lake County commissioner has called on the State of Utah to protect its interests in the Lake Powell area of southern Utah.

Commissioner C. W. Brady said the state will have to wait 10 years for recreational development on the lake if it does not take action. He said the Bureau of Reclamation is programming its recreation funds for projects on the Arizona side of the lake.

The lake is being formed by waters back up by Glen Canyon Dam just below the Utah-Arizona border.

West Rejects Soviet Protest on A-Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and West Germany have agreed on notes rejecting Soviet protests against a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force. The notes will be delivered in Moscow by next Monday.

Diplomatic informants said the theme of the Western replies will be that the proposed NATO multilateral nuclear weapons force is entirely defensive.

Meanwhile it was learned that Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin has been called home to Moscow for consultation on the state of East-West relations—and U.S.-Soviet relations, specifically—and plans to leave the middle of next week.

Ancient Egypt Ruins May Go Under Water

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) —Lack of money has compelled an international group to abandon plans to raise one of Egypt's most famous monuments into the air to escape the rising waters of the Nile Lake. But the temple at Abu Simbel, now in danger of being lost from view, may yet be saved if an English skin diver has his way.

He has come up with a novel idea for saving the 3,200-year-old temple in Egypt, which my soon disappear beneath the muddy waters of the Nile.

He is William MacQuitty, a Belfast film producer, and he proposes to build a light protective wall or "membrane" around the temples and fill the enclousre with filtered water.

MacQuitty argues that the filtered water would not only protect the temples from corrosion but would make them visible to sightseers viewing them from underwater chambers. The estimatel cost of the scheme is less than $14 million.

On a trip up the Nile last year, MacQuitty saw the temple, which is due to be flooded under 200 feet of water as a result of the construction of the new Aswan Dam. He was appalled at the prospect of this architectural wonder being lost to mankind.

Then MacQuitty remembered something that he had learned while skin diving. When a diver wishes to see an object clearly in muddy water or to mark it, he filled with clean water against the object.

Why not do the same with the Abu Simbel temples — submerge them in filtered water? He claims these advantages for his idea: it is less expensive than other schemes put forward; it would preserve the temples in their original position.

Meanwhile time is running out. The United Arab Republic and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) must decide soon whether to save the temple or to abandon it. If a rescue operation is agreed upon work must start immediately, for the Nile will begin to flood the area in October, 1964.

The temple was built 3,200 years ago by Rameses II, who left the landscape dotted with giant statues of himself. The Great Temple at Abu Simbel has four such statues of Rameses II, each 70 feet high, flanking its entrance. There are also decorated underground passages and rooms extending 200 feet into the cliff. The temple is so oriented that at sunrise a shaft of light strikes into the inner sanctuary.

A smaller temple nearby is dedicated to Rameses' queen, Nefertari.

Various schemes have been put forward for saving the temples, but most of them have been too costly. UNESCO's appeal for money has not been heeded.

In April, UNESCO was forced to reject as too expensive an Italian project to jack the face of the Great Temple up above the water level. This would have involved cutting the temple face from rock, encasing it in reinforced concerte and raising it 200 feet. The cost was estimated at $72 million, including landscaping.

From Italy has come another proposal to cut up the temples into numbered blocks by means of helicoidal wire such as is used to cut enormous pieces of marble out of the mountains at Carrara. The blocks would then be reassembled at Shallal, near the Aswan Dam.

The protective membrane to be built around the temples is the key to MacQuitty's scheme. Of reinforced concrete, corrugated for stability, the membrane would enclose clean water on the temple side and keep it constantly at the same level as the Nile side.

Elevators would take sightseers down to airconditioned galleries built in the thickness of the mzmbrane, from which the visitors could see the temples through underwater windows. From the galleries a tunnel would be set into the floor of the temple, and sightseers could go into viewing chambers within the underground halls.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

Mrs. Myrtle Solls and Marie Hill of Colorado Springs were calling in the Hanover community Tuesday. Miss Hill is a resident of the Stratton Home and Mrs. Solls and Miss Hill usually take a drive and have lunch together on Tuesdays.

Charles Chisman Jr. has been at Pearl Harbor since the latter part of April. The Kearsarge was a rescue ship for the astronaut who was launched Wednesday.

Dan DeGroot's grandson, Chad Mitchell and his trio were featured on Jack Linkletter's proram May 11th. The trio sings and seems to be gaining fast in the entertainment world.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Reble and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reble and Mrs. Maude Patterson of Colorado Springs spent Mother's Day with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Jimmy. Lawrence and Francis visited the Fred Days.

Bill Ward of Fountain Valley was elected treasurer of District 28 last Tuesday, since Paul Pease did not choose to run. Two names were entered: Bill Ward and Bill Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chisman, Rev. and Mrs. Edie of Colorado Springs had lunch May 11th with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chisman.

Mr. and Mrs. Huston Peach of Fountain, parents of Mrs. Alta Baker, are planning to move into the Causey house. They plan to build on the Reynolds place, where they have a small acreage later. We welcome the Peaches to our community.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hartley of Colorado Springs had dinner May 12th with Mrs. Grace Finch and Mrs. Laura Longstreth. Mrs. Longstreth was visiting Mrs. Finch.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chisman and Brenda and Sheryl of Colorado Springs, drove out to Roy Chismans for Mother's Day afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dickson and family spent the week-end with the Vette and Dickson families, honoring both mothers. They were dinner guests at the Bennie Dicksons. Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Vette, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Dickson and family and Allen Dickson were also dinner guests.

Ruth Christian from Greeley called by phone Sunday to wish her mother a happy Mother's Day.

In the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Vette drove to Colorado Springs to call on their mothers, Mrs. Marie Vette and Mrs. Cora Van Dusen.

The youth talent service was held Sunday evening at the Hanover Community Church. There were several musical numbers given by the young folks. There was also a short message from the book of St. John read by the Rev. Bud McGuire and group singing. Claude Vette had charge of the music.

Rev. and Mrs. Claude Wilson of Havlin, Kan., plan to return to their home in Colorado Springs next month. The Wilsons have been away for 8 years.

There was a meeting at the Soil Conservation Headquarters east of Colorado Springs last Wednesday, May 8, explaining the wheat program. They are also trying to get help for three counties that are in trouble because of the drouth. The store of hay is depleted in the area and they thought hay might have to be brought in from Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. Herring, their son and two daughters from Pueblo, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baker and family.

Baccalaureat services will be held at the Hanover Community Church May 19th at 8 p.m. Rev. Bud McGuire will be the speaker. Graduation will be held at Hanover School May 23 at 8 p.m. Rev. Mr. Walleys of Colorado Springs will be the speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Baker entertained the intermediate room of Hanover School at a birthday party Sunday, May 12 from 2 to 4 p.m., honoring their son, David B. Day.

Mrs. Betsy Demmler entertained Friday afternoon at a painting party. Those attending were Mrs. Bessy Adams, Fern Demmler, Karen Million, Fannie Reble, Nellie and Betty Dickson, Rosa Baker and Virginia Pease. Mrs. Cleo Carson [illegible].

There was a Bible School Teacher's training class held at the Joe Gianesin home Saturday morning. Those attending from Hanover Church were Mrs. A. L. Vette, Fannie Reble, Nettie Huffmaster and two girls, Judy McGuire and Virginia Reble.

After lunch, the ladies tied bundles of clothing to be sent overseas.

Mrs. Nettie Huffmaster attended a meeting in the afternoon of the Community Church of God in Colorado Springs.

The girl's 4-H Club met on the afternoon of May 10th, after school, with Reta Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Jimmy had supper with Mrs. Maude Patterson on May 11th.

Virginia and Jimmy attended the stock car races Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reble. Then the Lawrence Rebles brought Virginia and Jimmy home and spent the night at the W. D. Rebles'.

Turn Toward Survival

(Christian Economics)

Under the leadership of Norman Thomas and a number of well-known Quakers, a new pacifist organization, Turn Toward Peace, has been set up with headquarters in New York. In a recently issued pamphlet, "American Initiatives," it says:

"Two great powers are engaged in a struggle to preserve their national security and way of life. Each believes, and can cite evidence, that the other presents a threat to its own safety."

Turn Toward Peace thus repeats the error, common to many conscientious and well-meaning people who are striving to solve the problem of war, of assuming that the United States and Russia are equally guilty of attitudes and practices which make the threat of war ever present.

The plain fact is that the responsibility for the ever-present threat of war arises from the inherent nature of communism—that its survival depends upon blotting out freedom, free enterprise, self-government and capitalism everywhere. As long as these exist, affording living demonstrations that life is better under the Western system, they are a mortal threat to communism. Communists hate private property and capitalism with a ferocious and consuming desire to obliterate them and all who believe in them. The living proof that life is much better in West Berlin than in East Berlin, in West Germany than in East Germany and in the free world than in the enslaved Communist world poses a threat to the existence of communism. Therefore, communism must destroy the Western system if it hopes to survive.

There is nothing inherent in Western ideology that compels it to destroy communism. If the people of the world were allowed freedom of choice as to which system they prefer, the two might exist peacefully side by side until it became evident that communism or socialism is vastly inferior as means of achieving the good life. Then would come the voluntary turn to the Western system of freedom, self-government and free enterprise. Realizing that this is inevitable, unless they destroy capitalism, the Communists are at our throats. Because they press the battle our only hope of survival is to destroy communism.

At the close of World War II we disarmed, sank our munitions in the North Sea and brought our soldiers home. This was a case of unilateral disarmament. We set an example which, if the Communists had followed, would have eliminated the Tensions that disturb the world. Instead of showing a peaceful, non-aggressive attitude, however, Communist Russia continued to expand and aggressively took over one country after another. As we saw the slave system advancing, with every prospect of continuing until it overflowed the whole world, including ourselves, if we did not resist it, the American people realized that they were being driven to the necessity of rearming. They accepted this burden reluctantly because they knew it was vastly expensive, but they rightly saw no other way to prevent the communization of the world.

In the face of these well-known facts, to assume that the United States is equally guilty with Russia for the danger of the warlike preparations now taking place, is tragically erroneous. It is just what the Communists want us to believe. They wish to put as much as possible of the blame of this era of tension and danger upon the West. Actually, if they had retired to their borders as we did after World War II, and if they had disarmed as we did, there would be no tension and threat of war in the world today.

In view of the fact that communism assumed the aggressive attitude that called forth self-defense on the part of the West, to blame each side equally for our present difficulty is not only erroneous but dangerous in the extreme.

If that view prevails and the American people accept the policy of unilateral disarmament advocated by Turn Toward Peace, it will be equivalent to suicide. There is no question that the program of Turn Toward Peace, shared by many pacifist organizations, produces high glee in Russia and Peiping. If it prevails, communism will achieve a cheap triumph throughout the world.

Consider some of the specific proposals in the pamphlet in question: "Announce American support of plans for a disarmed Germany in a nuclear - free central European zone."

In other words, neutralize and render helpless our strongest ally. What could be more pleasing to the Communists?

Announce that the United States will make no more nuclear tests, regardless of Soviet action."

In other words, render ourselves increasingly helpless as the Soviets improve their knowledge of nuclear science.

". . . Invite the Soviet Union to 'plug in' on our ballistic missile early warning system."

That is — allow Moscow to know the exact instant at which we become aware of the fact that the Communists have launched a nuclear attack against us.

"Invite the UN to inspect U.S. bases, test facilities and military installations."

That is, make them aware of our strength and our plans for self-defense.

"End production of fissionable material for nuclear weapons purposes and invite the UN to inspect our facilities."

In other words, make the Russian who mans the military desk at UN fully aware of our nuclear situation and end the production of these materials so that the Communists could quickly achieve ascendancy in this field.

"Give U.S. support and offer of financial help to the establishment of a UN police force."

In other words, turn over to the Russian Communist who sits at the military desk at UN whatever international police force may be established. If it is a strong one, that will put the Communists in control.

"Repeal the Connally Reservation, which permits the U.S to decide for itself which cases involving us will be submitted to World Court."

In other words, in the event that the World Court has a majority of Communist judges, which may well happen at any time, to voluntarily put ourselves in the clutches of our enemies. No Communist nation adheres to the World Court, yet the nationals of all of them are eligible to serve as judges upon it. Assume that at some future time a majority of these judges are Communists. That is not an unlikely assumption. Then assume that Russia demands Alaska, that Mexico asks for the southwestern part of our country, that Panama asks for the Panama Canal and Cuba the Guantanamo Base. These decisions would certainly go against us. They would dismember our country and render us helpless before communism. Retention of the Connally Reservation is a must if we are to remain an independent nation.

"Invite 1,000 Soviet teachers, journalists and jurists to undertake at our expense a three-month lecture tour of the U.S."

In other words, pay the expenses of 1,000 additional spies and propagandists to help undermine, deceive and mislead our people.

"Invite 5,000 Soviet tourists to vacation at our expense in the U.S."

Soviet tourists are spies. Do we want them so much that we offer to pay their expenses?

"Offer to underwrite the cost of a network of UN radio stations in the U.S and to help finance similar stations in any country willing to allow them free operation."

In other words, to vastly increase throughout the world the Socialist and Communist propaganda being put out by UN. Let it be remembered that the Socialist and Communist nations already have a large and increasing majority in UN. This proposal would therefore place at the disposal of our enemies vastly increased radio facilities for deceiving and betraying the people of the world.

I cannot imagine any program, short of outright capitulation, that would be more beneficial to our enemies, the Communists, than the proposal contained in this Turn Toward Peace pamphlet.

Reds Owe U.N. 83 Million

From Life Lines

Soviet Russia and eight satellites owe the United Nations $83,-081,575. Soviet Russia owes $70,-348,493, of which more than half is her share of the cost of the Congo operation.

Moscow has already announced it will not pay the $70.3 million because some of the assessments are illegal — and topping that list of alleged illegalities is the Congo cost.

The Russian default has been largely financed by the recent $200 million UN bond issue. The United States picked up half of that issue.

In addition, the United States pays 32 per cent of all UN assessments.

Americans must ask themselves if it is in the American tradition to help finance economic chaos, irritable non-participation based subversive aims, and the horrible plans which the communists have in store for mankind, all of which are present in the United Nations.

The Intellectual and the Market Place

By DR. GEORGE J. STIGLER

Professor of American Institutions, and Director of the Walgreen Foundation, in the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago

The intellectual has never felt kindly toward the market place: to him it has always been a place of vulgar men and of base motives. Whether this intellectual was an ancient Greek philosopher, who viewed economic life as an unpleasant necessity which should never be allowed to become obtrusive or dominant, or whether this intellectual is a modern man, who focuses his scorn on gadgets and Madison Avenue, the basic similarity of view has been pronounced.

Now you and I are intellectuals, as this word is used. I am one automatically because I am a professor, and buy more books than golf clubs. You are intellectuals because you are drawn from the most intelligent tenth of the population, most of you will go on to graduate school, and you would rather be a United States senator or a Nobel Laureate than the head of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. The question I wish to pose to us is not whether we should love the market place — even a professor of economics of outrageously conservative tendencies cannot bring himself to say that the chants of five auctioneers rival a Mozart quintet. The questions are rather: What don't we like about the market place; and are we sure that our attitudes are socially useful?

Let us begin by noticing that from certain important viewpoints one would have expected the intellectuals to be very kindly disposed toward the system of private enterprise which I call the market place.

First, if I may introduce a practical consideration, intellectuals by and large have elevated tastes — they like to eat, dress, and live well, and especially to travel. The late Walton Hamilton, lawyer and economist, once said that our customary salutation, "Good Day," was a vestige of an agricultural society where people were asking for good weather, and he expected city dwellers eventually to greet each other with the phrase, "Low Prices." If Hamilton's theory is correct, the intellectuals will come to the salutation, "Fair Fulbright."

Since intellectuals are not inexpensive, until the rise of the modern enterprise system no society could afford many intellectuals. As a wild guess, the full-time intellectuals numbered 200 in Athens in the extraordinary age of Pericles, or about one for every 1,500 of population. And at most times in later history the intellectuals fell far, far short of this proportion. Today there are at least 1,000,000 in the United States, taking only a fraction of those who live by pen and tongue into account, or one for each 200 of population. At least four out of every five of us owe our pleasant lives to the great achievements of the market place. We professors are much more beholden to Henry Ford than to the foundation which bears his name and spreads his assets.

Not only have the productive achievements of the market place supported a much enlarged intellectual class, but also the leaders of the market place have personally been strong supporters of the intellectuals, and in particular those in the academic world. If one asks where, in the western university world, the freedom of inquiry of professors has been most staunchly defended and energetically promoted, my answer is this: Not in the politically controlled universities, whether in the United States or Germany — legislatures are not overpopulated with tolerant men indifferent to popularity. Not in the self-perpetuating faculties, such as Oxford and Cambridge from 1700 to 1850 — even intellectuals can become convinced that they have acquired ultimate truth, and that it can be preserved indefinitely by airing it before students once a year. No, inquiry has been most free in the college whose trustees are a group of top quality leaders of the market place — men who, our experience shows, are remarkably tolerant of almost everything except a mediocre and complacent faculty. Economics provides many examples: If a professor wishes to denounce aspects of big business, as I have, he will be wise to locate in a school whose trustees are big businessmen, and I have.

But debts are seldom the basis for friendship, and there is a much more powerful reason the intellectual might be sympathetic to the market place: The organizing principles of both areas are the same.

An enterprise system is a system of voluntary contract. Neither fraud nor coercion is within the ethics of the market system. Indeed there is no possibility of coercion in a pure enterprise system because the competition of rivals provides alternatives to every buyer or seller. All real economic systems contain some monopoly, and hence some coercive power for particular individuals, but the amount and the extent of such monopoly power are usually much exaggerated, and in any case monopoly is not an integral part of the logic of the system.

The intellectual world, and I speak chiefly but not exclusively of scholarship, is also a voluntary system. Its central credo is that opinions are to be formed thru free discussion on the basis of full disclosure of evidence. Fraud and coercion are equally repugnant to the scholar. The freedom of thought is preserved by the open competition of scholars and ideas. Authority, the equivalent of monopoly power, is the great enemy of freedom of inquiry. Competition in scholarship is in some ways more violent than in business: The law sets limits on the disparagement of a rival's product, unless it is done in a book review in a learned journal.

Just as real markets have some fraud and monopoly which impair the claims for the market place, so the intellectual world has its instances of coercion and deception, with the coercion exercised by claques and fashion. But again these deviants are outside the logic of the system.

Both areas, moreover, are democratic. The intellectual believes that every able and willing young person should get a good education whatever his race or financial background. The market believes every able and willing person should be permitted to enter any industry or occupation, whatever his race or educational background. There is food for thought in the fact that racial discrimination has diminished earlier, faster, and more quietly in the market place than in political life.

The analogies could be pursued much farther, altho not without danger of alienating all professors and most businessmen. I shall therefore merely mention, in passing, that both fields pay a fair amount of attention to packaging and advertising, and both fields place an absurdly high value on originality. There are also many minor differences, such as that the intellectual has no desire to know the market place, whereas the businessman wishes, or at least believes he wishes, to know the world of the intellectual. The basic fact is that the intellectual believes in the free market in ideas and, what is not quite the same thing, in words.

Yet whatever the latent sympathies of the intellectual for the market place, the hostilities are overt. The contempt for the "profit motive" which directs economic activity is widespread, and the suspicion of the behavior to which it leads is deep-seated. The charge that American society is materialistic has been recited more often than the Declaration of Independence, and has been translated into more foreign languages.

In one basic respect I believe that the criticism by the intellectuals is misplaced, and at times even hypocritical. The American economy produces many goods that are vulgar, silly, or meretricious, as judged by standards which I share with many intellectuals. It seems only proper to cite a few examples, if only to show how selective these standards are. I shall not propose the currently most popular item, the large and powerful automobile, because I have observed that mostly intellectuals of short stature criticize our cars. But other examples are at hand. I am dissatisfied with the taste of the nine-tenths of the population which believes that nonfictional books are to be read only by young people working for their B.A. I am dissatisfied with a population whose love for interesting music is so narrow that every symphony orchestra requires subsidies. I consider it shocking that more Americans have read "The Affluent Society" than "The Wealth of Nations."

At the risk of appearing reasonable, I wish to qualify this complaint by observing that the tastes of the American public are more elevated than those of any other large society in history. Most societies have been judged by their cultural aristocracies — indeed in earlier periods the vast majority of the population was not even considered to be a part of the culture of the society, for this vast majority was illiterate, tradition-bound, with most people living brutishly in peasant huts. Our society's tastes are judged by those of the vast majority of the population, and this majority is generous, uncomplacent, and hard-working, with unprecedentedly large numbers engaged in further self-education, or eagerly patronizing the arts. Our market-supported legitimate theatre, which is surely the best in the world, is a suggestive measure of popular tastes.

These qualifications are not intended to withdraw the charge that the public's tastes should be better, and for that matter, that the intellectual's tastes should be better. It is in fact a basic function of the intellectual to define the standards of good taste more clearly, and to persuade people to approach them more closely. It is proper to denounce vulgarity of taste, and to denounce it more strongly the more popular it is. It is permissible to reject certain desires completely — as we do when by compulsory education laws we reject the desire for illiteracy — altho there is a strong presumption against the use of force in the area of tastes.

When I say that the complaints of deficiencies in tastes are misplaced when they are directed to the market place, I mean just that. The market place responds to the tastes of consumers with the goods and services that are salable, whether the tastes are elevated or depraved. It is unfair to criticize the market place for fulfilling these desires, when clearly the defects lie in the popular tastes themselves. I consider it a cowardly concession to a false extension of the idea of democracy to make sub rosa attacks on public tastes by denouncing the people who serve them. It is like blaming the waiters in restaurants for obesity.

To escape this response, the more sophisticated intellectuals have argued that people are told what to want by the market place — that advertising skilfully depraves and distorts popular desires. There is no doubt an element of truth in this response, but it is an element of trifling size. The advertising industry has no sovereign power to bend men's wills — we are not children who blindly follow the last announcer's instructions to rush to the store for soap. Moreover, advertising itself is a completely neutral instrument, and lends itself to the dissemination of highly contradictory desires. While the automobile industry tells us not to drink while driving, the bourbon industry tells us not to drive while drinking. The symphony orchestra advertises, and gets much free publicity, in its rivalry with the dance band. Our colleges use every form of advertising, and indeed the typical university catalogue would never stop Diogenes in his search for an honest man.

So I believe the intellectuals would gain in candor and in grace if they preached directly to the public instead of using advertising as a whipping boy. I believe they would gain also in virtue if they would examine their own tastes more critically: when a good comedian and a production of Hamlet are on rival channels, I wish I could be confident that less than half the professors were laughing.

The main indictment by the intellectual, however, is that the market place operates on the principle of self-interest, and in fact thru competition compels even the philanthropic businessman to become self-serving. Self-interest, often described with such neutral words as egotism, greed, and dog-eat-dog, is viewed as a crass, antisocial element of man's character and an economic system that rests upon, and inculcates, this motive achieves little admiration. In fact, a dislike for profit-seeking is one of the few specific attitudes shared by the major religions.

I also find naked selfishness an unendearing trait, but I have trouble in separating it from the more admirable motives related to it. A prudent regard for one's own survival is generally applauded even if the individual does not say, "I got out of the way of the oncoming train only to spare my Sunday School class pain." The violent endeavors of an athlete to defeat his rivals are much admired, providing the contest is more or less fair, even tho the winner is expected not to say, "I am glad I won chiefly because I'm vain, but secondarily for the honor of Sheboygan High School."

Even in fields somewhat removed from the athletic arena, the roles of self-interest and what for lack of a better name I shall call benevolence are perplexingly interwoven. I have spent my life among college teachers, altho admittedly in the most competitive branch of research and publication. In one sense the disinterest of my colleagues is beyond doubt: I have seen silly people — public officials as well as private, by the way — try to buy opinions but I have not seen or even suspected any cases in which any important economist sold his professional convictions. It is also true that many of the best professors, and many of the worst, could earn more in other callings.

But on the other hand, the motives that drive them and me are not completely clear, either. When we strive to solve a scientific problem, is ambition for our own professional status completely overshadowed by our love of knowledge? I wonder. When we write an article to demonstrate the fallacies of someone else's work, is our hatred for error never mixed with a tiny bit of glee at the display of our own cleverness? I wonder.

To shift elsewhere, I have never encountered a political candidate who said: "I am running for office because I, with my dear wife and future administrative assistant, can earn more in politics than elsewhere." Nor do I expect to. But the language of public interest surely covers a good many acres of self-interest.

A major source of the view that the market place places special values on self-interest, beyond those more or less evident in all human behavior, is the belief that one man's gain is another's loss — that business, like the so-called friendly poker session, is a zero-sum game. Not so.

On the one hand, it must be recognized that the great source of market gains is the productivity of the participants. Unlike the poker game, the wealth of our society has been doubling even on a per capita basis every 25 years, and the doubling has been due to the labors and ingenuity of the men in the market place. Of course there are also incomes achieved by monopoly rather than by efficiency, by fraud rather than by output, but it would be a wholly extravagant estimate that they amount to 10 per cent of the income of the market place. There is room for improvement here, but there is vastly more room to admire the prodigious production achievements of the market place.

On the other hand, I would emphasize that most of the gains from innovation in the market place are passed on to the community at large. A new idea may yield handsome profits for a time, but the rapid rush of competition soon drives the price of the product down to a modest level. Ballpoint pens were first marketed at $12.50 to those penmen eager to write under water (and, judging by my experience, only under water); they rapidly fell in price and as you know are now so cheap that you have no economic excuse if you do not write the Great American Novel. Sears, Roebuck and Company, and Montgomery Ward, made a good deal of money in the process of improving our rural marketing structure, but I am convinced that they did more for the poor farmers of America than the sum total of the federal agricultural support programs of the last 28 years.

It is an interesting illustration of the great influence of the intellectual that the market place itself has become apologetic of its pursuit of profit. The captains of industry now, in a world in which public relations are becoming as important as efficiency, list among their major achievements the great number of bowling alleys or college fellowships they have given to their employees. To boast that large profits demonstrate great efficiency in producing existing products and introducing new ones is considered even by them to be too archaic a form of thought for public consumption. The patron saint of economics, Adam Smith, once wrote:

"I have never known much good done by those who affected to trade for the public good. It is an affectation, indeed, not very common among merchants, and very few words need be employed in dissuading them from it."

I wonder what those very few words were.

To return to the intellectuals, their dislike for the profit motive of the market place no doubt rests in part on a failure to understand its logic and workings. It is a fact painful to record that the level of economic literacy has not risen noticeably in the twentieth century. Indeed as professional economics becomes more complicated and its practitioners use an increasingly more formidable apparatus, there seems to have been retrogression in our ability to communicate with other intellectuals. Less than a century ago a treatise on economics began with a sentence such as, "Economics is a study of mankind in the ordinary business of life." Today it will often begin: "This unavoidably lengthy treatise is devoted to an examination of an economy in which the second derivatives of the utility function possess a finite number of discontinuities. To keep the problem manageable, I assume that each individual consumes only two goods, and dies after one Robertsonian week. Only elementary mathematical tools such as topology will be employed, incessantly."

But misunderstanding is not the whole explanation: I cannot believe that any amount of economic training would wholly eliminate the instinctive dislike for a system of organizing economic life thru the search for profits. It will still appear to many intellectuals that a system in which men were driven by a reasonably selfless devotion to the welfare of other men would be superior to one in which they sought their own preferment. This ethic is deeply imbedded in the major religions.

I personally also believe that the good society will be populated by people who place a great value on other people's welfare. This is, however, not the only attribute of the good society, and in particular in the good society a man should be free within the widest possible limits of other men's limitations on his beliefs and actions. This great ethic of individual freedom clashes with that of benevolence, for I can seldom do positive good to another person without limiting him. I can, it is true, simply give him money, but even in this extreme case where I seem to place no bonds on him, he inevitably faces the question of what conduct on his part will lead me to give money to him again. Usually I will find it hard to be content to do so little good — giving money to improve a man's food or housing or health will seem as inefficient as giving him gasoline so he will drive more often to museums. Hence when I give money I shall also insist that it be spend on housing, or on medical care for his children, or on growing wheat in the way that I think is socially desirable, or on the collected works of Burke and de Tocqueville, or of Marx and Lenin. A patron tends to be paternalistic, in a nice way, of course. I am not saying that benevolence is bad, but that like everything else it can be carried to excess.

One final question on motives — why are they so important? Am I to admire a man who injures me in an awkward and mistaken attempt to protect me, and am I to despise a man who to earn a good income performs for me some great and lasting service? Oddly enough, I suspect our answer is that motive makes a difference — that it is less objectionable to be injured by an incompetent benefactor than by a competent villain. But I leave with you the question: Are motives as important as effects?

Several charges related to the dominance of self-inerest have rounded out the intellectual's indictment of the market place:

First, the system makes no provision for men whose talents and interests are not oriented to profit-seeking economic activity.

Second, there are cumulative tendencies toward increasing inequality of wealth, which — if unchecked — will polarize the society into a great number of poor and a few very rich.

Third, the game in the market place is unfair in that inheritance of property plays an immensely larger role in success than the efforts of the individuals themselves.

I shall comment briefly on each of these assertions.

The first charge is true — the market place will not supply income to a man who will not supply something which people want. People have enormously varied desires, but not enough of them wish to hire men to engage in research on ancient languages nor, sixty years ago, did they hire men to study quantum mechanics. The market place does not provide an air force or alms for the poor. It does not even supply babies. I conclude that a society needs more than a market place.

The second charge, that there are accumulative tendencies to ever-increasing inequality of wealth, is untrue. I would indeed ignore the charge for fear of reprimand from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Straw Men, were it not that this straw man is so popular. In plain historical fact, the inequality in the distribution of income has been diminishing, and the diminution has been due to market forces even more than to governmental efforts. It is also worth noting that a modern market economy has a less unequal income distribution than in either centrally directed or unindustrialized economies.

The third charge, that inheritance of property plays a dominant role in the distribution of income in the market place, is an overstatement. Inheritance of property is important, but it will give some perspective to the charge to notice that property income is only one-fifth of national income, and inherited property is less than half of all property, so less than 10 per cent of all income is governed by inheritance of property.

No useful purpose would be served by trying to appraise the proper role of inheritance of property in a few passing remarks. We should have to look carefully at the effects of inheritance on incentives: we should have to look at gifts during life, which are almost equivalent to bequests; and we should have to decide whether privately endowed colleges do enough good to offset the inevitable high-living heirs — whether we can have Carleton College without having Tommy Manville.

But our greatest problem would be that inheritance extends far beyond a safe deposit box full of bonds and stocks. I have told you that you are intelligent: I now add that the chief reason you are intelligent is that your parents are intelligent. Some of you, especially the younger of you, may find this unbelievable: Mark Twain said he was astonished by how much his father had learned during the short time it took Mark to grow from 18 to 21. But inheritance of ability is important, probably more important in its effects on the distribution of income than is the inheritance of property. So a full account of the proper role of inheritance would have to extend to ability, and perhaps even to name and reputation, as the junior senator from Massachusetts might agree. The social and legal institutions governing inheritance in our society are surely open to improvement, but we are unlikely to improve them if we are guided by nothing more than naive egalitarianism.

And now to my final point. We are great believers in the human mind, we intellectuals, and in its ability to conquer an every larger part of the immense domain of ignorance. But we have not made much use of the mind in reaching our views on the economic organization appropriate to the good society so far as its basic cultural values go. It is clear that the kinds of traits that are fostered in man are influenced by (but of course not only by) the way economic life is organized — after all, thruout history men have spent half their waking hours in economic activity.

Important as the moral influences of the market place are, they have not been subjected to any real study. The immense proliferation of general education, of scientific progress, and of democracy are all coincidental in time and place with the emergence of the free enterprise system of organizing the market place. I believe this coincidence was not accidental. The economic progress of the past three centuries was both cause and effect of this general growth of freedom. The dominant era of the free market place was in the Nineteenth Century. I believe, but with less confidence, that the absence of major wars in that century — the only peaceable century in history — was related to this reign of liberty. I believe again with less confidence, that the contemporary transformation of the British public from a violent and unruly people into a population of almost painful Victorian rectitude was related to this reign of liberty.

These beliefs may be right or wrong, but they are not matters of taste. They are hypotheses concerning the relationship between economic and social organization, and are subject to analytical development and empirical testing. It is time that we did so, high time. Our ruling attitude toward the market place has not changed since the time of Plato. Is it not possible that it is time to rethink the question?

The American Way

The Road to Prosperity

By HARRY BROWNE

What determines the standard of living of a nation of people?

Obviously, it is dependent upon the amount of usable goods and services that those people can produce for themselves.

If the labors of most of them are directed toward the production of things that people want and need — and if labor-saving devices can be created to allow each person to produce more — then that society of people will enjoy a high standard of living.

But suppose that very few of the employable people are actually producing usable goods. What then? Obviously, the nation will have a low standard of living. Because too many people will be required to share the production of too few people. Most of the people will then have little or none of the necessities of life.

'MAKE WORK'

In the latter case, it may be true that most of the employable people are actually working — but still the standard of living is low. This is because those employed people are not producing usable things. They may be working at government "make work" projects, or in the armed services, or producing defense weapons — or working in an unneeded area that is kept alive by government subsidies.

In all of these ways, the individual is actually contributing nothing to the standard of living. He is, instead, using up the labors of others to support his non-productive activity. You just can't raise a standard of living by producing things that no one can use.

DECEPTION

It is amazing then that government can — with a straight face — proclaim that government spending creates prosperity. How can the government, by taking the fruits of productive labor and diverting it to non-productive uses, possibly be increasing our welfare? It is an impossibility.

How can the government by taxing the American family approximately $100 per year for the support of foreign governments possibly be doing that family a favor?

There is only one way to create prosperity. That is to let the people retain that which they earn. Then they will spend it on the things they really need and want. Then we will see the nation's productive capacity geared to usable things — and our standards of living can skyrocket.

Memorial Day Decorations Go by Rules

Those who plan grave decorations at either Evergreen or Fairview Cemeteries prior to Memorial Day should first check with the office at each cemetery to determine what can and what can't be planted.

Since rules and regulations about planting are different for different blocks, "it is essential that all persons check first with the cemetery office," Dee Rhodes, superintendent at Evergreen Cemetery, said.

An explanation can also be obtained as to the advisability of decorating graves with artificial flowers and plants.

"But a quick check with the two offices will eliminate any later problems which could arise from planting certain things in blocks which forbid it," Rhodes said.

Most of the region greenhouses and floral establishments are familiar with what can be planted where at the two city-maintained cemeteries.

Horse's 'Tumor' Turns Into Colt

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) —Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bell were grieved that their old mare, Topsy, was developing a large tumor and apparently hadn't long to live. But then Topsy was 23 years old so it wasn't too surprising.

The Bells looked out the window one morning to find that the "tumor" had turned into a colt which was running around the pasture. They named it Topsy Too.

Biery Attends City Managers Annual Meeting

Colorado Springs City Manager John M. Biery will be in Boulder the rest of the week attending an annual meeting of the International City Managers Association, Rocky Mountain Division.

This will be the 13th such meeting for Biery. The meeting in Boulder will be sponsored by the University of Colorado. Managers from several Rocky Mountain states will be in attendance.

One of the featured speakers at the conference will be Elder Gunter of Des Moines, Iowa, immediate past president of the International Association of City Managers. Warren F. Nolting of Chicago, executive director of the organization, will also attend.

Plans will be made at the Boulder meeting for the annual convention of the International Association of City Managers to be held Oct. 13-16 at the Denver Hilton Hotel.

Biery said that between 550 and 600 managers will attend the Denver meeting. Many will bring along other members of their families, too.

Colorado city managers will be hosts for the Denver convention in October. City Manager Jim Jensen of Arvada and City Manager Robert Wright of Aurora are co-chairmen in charge of arrangements.

Biery said that he will make plans for about 400 or so of the managers to take a trip to Colorado Springs for a tour of the Air Force Academy Oct. 15, plus maing arrangements for a dinner and entertainment.

'Interpretation' of Spy News Can Be Humorous

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. government has a staff of experts whose job is to study developments in other countries and try to figure out what they mean.

I think it is safe to assume that other countries have similar experts whose duty is to provide interpretations of events in the United States.

Presumably, as a routine matter foreign agents stationed here file reports to the home office on actions taken by the Congress.

If such is the case, it would be interesting to know how Soviet experts on American affairs will interpret the report they will receive this week on House passage of HR 4274.

This is a bill to permit school teachers in the District of Columbia to paddle their students.

Just for the heck of it, let us suppose that the commissar in charge of interpreting events in the United States is a comrade Samovar, and that his assistant is a comrade Babuska.

If we could penetrate their office deep inside the Kremlin, I fancy we would come upon a scene something like this:

"Comrade Babuska, there appears to be something wrong with this report. It says the U.S. House of Representatives has passed legislation to permit teachers to paddle their pupils."

"I have already checked that with the embassy in Washington, comrade Samovar. There is no mistake. That is the way the message was transmitted."

"Then it must be some sort of code. Take it to the code room and see if they can decipher it."

"I have already done so, comrade. It was not coded. The report was meant to be read as sent."

"Hmmmnnn. What is your thinking on it, comrade?"

"Perhaps there has been a big power shift. The President and the Supreme Court have ganged up on Congress and reduced it to the level of a school board."

"Good thinking, comrade. On the other hand, this may be the beginning of a new 'get tough' policy. Some of the congressmen who voted to paddle students are the same ones who have been demanding action on Cuba."

"That sounds plausible. However, we must not overlook the possibility that it is a plot against the President. His children will soon be of school-age and his enemies may be seeking to strike at him through them."

"Yes, comrade, but such a plan could backfire. If the President vetoed the bill, children now in school would be certain to show their gratitude by voting for his kids when they grow up."

"Very well, comrade. Destroy the report and we will pretend we didn't receive it. Khrushchev would never believe it anyhow."

Monument Man Fined $20 on Speeding Charge

Samuel MacWhittier, 20, of Monument, was fined $20 and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Friday for speeding. MacWhittier was driving at 55 miles per hour in a 35 zone May 5 on Interstate Highway 25. State Patrolman J. Mathis was the officer.

Robert D. Pleasant 28, of 415 E. St. Vrain St. paid a $5 fine and costs for having no valid operator's license May 6. He was ticketed by State Patrolman C. W. Hubbard on Hancock Avenue.

State Patrolman John L. Baker gave a ticket to Gary Slater McKibber who was charged with allowing an unauthorized person to drive. McKibber, 22, of 16 N. 25th St. received the summons on U.S. Highway 85-87 April 28 and paid a $5 fine and costs.

27,000 Work Force Counted at Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —When Cape Canaveral first opened its gates in 1950, it had a working population of 850 and total area of 15,000 acres.

Present working force is 27,000, including 1,500 on a dozen down-range tracking stations stretching 9,000 miles to South Africa. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is acquiring land to increase the acreage to 140,743.

When construction and planning for the Apollo man-on-the-moon program is at a peak in 1965, experts estimate there will be 48,000 workers here.

Benson Urges Farmers to Vote 'No'

CHICAGO (UPI)—Former Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson Tuesday urged farmers to vote "no" in the wheat refrendum May 21.

Benson issued a statement at the 55th annual convention of the American Feed Manufacturing Association here. It said the wheat certificate plan "would reduce farmers' freedom to manage their own farms, decrease their efficiency, restrict markets and encumber the whole wheat marketing process."

Benson said the referendum gives farmers the choice between "government regimentation and freedom." He said farmers wanted "more freedom and less government in agriculture."

The real issue, said Benson, is whether farmer or the federal government will manage the nation's farms.

"The farms of America cannot and should not be run from a desk in Washington," he said.

Benson was awarded a recognition plaque at the convention.

Four other past secretaries of agriculture received plaques from the association in recognition for their work in agriculture. They included: Claude R. Wickard, Charles F. Brannan, Henry A. Wallace, and Clinton P. Anderson.

Steel Inventory Not Large, Report Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy steel buying by big users isn't producing as large an inventory buildup as a year ago, The Iron Age said today.

The metalworking weekly said reserve stocks were expected to reach a 78 days' supply by the end of June, or about 17.3 million tons of steel in hands of all consuming industries.

The year-ago peak, reached in April 1962, amounted to about 18.7 million tons, an 89-day supply.

Nationwide production showed its 14th gain in 15 weeks last week when output totaled 2,548,000 tons of ingots and steel for castings.

A slackening of demand is expected to follow clarification of the wage contract situation, and elimination of any strike threat by a new contract settlement.

No date has been set yet for a start of wage talks.

In the Philippine labor force, farmers, fishermen and forestry workers comprise some 60 per cent of the working population.

More Colorado Counties May Seek U.S. Aid

DENVER (UPI)—The State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Services (ASCS) said today five more counties had made inquiries about requesting federal drought disaster aid.

The newest inquiries, from Adams, Otero, Las Animas, Pueblo, and Crowley Counties, bring to 16 the counties which have either asked for or are expected to request designation as federal drought disaster areas.

Allan Funk, acting state ASCS director, said forms for applying for the aid had been sent the five counties and answers from them and from five others which earlier made inquiries were expected within the next few days.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture State Disaster Committee will meet at 9:30 a.m. Friday to consider any formal requests received by that time.

The state committee already has approved and sent to Washington requests for drought disaster designation for Las Animas, Baca, Prowers and southeast Kiowa Counties.

Requests are expected to be sent by the state committee on behalf of El Paso and Fremont.

Counties which have the state forms and are expected to apply, in addition to the five most recent, are Teller, Jefferson, Lake, Chaffee, and Custer.

In addition, Baca and Prowers of the original group are expected to ask a second designation in order to qualify for additional federal aid.

The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) also has recommended that short - term, low-interest emergency federal loans be made available to farmers in 29 Colorado counties.

Japan is the world's foremost ship exporter. Its shipbuilding for other countries in 1962 reached 1,017,870 gross tons, worth $230 million dollars.

Friends of Love's Children Transported

DENVER (AP) — Two Colorado Highway Patrol cars, as well as the governor's own limousine were pressed into service Monday to carry friends of 10-year-old Beck Love from a bus station to the governor's mansion, Gov. John A. Love said here.

The youngsters, he said, were classmates of his daughter when she attended Broadmoor Elementry School before moving to Denver last winter.

The children came to Denver on a bus for the one day visit.

The subject came up at a news conference when reporters asked about the incident. The governor said it took place and added, "I specifically didn't handle the matter."

Patrol Chief Gilbert R. Carrel said the cars were not taken off the highways but were vehicles attached to headquarters. He said the cars were manned by headquarters personnel.

The first public recitation of 'Casey at the Bat' was in 1888.

Turn Toward Survival

(Christian Economics)

Under the leadership of Norman Thomas and a number of well-known Quakers, a new pacifist organization, Turn Toward Peace, has been set up with headquarters in New York. In a recently issued pamphlet, "American Initiatives," it says:

"Two great powers are engaged in a struggle to preserve their national security and way of life. Each believes, and can cite evidence, that the other presents a threat to its own safety."

Turn Toward Peace thus repeats the error, common to many conscientious and well - meaning people who are striving to solve the problem of war, of assuming that the United States and Russia are equally guilty of attitudes and practices which make the threat of war ever present.

The plain fact is that the responsibility for the ever-present threat of war arises from the inherent nature of communism—that its survival depends upon blotting out freedom, free enterprise, self - government and capitalism everywhere. As long as these exist, affording living demonstrations that life is better under the Western system, they are a mortal threat to communism. Communists hate private property and capitalism with a ferocious and consuming desire to obliterate them and all who believe in them. The living proof that life is much better in West Berlin than in East Berlin, in West Germany than in East Germany and in the free world than in the enslaved Communist world poses a threat to the existence of communism. Therefore, communism must destroy the Western system if it hopes to survive.

There is nothing inherent in Western ideology that compels it to destroy communism. If the people of the world were allowed freedom of choice as to which system they prefer, the two might exist peacefully side by side until it became evident that communism or socialism is vastly inferior as means of achieving the good life. Then would come the voluntary turn to the Western system of freedom, self-government and free enterprise. Realizing that this is inevitable, unless they destroy capitalism, the Communists are at our throats. Because they press the battle our only hope of survival is to destroy communism.

At the close of World War II we disarmed, sank our munitions in the North Sea and brought our soldiers home. This was a case of unilateral disarmament. We set an example which, if the Communists had followed, would have eliminated the Tensions that disturb the world. Instead of showing a peaceful, non - aggressive attitude, however, Communist Russia continued to expand and aggressively took over one country after another. As we saw the slave system advancing, with every prospect of continuing until it overflowed the whole world, including ourselves, if we did not resist it, the American people realized that they were being driven to the necessity of rearming. They accepted this burden reluctantly because they knew it was vastly expensive, but they rightly saw no other way to prevent the communization of the world.

In the face of these well-known facts, to assume that the United States is equally guilty with Russia for the danger of the warlike preparations now taking place, is tragically erroneous. It is just what the Communists want us to believe. They wish to put as much as possible of the blame of this era of tension and danger upon the West. Actually, if they had retired to their borders as we did after World War II, and if they had disarmed as we did, there would be no tension and threat of war in the world today.

In view of the fact that communism assumed the aggressive attitude that called forth self-defense on the part of the West, to blame each side equally for our present difficulty is not only erroneous but dangerous in the extreme.

If that view prevails and the American people accept the policy of unilateral disarmament advocated by Turn Toward Peace, it will be equivalent to suicide. There is no question that the program of Turn Toward Peace, shared by many pacifist organizations, produces high glee in Russia and Peiping. If it prevails, communism will achieve a cheap triumph throughout the world.

Consider some of the specific proposals in the pamphlet in question: "Announce American support of plans for a disarmed Germany in a nuclear - free central European zone."

In other words, neutralize and render helpless our strongest ally. What could be more pleasing to the Communists?

"Announce that the United States will make no more nuclear tests, regardless of Soviet action."

In other words, render ourselves increasingly helpless as the Soviets improve their knowledge of nuclear science.

". . . Invite the Soviet Union to 'plug in' on our ballistic missile early warning system."

That is — allow Moscow to know the exact instant at which we become aware of the fact that the Communists have launched a nuclear attack against us.

"Invite the UN to inspect U.S. bases, test facilities and military installations."

That is, make them aware of our strength and our plans for self-defense.

"End production of fissionable material for nuclear weapons purposes and invite the UN to inspect our facilities."

In other words, make the Russian who mans the military desk at UN fully aware of our nuclear situation and end the production of these materials so that the Communists could quickly achieve ascendancy in this field.

"Give U.S. support and offer of financial help to the establishment of a UN police force."

In other words, turn over to the Russian Communist who sits at the military desk at UN whatever international police force may be established. If it is a strong one, that will put the Communists in control.

"Repeal the Connally Reservation, which permits the U.S. to decide for itself which cases involving us will be submitted to World Court."

In other words, in the event that the World Court has a majority of Communist judges, which may well happen at any time, to voluntarily put ourselves in the clutches of our enemies. No Communist nation adheres to the World Court, yet the nationals of all of them are eligible to serve as judges upon it. Assume that at some future time a majority of these judges are Communists. That is not an unlikely assumption. Then assume that Russia demands Alaska, that Mexico asks for the southwestern part of our country, that Panama asks for the Panama Canal and Cuba the Guantanamo Base. These decisions would certainly go against us. They would dismember our country and render us helpless before communism. Retention of the Connally Reservation is a must if we are to remain an independent nation.

"Invite 1,000 Soviet teachers, journalists and jurists to undertake at our expense a three-month lecture tour of the U.S."

In other words, pay the expenses of 1,000 additional spies and propagandists to help undermine, deceive and mislead our people.

"Invite 5,000 Soviet tourists to vacation at our expense in the U.S."

Soviet tourists are spies. Do we want them so much that we offer to pay their expenses?

"Offer to underwrite the cost of a network of UN radio stations in the U.S. and to help finance similar stations in any country willing to allow them free operation."

In other words, to vastly increase throughout the world the Socialist and Communist propaganda being put out by UN. Let it be remembered that the Socialist and Communist nations already have a large and increasing majority in UN. This proposal would therefore place at the disposal of our enemies vastly increased radio facilities for deceiving and betraying the people of the world.

I cannot imagine any program, short of outright capitulation, that would be more beneficial to our enemies, the Communists, than the proposal contained in this Turn Toward Peace pamphlet.

The Intellectual and the Market Place

By DR. GEORGE J. STIGLER

Professor of American Institutions, and Director of the Walgreen Foundation, in the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago

The intellectual has never felt kindly toward the market place: to him it has always been a place of vulgar men and of base motives. Whether this intellectual was an ancient Greek philosopher, who viewed economic life as an unpleasant necessity which should never be allowed to become obtrusive or dominant, or whether this intellectual is a modern man, who focuses his scorn on gadgets and Madison Avenue, the basic similarity of view has been pronounced.

Now you and I are intellectuals, as this word is used. I am one automatically because I am a professor, and buy more books than golf clubs. You are intellectuals because you are drawn from the most intelligent tenth of the population, most of you will go on to graduate school, and you would rather be a United States senator or a Nobel Laureate than the head of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. The question I wish to pose to us is not whether we should love the market place — even a professor of economics of outrageously conservative tendencies cannot bring himself to say that the chants of five auctioneers rival a Mozart quintet. The questions are rather: What don't we like about the market place, and are we sure that our attitudes are socially useful?

Let us begin by noticing that from certain important viewpoints one would have expected the intellectuals to be very kindly disposed toward the system of private enterprise which I call the market place.

First, if I may introduce a practical consideration, intellectuals by and large have elevated tastes — they like to eat, dress, and live well, and especially to travel. The late Walton Hamilton, lawyer and economist, once said that our customary salutation, "Good Day," was a vestige of an agricultural society where people were asking for good weather, and he expected city dwellers eventually to greet each other with the phrase, "Low Prices." If Hamilton's theory is correct, the intellectuals will come to the salutation, "Fair Fulbright."

Since intellectuals are not inexpensive, until the rise of the modern enterprise system no society could afford many intellectuals. As a wild guess, the full-time intellectuals numbered 200 in Athens in the extraordinary age of Pericles, or about one for every 1,500 of population. And at most times in later history the intellectuals fell far, far short of this proportion. Today there are at least 1,000,000 in the United States, taking only a fraction of those who live by pen and tongue into account, or one for each 200 of population. At least four out of every five of us owe our pleasant lives to the great achievements of the market place. We professors are much more beholden to Henry Ford than to the foundation which bears his name and spreads his assets.

Not only have the productive achievements of the market place supported a much enlarged intellectual class, but also the leaders of the market place have personally been strong supporters of the intellectuals, and in particular those in the academic world. If one asks where, in the western university world, the freedom of inquiry of professors has been most staunchly defended and energetically promoted, my answer is this: Not in the politically controlled universities, whether in the United States or Germany — legislatures are not overpopulated with tolerant men indifferent to popularity. Not in the self-perpetuating faculties, such as Oxford and Cambridge from 1700 to 1850 — even intellectuals can become convinced that they have acquired ultimate truth, and that it can be preserved indefinitely by airing it before students once a year. No, inquiry has been most free in the college whose trustees are a group of top quality leaders of the market place — men who, our experience shows, are remarkably tolerant of almost everything except a mediocre and complacent faculty. Economics provides many examples: If a professor wishes to denounce aspects of big business, as I have, he will be wise to locate in a school whose trustees are big businessmen, and I have.

But debts are seldom the basis for friendship, and there is a much more powerful reason the intellectual might be sympathetic to the market place. The organizing principles of both areas are the same.

An enterprise system is a system of voluntary contract. Neither fraud nor coercion is within the ethics of the market system. Indeed there is no possibility of coercion in a pure enterprise system because the competition of rivals provides alternatives to every buyer or seller. All real economic systems contain some monopoly, and hence some coercive power for particular individuals, but the amount and the extent of such monopoly power are usually much exaggerated, and in any case monopoly is not an integral part of the logic of the system.

The intellectual world, and I speak chiefly but not exclusively of scholarship, is also a voluntary system. Its central credo is that opinions are to be formed thru free discussion on the basis of full disclosure of evidence. Fraud and coercion are equally repugnant to the scholar. The freedom of thought is preserved by the open competition of scholars and ideas. Authority, the equivalent of monopoly power, is the great enemy of freedom of inquiry. Competition in scholarship is in some ways more violent than in business. The law sets limits on the disparagement of a rival's product, unless it is done in a book review in a learned journal.

Just as real markets have some fraud and monopoly which impair the claims for the market place, so the intellectual world has its instances of coercion and deception, with the coercion exercised by claques and fashion. But again these deviants are outside the logic of the system.

Both areas, moreover, are democratic. The intellectual believes that every able and willing young person should get a good education whatever his race or financial background. The market believes every able and willing person should be permitted to enter any industry or occupation, whatever his race or educational background. There is food for thought in the fact that racial discrimination has diminished earlier, faster, and more quietly in the market place than in political life.

The analogies could be pursued much farther, altho not without danger of alienating all professors and most businessmen. I shall therefore merely mention, in passing, that both fields pay a fair amount of attention to packaging and advertising, and both fields place an absurdly high value on originality. There are also many minor differences, such as that the intellectual has no desire to know the market place, whereas the businessman wishes, or at least believes he wishes, to know the world of the intellectual. The basic fact is that the intellectual believes in the free market in ideas and, what is not quite the same thing, in words.

Yet whatever the latent sympathies of the intellectual for the market place, the hostilities are over. The contempt for the "profit motive" which directs economic activity is widespread, and the suspicion of the behavior to which it leads is deep-seated. The charge that American society is materialistic has been recited more often than the Declaration of Independence, and has been translated into more foreign languages.

In one basic respect I believe that the criticism by the intellectuals is misplaced, and at times even hypocritical. The American economy produces many goods that are vulgar, silly, or meretricious, as judged by standards which I share with many intellectuals. It seems only proper to cite a few examples, if only to show how selective these standards are. I shall not propose the currently most popular item, the large and powerful automobile, because I have observed that mostly intellectuals of short stature criticize our cars. But other examples are at hand. I am dissatisfied with the taste of the nine-tenths of the population which believes that non-fictional books are to be read only by young people working for their B.A. I am dissatisfied with a population whose love for interesting music is so narrow that every symphony orchestra requires subsidies. I consider it shocking that more Americans have read "The Affluent Society" than "The Wealth of Nations."

At the risk of appearing reasonable, I wish to qualify this complaint by observing that the tastes of the American public are more elevated than those of any other large society in history. Most societies have been judged by their cultural aristocracies — indeed in earlier periods the vast majority of the population was not even considered to be a part of the culture of the society, for this vast majority was illiterate, tradition-bound, with most people living brutishly in peasant huts. Our society's tastes are judged by those of the vast majority of the population, and this majority is generous, uncomplacent, and hard-working, with unprecedentedly large numbers engaged in further self-education, or eagerly patronizing the arts. Our market-supported legitimate theatre, which is surely the best in the world, is a suggestive measure of popular tastes.

These qualifications are not intended to withdraw the charge that the public's tastes should be better, and for that matter, that the intellectual's tastes should be better. It is in fact a basic function of the intellectual to define the standards of good taste more clearly and to persuade people to approach them more closely. It is proper to denounce vulgarity of taste, and to denounce it more strongly the more popular it is. It is permissible to reject certain desires completely — as we do when by compulsory education laws we reject the desire for illiteracy — altho there is a strong presumption against the use of force in the area of tastes.

When I say that the complaints of deficiencies in tastes are misplaced when they are directed to the market place, I mean just that. The market place responds to the tastes of consumers with the goods and services that are salable, whether the tastes are elevated or depraved. It is unfair to criticize the market place for fulfilling these desires, when clearly the defects lie in the popular tastes themselves. I consider it a cowardly concession to a false extension of the idea of democracy to make sub rosa attacks on public tastes by denouncing the people who serve them. It is like blaming the waiters in restaurants for obesity.

To escape this response, the more sophisticated intellectuals have argued that people are told what to want by the market place — that advertising skilfully depraves and distorts popular desires. There is no doubt an element of truth in this response, but it is an element of trifling size. The advertising industry has no sovereign power to bend men's wills — we are not children who blindly follow the last announcer's instructions to rush to the store for soap. Moreover, advertising itself is a completely neutral instrument, and lends itself to the dissemination of highly contradictory desires. While the automobile industry tells us not to drink while driving, the bourbon industry tells us not to drive while drinking. The symphony orchestra advertises, and gets much free publicity, in its rivalry with the dance band. Our colleges use every form of advertising, and indeed the typical university catalogue would never stop Diogenes in his search for an honest man.

So I believe the intellectuals would gain in candor and in grace if they preached directly to the public instead of using advertising as a whipping boy. I believe they would gain also in virtue if they would examine their own tastes more critically: when a good comedian and a production of Hamlet are on rival channels, I wish I could be confident that less than half the professors were laughing.

The main indictment by the intellectual, however, is that the market place operates on the principle of self-interest, and in fact thru competition compels even the philanthropic businessman to become self-serving. Self-interest, often described with such neutral words as egotism, greed, and dog-eat-dog, is viewed as a crass, antisocial element of man's character and an economic system that rests upon, and inculcates, this motive achieves little admiration. In fact, a dislike for profit-seeking is one of the few specific attitudes shared by the major religions.

I also find naked selfishness an unendearing trait, but I have trouble in separating it from the more admirable motives related to it. A prudent regard for one's own survival is generally applauded even if the individual does not say, "I got out of the way of the oncoming train only to spare my Sunday School class pain." The violent endeavors of an athlete to defeat his rivals are much admired, providing the contest is more or less fair, even tho the winner is expected not to say, "I am glad I won chiefly because I'm vain, but secondarily for the honor of Sheboygan High School."

Even in fields somewhat removed from the athletic arena, the roles of self-interest and what for lack of a better name I shall call benevolence are perplexingly interwoven. I have spent my life among college teachers, altho admittedly in the most competitive branch of research and publication. In one sense the disinterest of my colleagues is beyond doubt: I have seen silly people — public officials as well as private, by the way — try to buy opinions but I have not seen or even suspected any cases in which any important economist sold his professional convictions. It is also true that many of the best professors, and many of the worst, could earn more in other callings.

But on the other hand the motives that drive them and me are not completely clear, either. When we strive to solve a scientific problem, is ambition for our own professional status completely overshadowed by our love of knowledge? I wonder. When we write an article to demonstrate the fallacies of someone else's work, is our hatred for error never mixed with a tiny bit of glee at the display of our own cleverness? I wonder.

To shift elsewhere, I have never encountered a political candidate who said "I am running for office because I, with my dear wife and future administrative assistant, can earn more in [illegible] this than elsewhere. [illegible] expect to. But the language of public interest surely covers a good many acres of self-interest.

A major source of the view that the market place places special values on self-interest, beyond those more or less evident in all human behavior, is the belief that one man's gain is another's loss — that business, like the so-called friendly poker session, is a zero-sum game. Not so.

On the one hand, it must be recognized that the great source of market gains is the productivity of the participants. Unlike the poker game, the wealth of our society has been doubling even on a per capita basis every 25 years, and the doubling has been due to the labors and ingenuity of the men in the market place. Of course there are also incomes achieved by monopoly rather than by efficiency, by fraud rather than by output, but it would be a wholly extravagant estimate that they amount to 10 per cent of the income of the market place. There is room for improvement here, but there is vastly more room to admire the prodigious production achievements of the market place.

On the other hand, I would emphasize that most of the gains from innovation in the market place are passed on to the community at large. A new idea may yield handsome profits for a time, but the rapid rush of competition soon drives the price of the product down to a modest level. Ball-point pens were first marketed at $12.50 to those penmen eager to write under water (and, judging by my experience, only under water); they rapidly fell in price and as you know are now so cheap that you have no economic excuse if you do not write the Great American Novel. Sears, Roebuck and Company, and Montgomery Ward, made a good deal of money in the process of improving our rural marketing structure, but I am convinced that they did more for the poor farmers of America than the sum total of the federal agricultural support programs of the last 28 years.

It is an interesting illustration of the great influence of the intellectual that the market place itself has become apologetic of its pursuit of profit. The captains of industry now, in a world in which public relations are becoming as important as efficiency, list among their major achievements the great number of bowling alleys or college fellowships they have given to their employees. To boast that large profits demonstrate great efficiency in producing existing products and introducing new ones is considered even by them to be too archaic a form of thought for public consumption. The patron saint of economics, Adam Smith, once wrote:

"I have never known much good done by those who affected to trade for the public good. It is an affectation, indeed, not very common among merchants, and very few words need be employed in dissuading them from it."

I wonder what those very few words were.

To return to the intellectuals, their dislike for the profit motive of the market place no doubt rests in part on a failure to understand its logic and workings. It is a fact painful to record that the level of economic literacy has not risen noticeably in the twentieth century. Indeed as professional economics becomes more complicated and its practitioners use an increasingly more formidable apparatus, there seems to have been retrogression in our ability to communicate with other intellectuals. Less than a century ago a treatise on economics began with a sentence such as, "Economics is a study of mankind in the ordinary business of life." Today it will often begin: "This unavoidably lengthy treatise is devoted to an examination of an economy in which the second derivatives of the utility function possess a finite number of discontinuities. To keep the problem manageable, I assume that each individual consumes only two goods, and dies after one Robertsonian week. Only elementary mathematical tools such as topology will be employed, incessantly."

But misunderstanding is not the whole explanation: I cannot believe that any amount of economic training would wholly eliminate the instinctive dislike for a system of organizing economic life thru the search for profits. It will still appear to many intellectuals that a system in which men were driven by a reasonably selfless devotion to the welfare of other men would be superior to one in which they sought their own preferment. This ethic is deeply imbedded in the major religions.

I personally also believe that the good society will be populated by people who place a great value on other people's welfare. This is, however, not the only attribute of the good society, and in particular in the good society a man should be free within the widest possible limits of other men's limitations on his beliefs and actions. This great ethic of individual freedom clashes with that of [illegible] positive good to another person without limiting him. I can, it is true, simply give him money, but even in this extreme case where I seem to place no bonds on him, he inevitably faces the question of what conduct on his part will lead me to give money to him again. Usually I will find it hard to be content to do so little good — giving money to improve a man's food or housing or health will seem as inefficient as giving him gasoline so he will drive more often to museums. Hence when I give money I shall also insist that it be spend on housing, or on medical care for his children, or on growing wheat in the way that I think is socially desirable, or on the collected works of Burke and de Tocqueville, or of Marx and Lenin. A patron tends to be paternalistic, in a nice way, of course. I am not saying that benevolence is bad, but that like everything else it can be carried to excess.

One final question on motives — why are they so important? Am I to admire a man who injures me in an awkward and mistaken attempt to protect me, and am I to despise a man who to earn a good income performs for me some great and lasting service? Oddly enough, I suspect our answer is that motive makes a difference — that it is less objectionable to be injured by an incompetent benefactor than by a competent villain. But I leave with you the question: Are motives as important as effects?

Several charges related to the dominance of self-interest have rounded out the intellectual's indictment of the market place:

First, the system makes no provision for men whose talents and interests are not oriented to profit-seeking economic activity.

Second, there are cumulative tendencies toward increasing inequality of wealth, which — if unchecked — will polarize the society into a great number of poor and a few very rich.

Third, the game in the market place is unfair in that inheritance of property plays an immensely larger role in success than the efforts of the individuals themselves.

I shall comment briefly on each of these assertions.

The first charge is true — the market place will not supply income to a man who will not supply something which people want. People have enormously varied desires, but not enough of them wish to hire men to engage in research on ancient languages nor, sixty years ago, did they hire men to study quantum mechanics. The market place does not provide an air force or alms for the poor. It does not even supply babies. I conclude that a society needs more than a market place.

The second charge, that there are accumulative tendencies to ever-increasing inequality of wealth, is untrue. I would indeed ignore the charge for fear of reprimand from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Straw Men, were it not that this straw man is so popular. In plain historical fact, the inequality in the distribution of income has been diminishing, and the diminution has been due to market forces even more than to governmental efforts. It is also worth noting that a modern market economy has a less unequal income distribution than in either centrally directed or unindustrialized economies.

The third charge, that inheritance of property plays a dominant role in the distribution of income in the market place, is an overstatement. Inheritance of property is important, but it will give some perspective to the charge to notice that property income is only one-fifth of national income, and inherited property is less than half of all property, so less than 10 per cent of all income is governed by inheritance of property.

No useful purpose would be served by trying to appraise the proper role of inheritance of property in a few passing remarks. We should have to look carefully at the effects of inheritance on incentives; we should have to look at gifts during life, which are almost equivalent to bequests; and we should have to decide whether privately endowed colleges do enough good to offset the inevitable high-living heirs — whether we can have Carleton College without having Tommy Manville.

But our greatest problem would be that inheritance extends far beyond a safe deposit box full of bonds and stocks. I have told you that you are intelligent. I now add that the chief reason you are intelligent is that your parents are intelligent. Some of you, especially the younger of you, may find this unbelievable: Mark Twain said he was astonished by how much his father had learned during the short time it took Mark to grow from 18 to 21. But inheritance of ability is important, probably more important in its effects on the distribution of income than is the inheritance of property. So a full account of the proper role of inheritance would have to extend to ability, and perhaps even to name and reputation, as the junior senator from Massachusetts might agree. The social and legal institutions governing inheritance in our society are surely open to improvement, but we are unlikely to improve them if we are guided by nothing more than naive egalitarianism.

And now to my final point. We are great believers in the human mind, we intellectuals, and in its ability to conquer an every larger part of the immense domain of ignorance. But we have not made much use of the mind in reaching our views on the economic organization appropriate to the good society so far as its basic cultural values go. It is clear that the kinds of traits that are fostered in man are influenced by (but of course not only by) the way economic life is organized — after all, thruout history men have spent half their waking hours in economic activity.

Important as the moral influences of the market place are, they have not been subjected to any real study. The immense proliferation of general education, of scientific progress, and of democracy are all coincidental in time and place with the emergence of the free enterprise system of organizing the market place. I believe this coincidence was not accidental. The economic progress of the past three centuries was both cause and effect of this general growth of freedom. The dominant era of the free market place was in the Nineteenth Century. I believe, but with less confidence, that the absence of major wars in that century — the only peaceable century in history — was related to this reign of liberty. I believe again with less confidence, that the contemporary transformation of the British public from a violent and unruly people into a population of almost painful Victorian rectitude was related to this reign of liberty.

These beliefs may be right or wrong, but they are not matters of taste. They are hypotheses concerning the relationship between economic and social organization, and are subject to analytical development and empirical testing. It is time that we did so, high time. Our ruling attitude toward the market place has not changed since the time of Plato. Is it not possible that it is time to rethink the question?

The American Way

The Road to Prosperity

By HARRY BROWNE

What determines the standard of living of a nation of people?

Obviously, it is dependent upon the amount of usable goods and services that those people can produce for themselves.

If the labors of most of them are directed toward the production of things that people want and need — and if labor-saving devices can be created to allow each person to produce more — then that society of people will enjoy a high standard of living.

But suppose that very few of the employable people are actually producing usable goods. What then? Obviously, the nation will have a low standard of living. Because too many people will be required to share the production of too few people. Most of the people will then have little or none of the necessities of life.

'MAKE WORK'

In the latter case, it may be true that most of the employable people are actually working — but still the standard of living is low. This is because those employed people are not producing usable things. They may be working at government "make work" projects, or in the armed services, or producing defense weapons — or working in an unneeded area that is kept alive by government subsidies.

In all of these ways, the individual is actually contributing nothing to the standard of living. He is, instead, using up the labors of others to support his non-productive activity. You just can't raise a standard of living by producing things that no one can use.

DECEPTION

It is amazing then that government can — with a straight face — proclaim that government spending creates prosperity. How can the government, by taking the fruits of productive labor and diverting it to non-productive uses, possibly be increasing our welfare? It is an impossibility.

How can the government by taxing the American family approximately $100 per year for the support of foreign governments possibly be doing that family a favor?

There is only one way to create prosperity. That is to let the people retain that which they earn. Then they will spend it on the things they really need and want. Then we will see the nation's productive capacity geared to usable things — and our standards of living can skyrocket.

District 11 Now Registering Summer Program Students

All District 11 schools this week are registering pupils for summer school programs, and on May 17 elementary schools will register children who will enter kindergarten in September.

Kindergarten pupils must be five-years-old by Dec. 31, and must present a birth certificate or other proof of age at the time of registration. Either the parents, or other adult may register a child at the elementary school within whose boundaries he lives from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., May 17. The child does not have to be present.

Elementary schools are now accepting registrations for summer sessions at Stratton, Queen Palmer, and Washington Schools. The program is for children in grades one thru six and includes both enriched and remedial courses.

Classes will meet Monday thru Friday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., starting June 17. Tuition for the six weeks is $25.

The junior high schools are now registering pupils for both the junior and senior high summer programs. Junior high pupils may take enriched courses in general science and the humanities, or remedial work in reading, arithmetic, and English.

Junior high classes will meet at Horace Mann from 8:30 to 9:55 a.m. and from 10:05 to 11:30 a.m., starting June 17. Tuition is $15 for one course and $25 for two.

Many of the more than 30 courses offered at Palmer High School are open to ninth graders as well as high school students. Most courses are offered for two semesters of four weeks each. By attending both semesters, a student can earn two credits.

Students may register this week in any junior or senior high school for these classes, which will meet at Palmer High from 8 to 11:30 a.m., starting June 10. Tuition is $15 for each four weeks.

All the District 11 summer programs are open to children regardless of where they regularly attend school. This includes the speech correction program. Applications for speech correction are available in Room 107, District 11 Administration Building.

Low-Heeled Shoes Advised for Gals Visiting Plant

Here's a tip for feminine visitors to the forthcoming open house Friday, Saturday and Sunday, at the Martin Drake Power Plant.

Wear low-heeled shoes.

Guided tours thru the $7,250,000 addition will lead over some grill work that could easily snag a high heel.

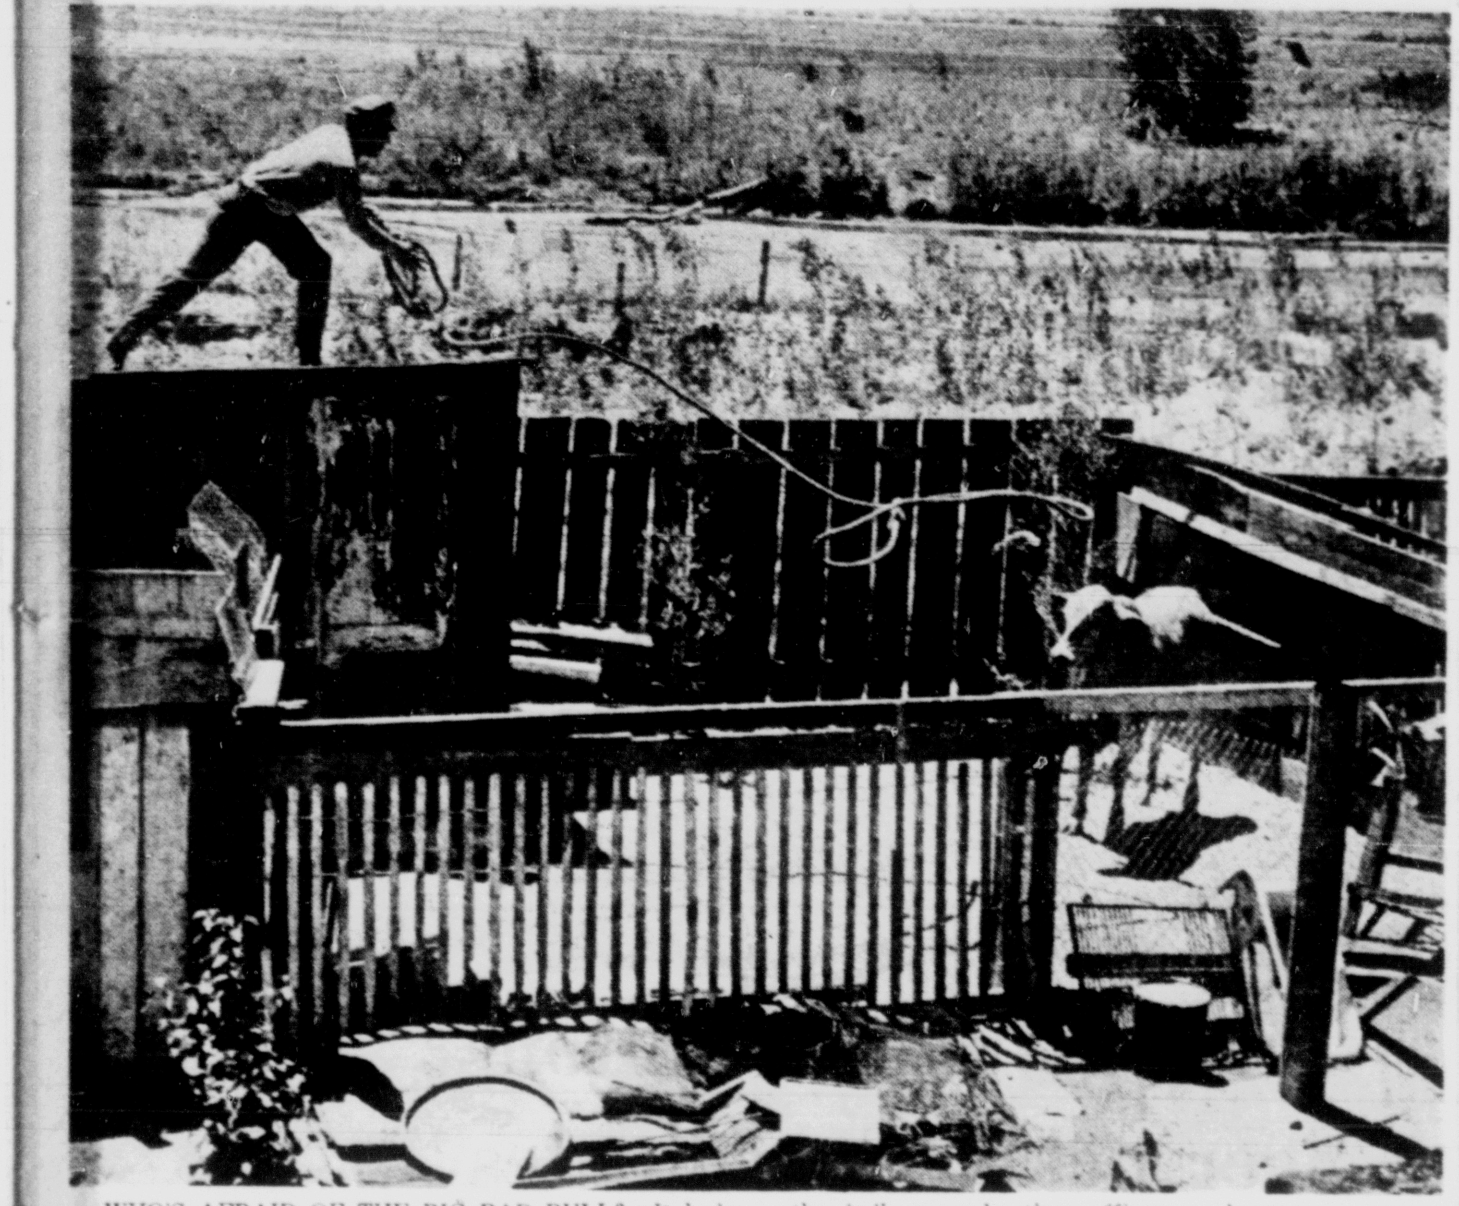
Traffic directions to the plant are:

Eastbound traffic on Colorado Avenue, turn right (south) at Conejos Street on the viaduct, continue on Conejos Street six blocks south. Left turns on Colorado Avenue at Conejos Street for westbound traffic are not permitted.

Traffic on Sierra Madre, Sahwatch Streets, Cascade Avenue, Tejon Street, Nevada Avenue, etc. — turn west at Las Animas Street, cross the railroad tracks, turn right (north) one-half block to the Drake Plant.

Traffic from the south — turn left (west) from Nevada Avenue or Tejon Street at Mill Street. Continue west on Mill Street to Conejos Street, then north on Conejos Street to the Drake Plant.

Open house schedule is from 1 to 6 p.m. daily, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.



WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD BULL?—It looks like it's a private contest between Ron Hunter of the Humane Society, on the roof, and the yearling bull which escaped Wednesday morning from the G & C Packing Co. But while Hunter was attempting to lasso the bull, several other officers and onlookers were watching from a very safe distance. After the bull was captured, Hunter reported that someone apparently shot the animal hitting him behind the ear. It was not a police officer, he said.

Man Gets Jail; Walked on Wrong Side of Road

A pedestrian, Oscar Oliver Clinkenbeard, was sent to county jail Wednesday for five days by Justice of the Peace James F. Quine for walking on the wrong side of the road. Clinkenbeard, 25, of Fort Smith, Ark. was arrested Tuesday by State Patrolman Gordon Baumgardner on Interstate Highway 25. The defendant was also ordered to pay $4 costs.

The remainder of the cases were all traffic violations involving motorists. Among them was Elva Aguirre Lujan, 18, of Stanton, Tex. charged with having no valid operator's license, no registration card and driving the wrong way on a one-way street. She was ticketed on Colorado Highway 115 by State Patrolman J. E. McDaniel and fined $15 plus costs.

Failing to yield the right of way on Fillmore Street Saturday cost Richard Lisle Pattinger, 23, of Pla-Mor Trailer Court $10 and costs. The officer was State Patrolman C. W. Hubbard.

Hubbard also cited Mary Jan Weatherly, 17, of 3100 N. Wood Ave. as she was following too closely on North Nevada Avenue Friday. A $10 fine and costs was imposed.

Max Rosen, 20, of the Air Force Academy was charged with driving at 65 and 70 miles per hour in a 40 zone Sunday and fined $20 and costs. The violation happened on U.S. Highway 85-87. Hubbard was the officer.

Paul I. Tamlin paid a $15 fine and costs for driving on the wrong side of the road and having no valid operator's license. Tamlin, 37, of Route 4 received the summons Oct. 26 of last year on U.S. Highway 85-87 from State Patrolman J. Fred Henderson.

C. J. Cates of the police department ticketed Phillip Eugene Scribner, 31, of 2202 E. Dale St. for reckless driving on West Pikes Peak Avenue April 27. He was fined $25 and costs.

State Patrolman J. E. McDaniel cited Ana Velasquez, 22, of 1803 S. Cascade Ave. and charged her with being without a valid operator's license May 8 when driving on Lake Avenue. She paid a $5 fine and costs.

Paul H. Cornell of the state patrol gave a ticket to Lee Allen Siefert, 22, of 432 W. Burgess Rd. for knowingly driving a non-registered vehicle Sunday. The violation happened on U.S. Highway 24 and Siefert paid a $5 fine and costs.

A Pueblo man, William Elbert Alger, 31, of Pueblo, received a $5 fine and costs for having no registration on a towed vehicle. He was cited April 23 by State Patrolman John L. Baker.

Bull Jumps Fence; Leads Police on Merry Chase

By RAY HERST

Gazette Telgraph Staff Writer

There was a lot of bull being thrown around Colorado Springs Wednesday — more than 900 pounds of it to be exact.

And four city policemen, two men from the Humane Society, a couple of cowboys and assorted onlookers will tell you there was no bull about this bull.

A yearling, the animal who apparently didn't cotton to the idea of turning up in the form of steaks and roasts, jumped a six-foot fence around a stockyard at the G & C Packing Co., 240 S. 21 St. about 9 a.m. Monday.

For two and a half hours, the frisky animal bulled his way thru the city leading his would-be captors on a not-so-merry chase.

He ended up on the 600 block of E. Mill Street.

By that time, police officers, humane officials and cowboys arrived, the bull was standing nonchalantly behind a fence in an area used to stock sheep, horses and chickens.

The bull eyed the men closing in on him; the men eyed the bull.

The bull, apparently tired of all the bulling around, whirled and was off again with the men in hot pursuit. He charged across a field, leaped several fences, whirled back in the opposite direction and leaped several more fences before he was gone from sight.

A few minutes later he was standing in a chicken pen. He had bulled his way thru a chain-link fence and now seemed to be awaiting the next move on the part of his pursuers.

"Man, that's a mad bull," a workman who had climbed to the roof of a house he was working on commented.

Several workmen were in the rear of the house when the bull threw his weight around.

One of the men had his back toward the animal who came charging into the yard "like he was lookin' for someone to stomp."

"I was just standing there, you know. I was going to pick up one of them concrete blocks and I felt something go pushing past me. I looked up and there's this bull. Man! He went thru that fence like it wasn't there," the man commented.

That was the bull's mistake. Inside the enclosure he was relativey easy pickings for the men who were chasing him.

Ron Hunter of the Humane Society climbed to the roof of a chicken coop inside the enclosure and using a bull-rope, almost as thick as the bull's legs, lassoed the animal — after several tries and misses.

While the animal, stomped, and snorted and charged and kicked and bulled his way about, Tom Williams of the J. M. Williams Co., climbed onto the roof and tossed another rope around the animal's neck.

But it wasn't quite all over yet. Before they got him onto a truck, the animal managed to almost wreck a fence and gate, toss one policeman who was trying to hold onto a makeshift halter like he was a rag doll and skinned up the hands and knuckles of several others.

When asked what was going to happen next, a G & C spokesman said:

"Back to the slaughter house and steaks."

And there was no bull about getting the bull back, either.

PO Publication Presented to City Library

Abraham Lincoln's colorful and controversial Postmaster General, Montgomery Blair, is the subject of a new Post Office Department publication, presented to the Public Library Wednesday by Postmaster R. H. Wardwell.

The 44 page pamphlet is being issued by the Post Office Department as part of its centennial celebration of the Paris conference of 1863. The Paris Conference, held at the suggestion of Montgomery Blair, was the first international conference on postal problems and led to the founding of the Universal Postal Union, which regulates the handling of international mail.

Although he ran the Post Office Department during the chaotic Civil War period, Blair was responsible for some of the most important mail handling innovations in the country's history.

He introduced free delivery of mail in cities, the money order system, and the railway post office to assemble and distribute mail en route.

Blair was one of President Lincoln's closest and most trusted advisors. He had enormous ability, but he was also a strong-willed man with a tendency to mind other people's business. He infuriated other Cabinet members by constantly offering them gratuitous advice on how to run their Departments. Lincoln was finally forced to fire Blair to retain the support of the Postmaster General's many enemies in his fight for reelection.

Postmaster Wardwell said that copies of the Montgomery Blair pamphlet can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., for 25 cents a copy.

Bids to Be Accepted At Carson Till May 29

The Ft. Carson Contracting Officer, Bldg. T-305, has announced that bids will be received until 10 a.m. May 29 for Invitation No. AV-05-010-63-23, for Cleaning Warm Air Systems at Carson.

In keeping with national policy, this Invitation for Bids has been set aside under the Small Business program.

$26,032 Suit Settled for $1,561 in Court

Maude B. Knight was awarded $1,561.30 in District Court Wednesday in a damage suit against the City of Colorado Springs and Lucille H. Williams.

The plaintiff fell on a broken sidewalk May, 4 1961 near the intersection of Dale and Royer Streets and suffered a broken nose and other facial injuries. She sued for $26,032.72.

Following a motion by the city Lucille H. Williams was added as a third party defendant in the suit. The city alleged she owned the property where the accident happened and that it was her duty to maintain it.

The presiding judge was William M. Calvert.

Planners Will Hold Special Meet Wednesday

The El Paso County Planning Commission will hold a special meeting at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the auditorium of the County Office Building.

The following petitions and plat will be presented to the commission:

Red Rock Ranch Inc. and Forest View Acres Inc. to change an A-2 farming district to an A-1 garden home district located south of Palmer Lake, north of Mount Herman Road and east of U.S. 85-87. The area includes approximately 250 acres.

Joe J. Perlmutter to change a C-1 roadside service district and an A-3 airport farm district to an M-industrial district. The area is located west of the old Airport Road and south of U.S. 24 east and includes 54 acres.

Preliminary plat of Woodmoor Subdivision northeast of Monument and north of Deer Creek Estates and containing 79.4 acres.

County Must Approve Subdivided Land

W. A. West, El Paso County planning engineer, reminded subdividers this week that all land in the county which is subdivided into less than five-acre tracts must be approved by the County Planning Commission.

The commissions meets at 4 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month. Plats must be filed in the office of the county building inspector 15 days prior to the meeting.

Police Report Two Burglaries

Police reported two related burglaries which occurred Tuesday night. The first occurred at the Kelsay Lumber Co., 411 S. Wahsatch Ave., when thieves entered the building thru a window and carried away hands tools valued at $23.71, police said.

The tools were later found at the Benbow Plumbing and Heating Co., 335 S. Wahsatch Ave., where they had been used in an attempt to open a safe after the thieves entered thru a skylight, police said.

An acetylene torch had been used by the thieves in attempting to open the safe, according to the report. The stolen tools found near the safe included a six pound sledge hammer, a coping saw with blade and a brace and bit, the report said.

Police are investigating.

Marines to Fire At Ft. Carson This Weekend

Big guns will be pounding the Ft. Carson ranges Saturday night and Sunday morning as the 5th Marine 155 mm. Gun Battery visits Carson for annual firing.

If the wind is from the south as it was May 4 and 5, this firing may be heard throughout the night in many parts of the Colorado Springs area.

Maj. J. N. Phillips commands the Marine Reservists who include seven officers and 90 enlisted men.

The Marines are regular weekend visitors throughout the year at the mountain post. According to one of the Pueblo group who were firing May 4 and 5, the 155 mm. Reserve units were assigned to Denver and Pueblo because they could maintain their proficiency using the artillery ranges at Ft. Carson.

Army Reservists from Colorado Springs who are assigned to the 354th Regiment (Basic Combat Training), 89th Division, will fire on Carson ranges Sunday, May 26, the service rifle and service pistol.

Penrose Awards To Be Given At Boys' Club

The awards were originated in 1938 by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Penrose.

About 80 boys will be presented awards for outstanding contribution to their Boys' Club and their community. Jackets and sweaters will be presented to members on the basketball teams.

There will also be awards for outstanding craftsmenship in the shops.

The public and parents and friends of the boys are invited.

$10,000 Awarded To Defendant in Insurance Suit

Helen P. Rich of 320 Crestridge Ave. was awarded $10,000, the amount she sued for, in District Court Wednesday in her suit against the Travelers Insurance Co.

According to the complaint Mrs. Rich sought to collect the $10,000 on a life insurance policy which was taken out by her late husband, George Francis Rich. She was the sole beneficiary and the policy was in effect when he died Aug. 23, 1962.

It carried a provision that the beneficiary would receive indemnity if Rich died from bodily injuries. He died as a result of an accident at the Janitell Railroad Crossing and the additional $10,000 was never paid.

The judge was David W. Enoch.

Evacuation Tests Underway Today At Coulee Crest

Mass casualty action, designed to test the evacuation and emergency medical potential of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), moved into the second and final day today during Exercise Coulee Crest at Yakima, Wash.

The simulated casualties will be taken to Madigan Army Hospital at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

These casualties will be returned to Yakima Firing Center as replacements.

Nuclear action on Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18, will be the climax of the 40,000 man exercise.

Bulk of the 10,000 Red Devils will start returning to Carson from Yakima on Monday, when the advance parties leave Yakima. Task forces are scheduled to leave May 22, 23 and 25 on the northern Red route and on May 22 and 23 on the southern Blue route.

Advance parties are slated to arrive May 25 at 3:30 p.m. on the Red route and 4:30 p.m. on the Blue.

More than 2,500 vehicles will be on western highways throughout the 10 days the 5th Division is returning to Carson.

Tank gunnery crews from the 1st Battalion, 77th Armor, and 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry, will remain at Yakima firing Center for two weeks of gunnery practice. The 450 men in these units will leave June 10 for Carson.

Benson Urges Farmers to Vote 'No'

CHICAGO (UPI)—Former Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson Tuesday urged farmers to vote "no" in the wheat refrendum May 21.

Benson issued a statement at the 55th annual convention of the American Feed Manufacturing Association here. It said the wheat certificate plan "would reduce farmers' freedom to manage their own farms, decrease their efficiency, restrict markets and encumber the whole wheat marketing process."

Benson said the referendum gives farmers the choice between "government regimentation and freedom." He said farmers wanted "more freedom and less government in agriculture."

The real issue, said Benson, is whether farmer or the federal government will manage the nation's farms.

"The farms of America cannot and should not be run from a desk in Washington," he said.

Benson was awarded a recognition plaque at the convention.

Four other past secretaries of agriculture received plaques from the association in recognition for their work in agriculture. They included Claude R. Wickard, Charles F. Brannan, Henry A. Wallace, and Clinton P. Anderson.

Steel Inventory Not Large, Report Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy steel buying by big users isn't producing as large an inventory buildup as a year ago, The Iron Age said today.

The metalworking weekly said reserve stocks were expected to reach a 78 days' supply by the end of June, or about 17.3 million tons of steel in hands of all consuming industries.

The year-ago peak, reached in April 1962, amounted to about 18.7 million tons, an 89-day supply.

Nationwide production showed its 14th gain in 15 weeks last week when output totaled 2,548,000 tons of ingots and steel for castings.

A slackening of demand is expected to follow clarification of the wage contract situation, and the elimination of any strike threat by a new contract settlement.

No date has been set yet for a start of wage talks.

In the Philippine labor force, farmers, fishermen and forestry workers comprise some 60 per cent of the working population.

More Colorado Counties May Seek U.S. Aid

DENVER (UPI)—The State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Services (ASCS) said today five more counties had made inquiries about requesting federal drought disaster aid.

The newest inquiries from Adams, Otero, Las Animas, Pueblo, and Crowley Counties bring to 16 the counties which have either asked for or are expected to request designation as federal drought disaster areas.

Allan Funk, acting state ASCS director, said forms for applying for the aid had been sent the five counties and answers from them and from five others which earlier made inquiries were expected within the next few days.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture State Disaster Committee will meet at 9:30 a.m. Friday to consider any formal requests received by that time.

The state committee already has approved and sent to Washington requests for drought disaster designation for Las Animas, Baca, Prowers and southeast Kiowa Counties.

Requests are expected to be sent by the state committee on behalf of El Paso and Fremont.

Counties which have the state forms and are expected to apply, in addition to the five most recent, are Teller, Jefferson, Lake, Chaffee, and Custer.

In addition, Baca and Prowers of the original group are expected to ask a second designation in order to qualify for additional federal aid.

The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) also has recommended that short - term, low-interest emergency federal loans be made available to farmers in 29 Colorado counties.

Japan is the world's foremost ship exporter. Its shipbuilding for other countries in 1962 reached 1,017,870 gross tons, worth $230 million dollars.

Friends of Love's Children Transported

DENVER (AP) — Two Colorado Highway Patrol cars, as well as the governor's own limousine were pressed into service Monday to carry friends of 10-year-old Beck Love from a bus station to the governor's mansion, Gov. John A. Love said here.

The youngsters, he said, were classmates of his daughter when she attended Broadmoor Elementry School before moving to Denver last winter.

The children came to Denver on a bus for the one day visit.

The subject came up at a news conference when reporters asked about the incident. The governor said it took place and added, "I specifically didn't handle the matter."

Patrol Chief Gilbert R. Carrel said the cars were not taken off the highways but were vehicles attached to headquarters. He said the cars were manned by headquarters personnel.

The first public recitation of 'Casey at the Bat' was in 1888.

Elder Hunter To Preside at Pikes Peak Stake

Elder Howard W. Hunter, a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), Salt Lake City, will preside at a quarterly conference of the Pikes Peak Stake Saturday and Sunday, in Pueblo.

Elder Hunter is a director of several large industrial, real estate and insurance coporations in California and Utah. He has served the church as a Boy Scout leader and Welfare administrator.

General sessions of the conference will be conducted Sundays at President Ralph Miler Gardner of Colorado Springs. Visitors are welcome.

Seminary graduation services for Colorado Springs wards 1, and 3, will be held at 4:30 p.m. the same day.

Colorado Springs first and second ward combined choirs will sing both conference sessions Sunday. Mrs. Don Cruikshank will be the choir leader.

Physicist Was Russian Spy, Britons Charge

SOUTHEND, England (UPI) — The British government charged here an Italian-born physicist who worked at a British atomic research laboratory was a Russian spy.

The government said Dr. Giuseppe Martelli, 39, was caught with all the tools of the spy's trade—shoes with hollow heels, false-bottomed cigarette cases, mysterious diary notes and coding equipment.

But prosecutor E. J. P. Cussen indicated Martelli was caught before he had time to pass on Britain's nuclear secrets to Moscow. This was expected to provide a needed morale boost for Britain's security service, currently under criticism after a series of sensational spy cases in the past two years.

Cussen asked a magistrate's court to hold Martelli for trial on charges that he had prepared to break the official secrets act — Britain's spy law.

Although the state claimed Martelli had not actually passed any secrets, the charge said he had made preparations to do so between Sept. 23, 1960, and last April 4—a period of more than two and a half years.

Martelli was the European Atomic Energy Community's (EUROATOM) representative to the British nuclear research laboratory at Culham. While there, the government said, he worked on non-classified "atoms for peace" projects.

Cussen said, nevertheless, the physicist "is a spy working for the Russian intelligence service."

Martelli was picked up in April when he stepped off a plane from Brussels, EUROATOM headquarters.

Shooting Is Blamed On North Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The United Nations Command today blamed a naval shooting incident off South Korea Saturday on a North Korean boat which it said opened fire on a U.N. Command patrol vessel.

The North Koreans claimed Tuesday that a U.S. gunboat attacked a North Korean fishing boat in the Yellow Sea Saturday evening and killed three fishermen. The Communists called a meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission Friday, apparently to discuss the incident.

YOU CAN'T WIN

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Henry Marks is a cautious soul. When she and her husband went on a skiing weekend with a group of friends she decided not to risk breaking a leg by getting on skis.

So she stayed behind in the cabin and filled the dishwasher to clean up the breafast dishes. The soap sudsed over onto the floor. Mrs. Marks slipped—and broke her ankle.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD BULL?—It looks like it's a private contest between Ron Hunter of the Humane Society, on the roof, and the yearling bull which escaped Wednesday morning from the G & C Packing Co. But while Hunter was attempting to lasso the bull, several other officers and onlookers were watching from a very safe distance. After the bull was captured, Hunter reported that someone apparently shot the animal hitting him behind the ear. It was not a police officer he said.

District 11 Now Registering Summer Program Students

All District 11 schools this week are registering students for summer school programs. Beginning on May 27 elementary schools will register children who will enter kindergarten in September.

Kindergarten pupils must be five-years-old by Dec. 31, and must present a birth certificate or other proof of age at the time of registration. Either the parents or other adult may register a child at the elementary school within whose boundaries he lives from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 27. The child does not have to be present.

Elementary schools are now accepting registrations for summer sessions at Stratton, Queen Palmer and Washington Schools. The program is for children in grades one thru six and includes both enriched and remedial courses.

Classes will meet Monday thru Friday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. starting June 17. Tuition for the six weeks is $25.

The junior high schools are now registering pupils for both the junior and senior high summer programs. Junior high pupils may take enriched courses in general science and the humanities or remedial work in reading, arithmetic and English.

Junior high classes will meet at Horace Mann from 8:30 to 9:57 a.m. and from 10:05 to 11:30 a.m. starting June 17. Tuition is $15 for one course and $25 for two.

Many of the more than 30 courses offered at Palmer High School are open to ninth graders as well as high school students. Most courses are offered for two semesters of four weeks each. By attending both semesters a student can earn two credits.

Students may register this week in any junior or senior high school for these classes which will meet at Palmer High from 8 to 11:30 a.m. starting June 10. Tuition is $15 for each four weeks.

All the District 11 summer programs are open to children regardless of where they regularly attend school. This includes the speech correction program. Applications for speech correction are available in Room 107, District 11 Administration Building.

Low-Heeled Shoes Advised for Gals Visiting Plant

Here's a tip for feminine visitors to the forthcoming open house Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Martin Drake Power Plant.

Wear low-heeled shoes.

Guided tours thru the $7,250,000 addition will lead over some grill work that could easily snag a high heel.

Traffic directions to the plant are:

Eastbound traffic on Colorado Avenue, turn right (south) at Conejos Street on the viaduct, continue on Conejos Street six blocks south. Left turns on Colorado Avenue at Conejos Street for westbound traffic are not permitted.

Traffic on Sierra Madre, Sahwatch Streets, Cascade Avenue, Tejon Street, Nevada Avenue, etc. — turn west at Las Animas Street, cross the [illegible] turn right (north) one-half block to the Drake Plant.

Traffic from the [illegible] left west from Nevada Avenue or Tejon Street at Mill Street. Continue west on Mill Street to Conejos Street, then north on Conejos Street to the Drake Plant.

Open house schedule is from 1 to 6 p.m. daily, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Gov. Love to Greet 1500 Lions Club Members Here for Meet

Gov. John A. Love will be in Colorado Springs Monday, May 27 to greet an expected 1,500 Lions Club members from throughout the state who will meet in convention at the Broadmoor International Center.

Love, a former Colorado Springs attorney, will give official greetings at 9:10 a.m. Monday — second day of the three-day convention.

The 45th annual convention is expected to be the largest ever held by Lions Club members in Colorado, reports Rupert Daniels, co-chairman of the convention and members of the Colorado Springs Lions Club.

Speakers who will highlight the schedule of events include:

Houston Waring, editor of the award-winning Littleton Independent, Littleton, who will talk at noon Monday on, "You Can Stir Emotions Even at Your Age."

E. F. Laux (pronounced Lowe), general manager of the Ford Division of Ford motor Company, also the Missouri Valley Public Relations Office of Ford Motor Company, who will talk at 3:15 p.m. Monday.

Chester H. Lauck, executive assistant of Continental Oil Company, better known as the "Lum" of the radio comedy team "Lum and Abner," who will talk at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Ed Conley, prominent Denver attorney and the 1962 Colorado winner of the Toastmaster's International Speech Contest, who will talk at 3 p.m. Tuesday on, "Once More Around the Block."

The Colorado State Council of Lions is made up of district governors plus five immediate past district governors and a full-time secretary of the Colorado Lions.

The district governors are Fred Tyson, Broomfield, district governor 6, east central; Herman Corey, Trinidad, district governor 6, southeast; Harold Shannon, Fort Collins, district governor 6, northeast; Eldon Brummett, Steamboat Springs, district governor 6, northwest; Glenn Aldrich, Montrose, district governor 6, southwest.

Richard Martin, Denver, is secretary for the district.

Immediate past district governors are E. C. Lovelady, Colorado Springs; Leo C. Schultz, Harvey Park-Brentwood; E.C. McSpadden, Longmont; Earl R. Erickson, Basalt; and H. B. Tanner, Bayfield.

Douglas L. Linville of La Junta, is an international director of Lions International, and will speak at a Tuesday morning breakfast.

Dr. W. H. Campbell of Miami, Fla., third vice president of Lions International, will be guest of honor and guest speaker at the district governors' banquet at 7 p.m. Monday at the Broadmoor International Center.

New district governors will be installed at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday, final act of the convention.

$10,000 Awarded To Defendant in Insurance Suit

Helen P. Rich of 520 Crestridge Ave. was awarded $10,000, the amount she sued for in District Court Wednesday in her suit against the Travelers Insurance Co.

According to the complaint Mrs. Rich sought to collect the $10,000 on a life insurance policy which was taken out by her late husband, George Francis Rich. She was the sole beneficiary and the policy was in effect when he died Aug. 23, 1962.

It carried a provision that the beneficiary would receive indemnity if Rich died from bodily injuries. He died as a result of an accident at the Janitell Railroad Crossing and the additional $10,000 was never paid.

The judge was David W. Enoch.

Evacuation Tests Underway Today At Coulee Crest

Mass casualty action, designed to test the evacuation and emergency medical potential of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), moved into the second and final day today during Exercise Coulee Crest at Yakima, Wash.

The simulated casualties will be taken to Madigan Army Hospital at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

These casualties will be returned to Yakima Firing Center as replacements.

Nuclear action on Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18, will be the climax of the 40,000 man exercise.

Bulk of the 10,000 Red Devils will start returning to Carson from Yakima on Monday, when the advance parties leave Yakima. Task forces are scheduled to leave May 22, 23 and 25 on the northern Red route and on May 22 and 23 on the southern Blue route.

Advance parties are slated to arrive May 25 at 3:30 p.m. on the Red route and 4:30 p.m. on the Blue.

More than 2,500 vehicles will be on western highways throughout the 10 days the 5th Division is returning to Carson.

Tank gunnery crews from the 1st Battalion, 77th Armor and 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry, will remain at Yakima Firing Center for two weeks of gunnery practice. The 450 men in these units will leave June 10 for Carson.

Carson Employes Elect Officers

Names of the new officers of the American Federation of Government Employees at Ft. Carson were announced this week.

Cal R. Dugan, former president of the lodge was returned to office as president of Lodge 13455. The new slate of officers includes: first vice president, Charles Rice; second vice president, Doris Huber; secretary-treasurer, Hazel Huffsmith; corresponding secretary, Ronald Heruth; chaplain, Don Donovan; membership secretary, Arnold Hutte, historian, Luther Hopkins; inside sergeant-at-arms, Danny Vigil; outside sergeant-at-arms, James Cole.

The five trustees for the coming year are Nila Lake, Manlove Davis, Ralph Goodnight, Denver Farris and Joe Miller.

The Carson lodge, with 300 members, has received formal recognition from Ft. Carson Headquarters. Meetings are held on the fourth Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Carpenter's Hall.

Man Gets Jail; Walked on Wrong Side of Road

A pedestrian, Oscar Oliver Clinkenbeard, was sent to county jail Wednesday for five days by Justice of the Peace James F. Quine for walking on the wrong side of the road. Clinkenbeard, 23, of Fort Smith, Ark. was arrested Tuesday by State Patrolman Gordon Baumgardner on Interstate Highway 25. The defendant was also ordered to pay $4 costs.

The remainder of the cases were all traffic violations involving motorists. Among them was Elva Aguirre Lujan, 18, of Stanton, Tex. charged with having no valid operator's license, no registration card and driving the wrong way on a one-way street. She was ticketed on Colorado Highway 115 by State Patrolman J. E. McDaniel and fined $15 plus costs.

Failing to yield the right of way on Fillmore Street Saturday cost Richard Lisle Pattinger, 23, of Pla-Mor Trailer Court $10 and costs. The officer was State Patrolman C. W. Hubbard.

Hubbard also cited Mary Jan Weatherly, 17, of 3100 N. Wood Ave. as she was following too closely on North Nevada Avenue Friday. A $10 fine and costs was imposed.

Max Rosen, 20, of the Air Force Academy was charged with driving at 65 and 70 miles per hour in a 40 zone Sunday and fined $20 and costs. The violation happened on U.S. Highway 85-87. Hubbard was the officer.

Paul I. Tamlin paid a $15 fine and costs for driving on the wrong side of the road and having no valid operator's license. Tamlin, 37, of Route 4 received the summons Oct. 26 of last year on U.S. Highway 85-87 from State Patrolman J. Fred Henderson.

C. J. Cates of the police department ticketed Phillip Eugene Scribner, 31, of 2202 E. Dale St. for reckless driving on West Pikes Peak Avenue April 27. He was fined $25 and costs.

State Patrolman J. E. McDaniel cited Ana Velasquez, 22, of [illegible] S. Cascade Ave. and charged her with being without a valid operator's license May 8 when driving on Lake Avenue. She paid a $5 fine and costs.

Paul H. Cornell of the state patrol gave a ticket to Lee Allen Siefert, 22, of 432 W. Burgess Rd. for knowingly driving a non-registered vehicle Sunday. The violation happened on U.S. Highway 24 and Siefert paid a $5 fine and costs.

A Pueblo man, William Elbert Alger, 31, of Pueblo, received a $[illegible] fine and costs for having no registration on a towed vehicle. He was cited April 23 by State Patrolman John L. Baker.

Carson Employes Hear AFGE Representative

F. L. Duckworth, national representative of the American Federation of Government Employees, is a Ft. Carson visitor this week.

He has been speaking to Carson AFGE members on labor-management cooperation in federal service under the President's new Executive Order [illegible].

Cal Dugan, president of Carson Lodge 1345, has been escorting the visitor from Washington, D.C. Carson is Duckworth's only Colorado stop on a western tour. He was asked to speak by the Carson AFGE Lodge.

Bull Jumps Fence; Leads Police on Merry Chase

By RAY HERST

Gazette Telgraph Staff Writer

There was a lot of bull being thrown around Colorado Springs Wednesday — more than 400 pounds of it to be exact.

And four city policemen, two men from the Humane Society, a couple of cowboys and assorted onlookers will tell you there was no bull about this bull.

A yearling, the animal who apparently didn't cotton to the idea of turning up in the form of steaks and roasts, jumped a six-foot fence around a stockyard at the G & C Packing Co., 240 S. 21 St. about 9 a.m. Monday.

For two and a half hours, the frisky animal bulled his way thru the city leading his would-be captors on a not-so-merry chase.

He ended up on the 600 block of E. Mill Street.

By that time, police officers, humane officials and cowboys arrived, the bull was standing nonchalantly behind a fence in an area used to stock sheep, horses and chickens.

The bull eyed the men closing in on him; the men eyed the bull.

The bull, apparently tired of all the bulling around, whirled and was off again with the men in hot pursuit. He charged across a field, leaped several fences, whirled back in the opposite direction and leaped several more fences before he was gone from sight.

A few minutes later he was standing in a chicken pen. He had bulled his way thru a chain link fence and now seemed to be awaiting the next move on the part of his pursuers.

"Man, that's a mad bull," a workman who had climbed to the roof of a house he was working on commented.

Several workmen were in the rear of the house when the bull threw his weight around.

One of the men had his back toward the animal who came charging into the yard "like he was lookin' for someone to stomp."

"I was just standing there, you know. I was going to pick up one of them concrete blocks and I felt something go pushing past me. I looked up and there's this bull. Man! He went thru that fence like it wasn't there," the man commented.

That was the bull's mistake. Inside the enclosure he was relatively easy pickings for the men who were chasing him.

Ron Hunter of the Humane Society climbed to the roof of a chicken coop inside the enclosure and using a bull rope, almost as thick as the bull's legs, lassoed the animal — after several tries and misses.

While the animal stomped, and snorted and charged and kicked and bulled his way about, Tom Williams of the J. M. Williams Co., climbed onto the roof and tossed another rope around the animal's neck.

But it wasn't quite all over yet. Before they got him onto a truck, the animal managed to almost wreck a fence and gate, toss one policeman who was trying to hold onto a makeshift halter like he was a rag doll and skinned up the hands and knuckles of several others.

When asked what was going to happen next, a G & C spokesman said:

"Back to the slaughter house and steaks."

And there was no bull about getting the bull back, either.

PO Publication Presented to City Library

Abraham Lincoln's colorful and controversial Postmaster General, Montgomery Blair, is the subject of a new Post Office Department publication, presented to the Public Library Wednesday by Postmaster R. H. Wardwell.

The 44 page pamphlet is being issued by the Post Office Department as part of its centennial celebration of the Paris conference of 1863. The Paris Conference, held at the suggestion of Montgomery Blair, was the first international conference on postal problems and led to the founding of the Universal Postal Union, which regulates the handling of international mail.

Although he ran the Post Office Department during the chaotic Civil War period, Blair was responsible for some of the most important mail handling innovations in the country's history.

He introduced free delivery of mail in cities, the money order system, and the railway post office to assemble and distribute mail en route.

Blair was one of President Lincoln's closest and most trusted advisors. He had enormous ability, but he was also a strong-willed man with a tendency to mind other people's business. He infuriated other Cabinet members by constantly offering them gratuitous advice on how to run their Departments. Lincoln was finally forced to fire Blair to retain the support of the Postmaster General's many enemies in his fight for reelection.

Postmaster Wardwell said that copies of the Montgomery Blair pamphlet can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C., for 25 cents a copy.

Police Report Two Burglaries

Police reported two related burglaries which occurred Tuesday night. The first occurred at the Kelsay Lumber Co., 411 S. Wahsatch Ave., when thieves entered the building thru a window and carried away hands tools valued at $23.71, police said.

The tools were later found at the Benbow Plumbing and Heating Co., 335 S. Wahsatch Ave., where they had been used in an attempt to open a safe after the thieves entered thru a skylight, police said.

An acetylene torch had been used by the thieves in attempting to open the safe, according to the report. The stolen tools found near the safe included a six pound sledge hammer, a coping saw with blade and a brace and bit, the report said.

Police are investigating.

$26,032 Suit Settled for $1,561 in Court

Maude B. Knight was awarded $1,561.30 in District Court Wednesday in a damage suit against the City of Colorado Springs and Lucille H. Williams.

The plaintiff fell on a broken sidewalk May 4, 1961 near the intersection of Dale and Royer Streets and suffered a broken nose and other facial injuries. She sued for $26,032.72.

Following a motion by the city Lucille H. Williams was added as a third party defendant in the suit. The city alleged she owned the property where the accident happened and that it was her duty to maintain it.

The presiding judge was William M. Calvert.

Planners Will Hold Special Meet Wednesday

The El Paso County Planning Commission will hold a special meeting at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the auditorium of the County Office Building.

The following petitions and plat will be presented to the commission:

Red Rock Ranch Inc. and Forest View Acres Inc. to change an A-2 farming district to an A-1 garden home district located south of Palmer Lake, north of Mount Herman Road and east of U.S. 85-87. The area includes approximately 250 acres.

Joe J. Perlmutter to change a C-1 roadside service district and an A-3 airport farm district to an M-industrial district. The area is located west of the old Airport Road and south of U.S. 24 east and includes 54 acres.

Preliminary plat of Woodmoor Subdivision northeast of Monument and north of Deer Creek Estates and containing 79.4 acres.

County Must Approve Subdivided Land

W. A. West, El Paso County planning engineer, reminded subdividers this week that all land in the county which is subdivided into less than five-acre tracts must be approved by the County Planning Commission.

The commissions meets at 4 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month. Plats must be filed in the office of the county building inspector 15 days prior to the meeting.

Marines to Fire At Ft. Carson This Weekend

Big guns will be pounding the Ft. Carson ranges Saturday night and Sunday morning as the 5th Marine 155 mm. Gun Battery visits Carson for annual firing.

If the wind is from the south as it was May 4 and 5, this firing may be heard throughout the night in many parts of the Colorado Springs area.

Maj. J. N. Phillips commands the Marine Reservists who include seven officers and 90 enlisted men.

The Marines are regular weekend visitors throughout the year at the mountain post. According to one of the Pueblo group who were firing May 4 and 5, the 155 mm. Reserve units were assigned to Denver and Pueblo because they could maintain their proficiency using the artillery ranges at Ft. Carson.

Army Reservists from Colorado Springs who are assigned to the 354th Regiment (Basic Combat Training), 89th Division, will fire on Carson ranges Sunday, May 26, the service rifle and service pistol.

Penrose Awards To Be Given At Boys' Club

The 25th annual Penrose Citizenship awards of the Boys' Club will be given at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the club.

The awards were originated in 1938 by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Penrose.

About 80 boys will be presented awards for outstanding contribution to their Boys' Club and their community. Jackets and sweaters will be presented to members on the basketball teams.

There will also be awards for outstanding craftsmenship in the shops.

The public and parents and friends of the boys are invited

Canada to Face Challenge Over Nuclear Weapons

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson's decision to accept nuclear weapons appeared headed for an early challenge as Canada's new Parliament assembled today amid traditional pomp and ceremony.

No political fireworks were expected at the opening meeting, however. The chief business was the speech from the throne, outlining the new Liberal government's legislative program. Opposition leaders will get a chance Monday to deal with the nuclear issue when they answer the throne speech.

The throne speech usually is ready by the governor general, but Chief Justice Robert Taschereau was chosen to substitute for ailing Gov. Gen. Georges Vanier.

Forecasts said the speech would place heavy emphasis on measures to boost Canada's economy.

The federal budget will not be submitted until mid-June.

Because the Liberal party has only a minority of the House of Commons seats the debate on the throne speech will have unusual significance. The government could be toppled by a vote of no confidence. Political observers generally predict that the opposition leaders will strike out vigorously at the nuclear decision announced in Hyannis Port, Mass., last Saturday but that they will not try to bring down the government.

The Liberals hold 129 of the 265 seats in the House of Commons. The Conservatives have 95 seats; the Social Credit 23 and the New Democratic party 17. There is one independent Social Credit member.

The Conservative leader, former Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, has been silent since he stepped down after the April 8 election. He met with his party members in caucus Wednesday to plan strategy and is expected to deliver a fighting speech Monday.

Pearson went ahead with plans to arm Canada's Bomarc missiles with American nuclear warheads and CF104 low-level jet bombers in Europe with nuclear bombs.

The prime minister announced negotiations with the United States will start in a day or so to work out the detailed agreement covering the weapons.

The U.S. and Canadian governments also scheduled talks on violence against Canadian ships in American ports on the Great Lakes.

The Labor Department said U.S. Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz will visit Ottawa Friday for a preliminary meeting with Canadian Labor Minister Allan J. MacEachen. On Tuesday MacEachen and President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress will meet in Washington with Wirtz and President George Meany of the AFL-CIO.

The Seafarers International Union of Canada, expelled from the CLC in 1960, is battling with the CLC-backed Canadian Maritime Union for supremacy on Canadian lake ships. CMU-manned ships have been attacked repeatedly or boycotted in U.S. lake ports.

Another Raising Of Debt Limit Will Be Sought

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders plan to bring a debt limit raising bill to a vote before the debt bumps against the present $305 billion lid. The Treasury expects this to happen before the end of the month.

The bill squeaked through the House 213 to 204 Wednesday as opposing Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats put on their most impressive show of strength in the present Congress. Democrats predict another close success in the Senate.

During Wednesday's debate fiscal conservatives insisted the Kennedy administration could be forced to trim its spending if the bill were defeated—or a Republican substitute continuing the present ceiling indefinitely were adopted.

Without any congressional action, the debt limit would drop automatically to $285 billion July 1.

The House-passed bill would raise it immediately to $307 billion, than on July 1 to $309 billion, effective through Aug. 31. Before then, it is generally expected, the ceiling will have to be raised again, especially if Congress passes President Kennedy's tax cut legislation.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee tentatively scheduled a session for next Wednesday on the debt ceiling.

Although the Virginia Democrat personally opposes increasing the limit he is understood to have promised prompt handling of the bill, following a personal appeal by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon.

The nine-vote margin by which the House passed the bill matched the closest previous administration victory in the present Congress, on a feed grain program.

In Wednesday's roll call, Republicans held almost completely firm. Only former Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts joined the Democrats in voting for the bill, while the Democrats lost 32 votes, mostly from the South.

Physicist Was Russian Spy, Britons Charge

SOUTHEND, England (UPI) — The British government charged here an Italian-born physicist who worked at a British atomic research laboratory was a Russian spy.

The government said Dr. Giuseppe Martelli, 39, was caught with all the tools of the spy's trade—shoes with hollow heels, false-bottomed cigarette cases, mysterious diary notes and coding equipment.

But prosecutor E. J. P. Cussen indicated Martelli was caught before he had time to pass on Britain's nuclear secrets to Moscow. This was expected to provide a needed morale boost for Britain's security service, currently under criticism after a series of sensational spy cases in the past two years.

Cussen asked a magistrate's court to hold Martelli for trial on charges that he had prepared to break the official secrets act — Britain's spy law.

Although the state claimed Martelli had not actually passed any secrets, the charge said he had made preparations to do so between Sept. 23, 1960, and last April 4—a period of more than two and a half years.

Martelli was the European Atomic Energy Community's (EUROATOM) representative to the British nuclear research laboratory at Culham. While there, the government said, he worked on non-classified "atoms for peace" projects.

Cussen said, nevertheless, the physicist "is a spy working for the Russian intelligence service."

Martelli was picked up in April when he stepped off a plane from Brussels, EUROATOM headquarters.

Shooting Is Blamed On North Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The United Nations Command today blamed a naval shooting incident off South Korea Saturday on a North Korean boat which it said opened fire on a U.N. Command patrol vessel.

The North Koreans claimed Tuesday that a U.S. gunboat attacked a North Korean fishing boat in the Yellow Sea Saturday evening and killed three fishermen. The Communists called a meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission Friday, apparently to discuss the incident.

YOU CAN'T WIN

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Henry Marks is a cautious soul. When she and her husband went on a skiing weekend with a group of friends she decided not to risk breaking a leg by getting on skis.

So she stayed behind in the cabin and filled the dishwasher to clean up the breakfast dishes. The soap sudsed over onto the floor. Mrs. Marks slipped—and broke her ankle.

The other graduates were Nelda Thieman, Gene Drake, Rodger Cochran, John Atwater, Larry Enos, and Everett Chambers.

Burglar With Broken Leg Gets Probation

CROYDON, England (AP)—A ham-handed burglar who broke a leg trying to carry away a safe was placed on probation for two years by a kindly court Wednesday.

Michael Barr, 28, said he was wheeling the safe out of an office on a hand truck when it fell off and broke his leg. He pleaded guilty to breaking into the office with intent to commit a felony.

Magistrate A. J. Dunn decided to give Barr a chance to go straight. The judge said: "Try to get your leg well and find a job as soon as you can."

In the fall of 1961, in the United States, there were 37.6 degree-credit students per 100 persons aged 18-21, as compared with only 14.2 in 1939.

By ROSE M. DAVIS 687-9014

The Senior Class has received a partial refund on the cost of their annuals because of the errors made in them.

The freshmen chili supper and sock hop Friday night was a success.

Monday, the seniors went on a sneak trip to Denver. They took a picnic lunch, went swimming and bowling at Celebrity Lanes and had supper at the Drum Stick. Principal Gene Cole accompanied the group.

The senior baccalaureate will be Sunday night at 8 o'clock, in the school gym.

Class night will be at 7:30 Monday night. At this time awards will be given.

Graduation exercises will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Jim Sims, a senior, who broke his leg in a basketball game some time ago, had his cast removed Friday.

Students will not attend school on the 23rd. This will be a work day for teachers. May 24 is the last day of school.

The Pueblo High School Band and orchestra gave a concert at the high school Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Berta Von Fumetti has been engaged to teach high school English and conduct the chorus next year. Mrs. Von Fumetti has taught two years in the Pueblo Junior College as an instructor in English and literature. She has a daughter who will be in the sixth grade next fall. They are looking for an unfurnished two bedroom home. Anyone having such a residence please call the school.

Thirty seven second graders and their teachers, Mrs. Mary Carty and Mrs. Katy Ewing, toured the Colorado Springs police station, Rainbow Bakery and Cheynne Mountain Zoo, Wednesday. Accompaning the group were the Rev. Lawrence Carty, Mrs. Jim Osburn, Mrs. Vernon Brinkley and Mrs. Tvana.

The fifth grade class and their teacher Mrs. Melba Davis accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Kuhn, toured the Air Force Academy Friday morning and following a picnic lunch took a ride on the Mt. Manitou Incline.

The VFW Auxiliary had a sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. Victor Hughes May 1 and made 60 cancer pads.

The VFW Auxiliary had their annual poppy sale Saturday.

Eight VFW Auxiliary members had a regular meeting at the Hall Wednesday. Cards of thanks were received from Mrs. Eva Hammer and the Fort Lyons Hospital. Plans were completed for the poppy sale. The group discussed having a concession stand at the rodeo. A joint installation with the Vets will be held May 24. Mrs. Ray Dilts and Mrs. Edd Kelley were named delegates to attend the state convention June 12-15 at Glenwood Springs.

Friday Mrs. Edd Kelley, Mrs. Walter Brietenfeld, Mrs. Bill Gayman and Mrs. Dixie B. Smith attended a county-wide home demonstration meeting held at Divide. The lesson was on planting, what, how and when.

Rising Incomes Is Forecast for U.S. Consumer

By JOSEPH HUTNYAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Current and past economic trends indicate the average U.S. consumer's standard of living should rise by about 100 per cent during the next 40 years.

By the year 2000, the average breadwinner will be bringing home a pay check ranging from $10,000 to $12,000 per year, nearly double the present figure, according to a study.

Mr. Average Consumer also is expected to be spending more of it on the so-called luxuries—or at least what we classify as luxuries today.

These forecasts all are part of a voluminous report by Resources for the Future Inc. (RFF)—a foundation which spent five years studying past economic history to get a clue of what life would be like in the year 2000.

The report said the present $5,000-a-year average salary would shoot up to $7,500 in 20 years, and then hit at least $10,000 by the year 2000.

Generally, forecasters base this on the belief that the U.S. economy will discover more efficient ways of doing things at less cost in the years ahead.

They expect the value of goods and services produced to rise faster than the population, in effect giving each worker a larger share of this total national income.

"This means," the report said, "that the typical household will be able to afford a standard of living by 1980 enjoyed now by only the highest 20 per cent and, by the end of the century, will be at levels now considered quite well-to-do."

RFF researchers pointed out that in recent years the consumer is spending less of his income for day-to-day necessities such as food, shelter and clothing. This is a natural result of fast-rising incomes.

The reason is that each person can just eat so much and wear a certain amount of clothing. As his income rises, he begins using a larger portion for items normally not considered necessities.

As one economist put it: "When a man makes more money, he can't use it to eat five times as much food but he can buy himself five television sets."

Economists do not expect this rising tide of consumer expenditures in the next 40 years to result in an era where there is a television in every room.

More likely it will take some more conventional channel such as a big increase in two-and three-car families and more families with two homes.

The report said personal consumption expenditures have been rising at a 1½ per cent annual clip for each person for the past 30 years.

It said this figure should be stepped up to about 2 per cent by the end of the century.

"What this 2 per cent growth rate means for the average consumer is an increase in standard of living of almost 50 per cent in the next 50 years, and more than doubling by the end of the century," the report stated.

The RFF study said food, clothing and shelter will still hold top priority in the family budget but will be taking a progressively smaller bite during the years ahead.

It said that of these three, clothing costs probably will shrink the fastest because revolutionary changes in Apparel fiber use and durability has been making it cheaper for consumers to maintain an adequate wardrobe.

Suspect Is Traced In Theft of Plane

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)— Boulder County sheriff's officers said Tuesday police had traced a man charged with stealing a plane rented in Boulder last Friday to Las Vegas, Nev., and then to Los Angeles.

Officers said the suspect, Clifford Judson, flew the plane to Las Vegas where he rented a car using the plane for collateral. He then drove to Los Angeles where he registered at a hotel, officers said.

A warrant has been issued charging Judson with larceny by bailee.

ONE BED TOO MANY

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)— They were supposed to be in "Bedlam in Bedrock" but instead they were in just plain bed.

The York High School senior class variety show, based on the television program "The Flintstones," had to be postponed. Several members of the cast came down with the measles the morning of the performance.

There are 91,556 teachers with emergency or temporary certificates currently employed in public schools, the National Education Association reports.

The Valedictorian of the [illegible] class was Jeanne Gibson and the Salutatorian was [illegible] Jones.

The [illegible] graduates were Nelda Thomas, [illegible] Rhodes, [illegible] Alexander, Larry [illegible] and [illegible] Chambers.

Burglar With Broken Leg Gets Probation

CROYDON, England (AP) — A ham-handed burglar who broke a leg trying to carry away a safe was placed on probation for two years by a kindly court Wednesday.

Michael Barr, 28, said he was wheeling the safe out of an office on a hand truck when it fell off and broke his leg. He pleaded guilty to breaking into the office with intent to commit a felony.

Magistrate A. J. Dunn decided to give Barr a chance to go straight. The judge said: "Try to get your leg well and find a job as soon as you can."

In the fall of 1961, in the United States there were 37.6 degree-credit students per 100 persons aged 18-21, as compared with only 14.2 in 1939.

The William Alaniva family of 2015 Chelton Rd. are busy with spring activities. Lynn and Karen, students of Wasson High, are working with the B Squad cheer leader group and getting ready for the prom. Doug is on the track team at East Junior High, and Pat is 7th grade representative on the student council there. The family shares together in activities. Alaniva belongs to the Y sprinters and runs three miles a week.

Julie Stevens Hoefer, mother of Gene Bacon of Drakestone Drive, has fully recuperated after a time in the hospital. Mrs. Hoefer's family are pioneers of the region. She was born here in 1882. Her father built the Alta Vista Hotel. Mrs. Hoefer has been a musician and song writer over the years. She wrote a book of songs for her mother and fathers' 50th wedding anniversary. Titles of some of her songs are "You," "Love," "Your Name," "God's World," and "The Human Touch."

Frank Angiers Jr., was home Sunday for Mother's Day from Colorado State University at Fort Collins. Deborah Angiers of Audubon Elementary School joins with the other sixth graders in a Pan American program and Latin American luncheon. They are assisted by room mothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bradley of Holiday Lane are looking forward to their daughter Linda's return home for the summer. She and her brother, Mike, attend the University of Colorado at Boulder. Mike is a senior, and he plans to remain in Boulder for the summer for special work on his major, engineering physics.

The square dance class sponsored and taught by Maj. and Mrs. Levi Barnes will celebrate their May 21st graduation with a chuck wagon dinner at Ent Skyline Club. They will receive diplomas and become members of the Skyline Squares Dance Club. The Barnes boys, Hal and Randy, are going to summer YMCA Camp at Camp Shadybrook. Hal won the broad jump for light weights, representing the eighth grade at Horace Mann Jr. High School. He goes to the All City Track Meet Saturday, May 18. His sister, Lee Anne, celebrated her sixth birthday, Monday, May 13 with a pink and white party for a group of friends. Those invited were: Andy Milhan, Buddy Gwin, Colleen Salisbury, Debbie Akers, Jan Lofters, Lynne Stark, Patty Webber, Teddy Doerffel, Preston Nebel, and Joy Bartholomew.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Brownfield are looking forward to the homecoming of their daughters, Helen, of Northwestern State, Alva, Okla., and Sandra from Texas Western College, El Paso. Twin daughters, Cathryn and Carolyn, have just had an eighth birthday. The family athlete, Chris, 14, came in second in the city bowling tournament. The area friends are sorry to have to bid goodbye to the Brownfields. Col. Brownfield has recently retired from the military, and the family is moving to Fullerton, Calif.

Members of Moonlighter's Bowling League have ended their season with a banquet at Ent Officers Club at which time trophies were presented to the year's winners, and an election of officers was held. Dean F. Chausser was re-elected president. Birthday congratulations are in order for Mindy Chausser who was eight years old on Mother's Day. Her brother, Mike, is starting baseball practice. He was a pitcher last year with Young Americas, and the Old Timers League. Chausser is a real estate broker in Colorado Springs.

The Oliver Cellinis attended a cinerama, showing in Denver, "How The West Was Won." They reported it as very enjoyable. Daughter Beverly, eight years old April 27, is an enthusiastic equestrian student of Mrs. Cassie Cunningham, of the Mark Reyner stables.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Freeman of Drakestone Drive have ended their season of bowling with the team of the Black and White Service Bowlers. Son Phillip, is an East Junior High School athlete. He performs in shotput, has run the 50-yard dash, and was recently in the seventh grade relay. Friends meeting with Phillip in City-Wide Track will be Steve Caulder, Dale Isley, Larry Skodack, and other seventh graders of our area. His sister, Cherie, sings in the East Junior High School eighth grade choir, and she participated in District 11 Spring Music Festival at Wasson High School recently. The schools which feed into Wasson High School send choirs of sixth grade students up to ninth. This year Palmer High School held the instrumental equivalent presentation. The two high schools alternate the singing with the instrumental groups by the year.

Visiting the Wayne Hamiltons on McArthur Avenue, are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arno Capelle of Plymouth, Wis. The Capelles will visit another daughter and family in Denver, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Reeder, who are, themselves, frequent visitors to Colorado Springs.

Rising Incomes Is Forecast for U.S. Consumer

By JOSEPH HUTNYAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Current and past economic trends indicate the average U.S. consumer's standard of living should rise by about 100 per cent during the next 40 years.

By the year 2000, the average breadwinner will be bringing home a pay check ranging from $10,000 to $12,000 per year, nearly double the present figure, according to a study.

Mr. Average Consumer also is expected to be spending more of it on the so-called luxuries—or at least what we classify as luxuries today.

These forecasts all are part of a voluminous report by Resources for the Future Inc. (RFF)—a foundation which spent five years studying past economic history to get a clue of what life would be like in the year 2000.

The report said the present $5,000-a-year average salary would shoot up to $7,500 in 20 years, and then hit at least $10,000 by the year 2000.

Generally, forecasters base this on the belief that the U.S. economy will discover more efficient ways of doing things at less cost in the years ahead.

They expect the value of goods and services produced to rise faster than the population, in effect giving each worker a larger share of this total national income.

"This means," the report said, "that the typical household will be able to afford a standard of living by 1980 enjoyed now by only the highest 20 per cent and, by the end of the century, will be at levels now considered quite well-to-do."

RFF researchers pointed out that in recent years the consumer is spending less of his income for day-to-day necessities such as food, shelter and clothing. This is a natural result of fast-rising incomes.

The reason is that each person can just eat so much and wear a certain amount of clothing. As his income rises, he begins using a larger portion for items normally not considered necessities.

As one economist put it: "When a man makes more money, he can't use it to eat five times as much food but he can buy himself five television sets."

Economists do not expect this rising tide of consumer expenditures in the next 40 years to result in an era where there is a television in every room.

More likely it will take some more conventional channel such as a big increase in two-and three-car families and more families with two homes.

The report said personal consumption expenditures have been rising at a 1½ per cent annual clip for each person for the past 30 years.

It said this figure should be stepped up to about 2 per cent by the end of the century.

"What this 2 per cent growth rate means for the average consumer is an increase in standard of living of almost 50 per cent in the next 30 years, and more than doubling by the end of the century," the report stated.

The RFF study said food, clothing and shelter will still hold top priority in the family budget but will be taking a progressively smaller bite during the years ahead.

It said that of these three, clothing costs probably will shrink the fastest because revolutionary changes in Apparel fiber use and durability has been making it cheaper for consumers to maintain an adequate wardrobe.

Suspect Is Traced In Theft of Plane

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)— Boulder County sheriff's officers said Tuesday police had traced a man charged with stealing a plane rented in Boulder last Friday to Las Vegas, Nev., and then to Los Angeles.

Officers said the suspect, Clifford Judson, flew the plane to Las Vegas where he rented a car using the plane for collateral. He then drove to Los Angeles where he registered at a hotel, officers said.

A warrant has been issued charging Judson with larceny by bailee.

ONE BED TOO MANY

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)— They were supposed to be in "Bedlam in Bedrock" but instead they were in just plain bed.

The York High School senior class variety show, based on the television program "The Flintstones," had to be postponed. Several members of the cast came down with the measles the morning of the performance.

There are 91,334 teachers with emergency or temporary certificates currently employed in public schools, the National Education Association reports.

WACs Hold Key Jobs At Carson

Women's Army Corps officers at Ft. Carson number only seven but they hold key positions headed by Maj. Helen Barron, acting assistant chief of staff for personnel, as they note the 21st anniversary of their corps today.

Others representing the WAC at Colorado's mountain post are Maj. Geraldine Paul of the personnel staff, Capt. Frances Nagel of the intelligence staff, Capt. Doris Blanton of the Adjutant General staff, Capt. Mary Theodoroff who is Central Post Fund custodian, Capt. Madeline Barbour of Special Services and Capt. Mildred Pons of the logistics staff.

On May 14, 1942, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps was recognized as an auxiliary in the Army. In July, 1943, Congress granted the WAAC Army status and dropped the auxiliary term from the title.

The Women's Army Corps has served in every major theater of war since the early years of World War II when they proved their versatiltiy and adaptability and won military status as an integral part of the defense team.

Many were decorated in World War II from unit citations to the Legion of Merit.

WACs serve in many Army branches — Signal, Engineers, Surgeon General, Adjuntant General, Finance and Quartermaster Corps have had WACs assigned.

Mrs. Graham Will Address Democratic Club

The William Alaniva family of 2015 Chelton Rd. are busy with spring activities. Lynn and Karen, students of Wasson High, are working with the B Squad cheer leader group and getting ready for the prom. Doug is on the track team at East Junior High, and Pat is 7th grade representative on the student council there. The family shares together in activities. Alaniva belongs to the Y sprinters and runs three miles a week.

Julie Stevens Hoefer, mother of Gene Bacon of Drakestone Drive, has fully recuperated after a time in the hospital. Mrs. Hoefer's family are pioneers of the region. She was born here in 1882. Her father built the Alta Vista Hotel. Mrs. Hoefer has been a musician and song writer over the years. She wrote a book of songs for her mother and fathers' 50th wedding anniversary. Titles of some of her songs are "You," "Love," "Your Name," "God's World," and "The Human Touch."

Frank Angiers Jr., was home Sunday for Mother's Day from Colorado State University at Fort Collins. Deborah Angiers of Audubon Elementary School joins with the other sixth graders in a Pan American program and Latin American luncheon. They are assisted by room mothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bradley of Holiday Lane are looking forward to their daughter Linda's return home for the summer. She and her brother, Mike, attend the University of Colorado at Boulder. Mike is a senior and he plans to remain in Boulder for the summer for special work on his major, engineering physics.

The square dance class sponsored and taught by Mal and Mrs. Lev Barnes will celebrate their May 21st graduation with a chuck wagon dinner at Ent Sky Line Club. They will receive diplomas and become members of the Sky Line Squares Dance Club. The Barnes boys, Hal and Randy, are going to summer YMCA Camp at Camp Shadybrook. Hal won the broad jump for light weights representing the eighth grade at Horace Mann Jr. High School. He goes to the All City Track Meet Saturday, May 18. His sister, Lee Anne, celebrated her sixth birthday Monday, May 13 with a pink and white party for a group of friends. Those invited were Andy Minan, Buddy Gwin, Colleen Salsbury, Debbie Akers, Jan Lofters, Lynne Stark, Patty Webber, Teddy Doerfiel, Preston Nebel, and Joy Bartholomew.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Brownfield are looking forward to the homecoming of their daughters, Helen of Northwestern State, Alva, Okla., and Sandra from Texas Western College, El Paso. Twin daughters, Catryn and Carolyn, have just had an eighth birthday. The family athlete, Chris, 14, came in second in the city bowling tournament. The area friends are sorry to have to bid goodbye to the Brownfields. Col. Brownfield has recently retired from the military, and the family is moving to Fullerton, Calif.

Members of Moonlighter's Bowling League have ended their season with a banquet at Ent Officers Club at which time trophies were presented to the year's winners, and an election of officers was held. Dean F. Chausser was re-elected president. Birthday congratulations are in order for Mindy Chausser who was eight years old on Mother's Day. Her brother Mike, is starting baseball practice. He was a pitcher last year with Young Americas, and the Old Timers League. Chausser is a real estate broker in Colorado Springs.

The Oliver Cellinis attended a cinerama, showing in Denver, "How The West Was Won." They reported it as very enjoyable. Daughter Beverly, eight years old April 27, is an enthusiastic equestrian student of Mrs. Cassie Cunningham, of the Mark Reyner stables.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Freeman of Drakestone Drive have ended their season of bowling with the team of the Black and White Service Bowlers. Son Philip, is an East Junior High School athlete. He performs in shotput, has run the 50-yard dash, and was recently in the seventh grade relay. Friends meeting with Phillip in City-Wide Track will be Steve Caulder, Dale Isley, Larry Skodack, and other seventh graders of our area. His sister, Cherie, sings in the East Junior High School eighth grade choir, and she participated in District 11 Spring Music Festival at Wasson High School recently. The schools which feed into Wasson High School send choirs of sixth grade students up to ninth. This year Palmer High School held the instrumental equivalent presentation. The two high schools alternate the singing with the instrumental groups by the year.

UNWASHED EGGS BEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eggs will keep longer if they are not washed, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Egg shells are covered with a natural coating that delays the entrance of harmful germs into the interior. Washing will soften this coating, and the eggs are more likely to spoil. Clean, unwashed eggs bring the highest wholesale market prices.

SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE—Application for a $2,000 scholarship to be awarded for the first time this year by the Air Force Academy Officers' Wives Club are presented by past OWC president Mrs. L. S. Rail Brotherhoods Will Resume Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The railroads said today five operating railroad brotherhoods have agreed to resume efforts here Monday to reach a settlement in their work rules dispute before a June 12 deadline for a nationwide strike.

A three-man presidential panel proposed Tuesday a safety test for elimination of unneeded firemen from freight and yard trains, knottiest problem in the 3½-year-old dispute.

Grapes Crown Spring Salad

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Emperor grapes, now excellent and abundant, combine succulently with other fruits in salads and desserts and fruit bowls. Grown in California, they ship and store particularly well, add color and springlike freshness to your family foods.

Tossed Emperor Grape —Pineapple Salad
(6 to 8 servings)

Curley endive
Romaine lettuce
Boston lettuce
2 cups fresh pineapple wedges
1½ cups seeded Emperor grapes
¼ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon fresh orange juice
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash ground white pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon tarragon leaves

Wash and dry salad greens thoroughly. Tear into bite-size pieces, measure 1 cup each and place them in a salad bowl. Add pineapple and grapes. Combine oil, lemon and orange juices, salt, pepper, sugar and tarragon. Beat vigorously with a rotary egg beater. Pour over salad and toss lightly.

Fresh Grapes And Bananas In Sour Cream
(6 servings)

1 cup seeded Emperor grapes
2 large bananas, sliced
1 cup sour cream
3 tablespoons sugar
Grated orange rind, optional

Combine grapes, bananas, sour cream and sugar in a bowl. Toss lightly and chill. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with grated orange rind, if desired.

For the school lunch box: add finely grated carrots and mayonnaise to peanut butter for a sandwich filling.

Candystripers To Be Honored At Punch Party

The annual punch party for Candystripers will be held at St. Francis Hospital in the Conference Room at 2 o'clock Saturday. At this time all girls who have worked within the program during the last year will be honored, and service pins will be awarded. Plans for the summer session of volunteer work will be formulated, and days, departments and times will be assigned. Girls within the program will be given first choice.

New girls who wish to become Candystripers will be welcome at this time. Due to a new policy within the last two weeks, any girl who is fifteen years of age or older and desires to give service to St. Francis Hospital, will be welcomed.

Candystripers work within six fields of volunteer work. These include: selective menus, runner service, pediatrics, the gift shop and cart, lobby hostess and aid services on some of the floors. They give a half to a full day per week.

The Candystripe program is of national origin under the women's division of the American Hospital Association. The Woman's Board of St. Francis Hospital is a member of this organization, thus Candystripers are sponsored by them locally. Service pins are given for fifty hours in one twelve month period, one hundred hours, and five hundred hours.

Since June 1962 85 girls have gone thru the orientation course and been placed within the hospital. Many worked only during the summer vacation months, others only during the winter season. Several have gone straight thru.

Mrs. Marx Lorig is in charge of the Candystripe Program. For information she can be reached at 633-0871.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Not a Fish Story

DEAR ABBY: Another man and I went on a week-end fishing trip. When we came into my home, he met my wife for the first time. When he looked at her, his eyes grew wider, then he turned to me and said, "You must be nuts to leave a beautiful thing like that alone for the week-end." Do you think I was ?—LIKES TO FISH

DEAR LIKES: I don't know about "that" weekend, but the next time you go fishing be sure to take the same man with you.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think that diabetes runs in a family? Our son is getting married to a girl who has diabetes. There are three in her family who have it. There are two in our own family who have it, although my son doesn't. They would like to have four children. The girl says there is a good chance the children would be born with diabetes, but that is the chance my son must take as he has been told of her condition. What is your advice?—YOUNG MAN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your son and his future wife should sit down with a physician and discuss the matter thoroughly with him. Diabetes most certainly does "run" in the family. And when it exists in "both" families, it is doubly dangerous.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just had a heated argument. He came home one evening last week and told me a large company (one he does business with) was having a "dinner". When the night of the "dinner" came, I found out that just a salesman and an assistant buyer were taking him out for dinner and he didn't know where. I say a "company dinner" consists of quite a few men. He says it can be for two or three or more. Please put your answer in the paper as he wants everything in writing, and it may lead to a divorce. —"P"

DEAR "P": Your problem is plainly "not" how many guests make a "company dinner". Your husband may not have described his dinner engagement accurately, but what's the difference? It "was" a business dinner, wasn't it?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "No Fool": Be a little more patient. You never know what kind of battle the next person may be fighting.

Yes, Abby will send you a personal reply if you send her a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your problem.

WACs Hold Key Jobs At Carson

Women's Army Corps officers at Ft. Carson number only seven but they hold key positions headed by Maj. Helen Barron, acting assistant chief of staff for personnel, as they note the 21st anniversary of their corps today.

Others representing the WAC at Colorado's mountain post are Maj. Geraldine Paul of the personnel staff, Capt. Frances Nazel of the intelligence staff, Capt. Doris Blanton of the Adjutant General staff, Capt. Mary Theodoroff who is Central Post Fund custodian, Capt. Madeline Barbour of Special Services and Capt. Mildred Pons of the logistics staff.

On May 14, 1942, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps was recognized as an auxiliary in the Army. In July, 1943, Congress granted the WAAC Army status and dropped the auxiliary term from the title.

The Women's Army Corps has served in every major theater of war since the early years of World War II when they proved their versatility and adaptability and won military status as an integral part of the defense team.

Many were decorated in World War II from unit citations to the Legion of Merit.

WACs serve in many Army branches — Signal, Engineers, Surgeon General, Adjutant General, Finance and Quartermaster Corps have had WACs assigned.

Mrs. Graham Will Address Democratic Club

The Colorado Springs area of the Women's Democratic Club will hold its regular meeting on Saturday, in the Green Room of the Antlers Hotel. The dessert-coffee hour will be followed by a short business session.

The featured speaker of the afternoon will be Mrs. Jean Graham, of Denver, who is National Democratic Committeewoman for Colorado. Mrs. Graham will talk on the subject of "Democratic Women in Politics."

The public is welcome to attend the meeting.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 NT	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣

Declarer's failure in today's hand resulted from his not being aware early in the play as to which diamond honor he was trying to locate.

South's two spade overcall of his opponent's opening one notrump bid is a calculated risk which is warranted by his distributional holding. A pass would run the risk of being shut out altogether and a chance to score might well be lost. When North jumped directly to game, East doubled.

West opened the six of clubs. East put up the ace of clubs and continued with the queen which declarer ruffed. It appeared to South that the diamond suit was more readily establishable than hearts, so at trick two he led a small diamond and finessed North's queen. East was in with the king and another round of clubs reduced declarer to only three trumps.

South decided that it was about time to draw trumps and, in order to avoid a further force on his own spades, he first cashed the ace of hearts and discarded North's last club. The king of spades was led which East took and exited with a spade. Fortunately for declarer, the adverse trumps divided evenly.

A diamond was led over to the ace and the ten of diamonds was returned. East played low and the moment of decisoin had come South finally elected to play for an even split in diamonds, and he used his last spade to trump the trick. When West showed out, East could not be prevented from making good his jack of diamonds for the setting trick.

Declarer had subjected himself to an unnecessary guess in the diamond suit, and his real mistake had been committed early in the hand. When the diamond finesse is taken at trick two, South should play the ten of diamonds from dummy and not the queen. East is for certain marked with the king of diamonds from his conduct during the auction. The deep finesse in the suit will therefore locate the jack without subjecting declarer to any loss. When the finesse does lose to the jack, South can, after cashing the ace of diamonds, take a ruffing finesse through East's king to establish the suit. He loses only one trick each in spades, diamonds, and clubs.

Vatican Pavilian Is Planned at Fair

ROME (AP) — The Vatcian pavilion at the 1964 New York World's Fair will cost an estimated $3 million, but the public will be admitted free, the fair's vice president Charles Poletti, said Tuesday night after a conference with Vatican officials.

He said voluntary contributions, largely from the United States, will finance the exhibit.

Poletti said the pavilion will include Michelangelo's statue of "The Good Shepherd" from Rome's Basilica of St. John Lateran as well as the previously announced "Pieta."

Rules Are Tempered With Etiquette, Practicality

Today's brides and grooms are finding it necessary to temper the traditional rules of etiquette with practicality.

In less hectic times, the bride began to make her plans at least three months before her wedding day. She was able to move serenely from ordering invitations to finding a place for the reception to trying on wedding gowns without any last-minute flurry. She had time to be entertained at showers, and time to fete her bridal party.

No so today.

"Sandra told me this morning she wants to marry Bob two weeks from Saturday," says one mother, "because his company is sending him to North Carolina for sales orientation, and she wants to be with him."

"Dick wires he has three weeks' leave before his regiment goes overseas, so we're planning an informal wedding for Janie on the 9th," says another.

Without time for formal, third-person invitations, the bride's mother settles for informal notes or even phone calls.

There ceremony is at 11 a.m. or 3 p.m. simply because the church and the minister are available.

The bridal party's size is determined by the availability of friends who can participate on short notice.

Guests may not have time to shop for that perfect piece of silver, and may find themselves sending the present later to the couple at their new address.

And with increasing frequency, girls are being married away from their home towns, in chapels and on Army bases far from home, and sometimes halfway around the world.

S plans for semiformal or formal weddings, complete with ushers in cutaways or full dress, are scrapped. The bride usually wants to wear a long, white gown, even though etiquette formerly frowned on it for weddings prior to 4 p.m.

The groom is more than likely to wear his best blue suit, and the ushers may include the groom's 12-year-old brother.

Receptions are realistic, too. A buffet meal at noon, following an 11 o'clock wedding, may be most sensible if the couple is to leave soon after by car for a long trip to a new place of employment.

Members of both families may do their own catering, gathering in the bride's kitchen to prepare canapes, and then to change quickly into their wedding finery.

But eliminating time-honored traditions and ignoring elaborate etiquette rules do not alter the beauty of the marriage ceremony. The vows exchanged are timeless, there is joy in the faces of the bride and groom, and warmth and love in the santuary.

Franks Are Barbecued

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Even famous sub-teen choir boys enjoy barbecued franks George Bragg, music director of the famed Texas Boys Choir which has sung for Pope John at St. Peters, in London's Westminister Abbey and in many other historic places throughout the world, has taught the boys not only how to sing, but also how to whip up easy cowboy and southwestern dishes at their home town of Fort Worth, Texas.

He says the boys are particularly fond of these dishes:

Barbecued Franks, Ranch-Style

1½ pounds large franks
½ cup catsup
2 tablespoons steak sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons water
6 frankfurter rolls

Light oven, set 350 degrees (moderate). Have ready a medium-sized casserole with cover. Prick each frank with a fork in several places. Place franks in casserole. Place all other ingredients in medium - sized mixing bowl and stir together. Pour this mixture over the franks in casserole. Cover the casserole, place on middle shelf of oven and allow to bake for one hour. Serve franks hot between halves of rolls.

Mexican Dinner

1 pound freshly ground beef
2-3 cup quick-cooking rice
1 No. 2 can whole tomatoes
½ cup finely-chopped onions
¼ cup finely-chopped green pepper
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon dry mustard
3 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup evaporated milk

Melt fat in large pan on top of stove. Add chopped onions to fat and fry over low flame until lightly browned. Remove onions from pan and put them in medium-sized bowl. Combine ground beef with onions and mix well. Add evaporated milk, 1 teaspoon salt, all of pepper, chili powder and dry mustard. Shape mixture into 5 or 6 patties. Roll patties in flour on a board. Brown patties in fat which remains in pan in which the onions have been fried. Add green pepper, rice, tomatoes and the other teaspoon of salt. Cover the pan and cook over a very low flame for 15 minutes.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I am a deaf mute. I am the mother of three children.

Before I remove my laundry from the clothes lines . . . I give my three children a squirt bottle (the type that has a push button on top) and let them fill it with hot water and then go to the clothes line and squirt and spray all my clothes before removing them from the line. The children love it!

As soon as this is done my children remove the clothes and roll them up into balls, and put them into plastic bags. I can leave them overnight. The children have pleased me, and they also felt satisfaction out of helping their mother.

I thought this might help "hearing" mothers also. It is great fun . . . whether you can hear or not, just to see your children come home from school and pick up those bottles and spray the clothes on your line and have them sprinkle your clothes.

And may God Bless you always, Heloise. I come from a completely deaf family. I do hope you understand as will some of my other coffee friends. —Rose R.

My grandparents were totally deaf. I talk the sign language! So, I understand. I think you are doing wonderfully with your children.

Wish I was in your kitchen drinking a cup of coffee. Coulcn't we have fun? We "all" love "you"! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My husband works on different shifts . . .

Since this entails my husband eating at one time and us eating at another I solved the problem of having to prepare two different evening meals by saving my foil TV dinner plates from previous purchases.

I prepare dinner for my husband at the appropriate hour. What is left I simply make up six TV dinner plates for me and the children with whatever I have prepared for him.

Now here's the catch:

Since we eat the dinners the same evening there is "no" need to freeze these!

We cover the TV plate with foil and place it in the refrigerator until ready to heat.

When he is on the "other" shift I do it visa versa. When husband comes home, place the dinner in the oven and set it at 400 for about fifteen or twenty minutes.

I dot my potatoes with butter instead of using gravy and put the extra gravy on the meat. This is also an excellent idea for mothers who must leave children with a baby sitter.

Dinners may be prepared in advance for the sitter and children with no extra effort on their part. —Mrs. J. Forbes

Dear Heloise:

By keeping potatoes in your refrigerator it eliminates the growth of "eyes" and also they stay fresh much longer.

I also keep a little of my bacon grease to rub on my baked potatoes and wrap them tightly in aluminum foil before baking. This keeps the potato and skin moist and adds a little flavor. —Judith Moran

---

Dear Judith:

Thanks . . . I tried this for six months. Keeping potatoes in the refrigerator does eliminate the "eyes". Also keeps them from becoming pithy. The bacon grease on the outside skin before baking is fabulous. —Heloise

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

HOLLYWOOD, Jane Powell, rehearsing for a summer theater tour with "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," makes a hatful of money with TV, night clubs, record albums, and concerts. Altho she put in 12 years at Metro from the time she was 14 and gets a top price in other fields as a big movie name, she feels neglected because she hasn't been asked to do a picture lately. She went to school on the Culver City lot with Liz Taylor and was one of the bridesmaids at Liz's wedding to Nicky Hilton.

"But I've never been asked back to M-G-M for a picture," she told me. "They've forgotten me where production is concerned. For a while I felt hurt because Metro was the only thing I knew thru my growing-up years. I feel I have talent—I sing and dance as well as act—and I've always drawn people wherever I've appeared. On TV I write my own ticket so far as shows I want to do are concerned; and my salary is as high as that of anyone else. They often cast people with no following; nobody knows who they are and often they're never heard of again.

"Since I was first identified with movies, I'd like to keep up the identification occasionally. I'd lose confidence in myself if I hadn't always done marvelous business in summer theaters, and my price on TV wouldn't be what it is if I didn't have the ability to get people to look in."

Jane packed them in at the Sahara in Las Vegas last November, again in March of this year, and she's set for a return in September. She'll guest with Perry Como on May 22 live from Chicago. "Molly Brown" opens in Wallingford, Conn., next month and brings her to our new Melodyland theater in Anaheim for an August run, a tight time schedule. She's ad numerous offers to make pictures abroad but turned them down: "There were none I wanted to do. I don't want to make a picture just to say I've been in one; it must be something that will do me some good. Many foreign pictures aren't released—they just escape."

Three or four Broadway offers left her cold: "They were too chancy; it must be something worthwhile. With the children it's a lot of effort to move back there, but I'd do it if the pay is good enough. I'd also like a chance of type; because I sing and dance I'm apt to be caught in that mold." She got an interlocutory decree of divorce from Pat Nerney last week. They'd been married nine and one-half years, separated last fall, then went back together again.

"I went back because you alway say maybe I was wrong. It was the holiday season and I'm a 'I went back because you always and besides, Pat is very sweet. He's doing well now in stocks and bonds, is serious-minded, and I feel he'll be all right."

When I asked, "Who's he in love with?" she answered, "Nobody, as far as I know. You really can't put your finger on it; there's just one thing after another. Monetary things became important to him; money wasn't that important to me and maybe that's the basic difference." She loves to cook, adores children, has practically raised 15-year-old Monie, Pat's daughter by Mona Freeman. Geary, 11, and Suzanne, 10, are Jane's children by her first marriage to Geary Steffen, and 7-year-old Lidsay is by Pat. Even-tempered and logical, she sees Steffen frequently: "Geary married a girl who was a singer; she's very nice. They have three children who attend the same school as mine. When all the kids get together there's quite a crowd. On Easter I had 10 to dinner; next Sunday I'm taking 12 on a picnic."

Makeup Is Important in Studio Picture

WANTAGH, L. I. (AP) —Proud as you may be of that perfect tan you've acquired, it's likely to be a detriment when you have your summer wedding pictures taken.

"A sunburned bride is murder to photograph," says Michael Stanley, who has photographed hundreds of brides in his studio adjoining his wife's bridal shop.

"Since she's surrounded by clouds of white, her fact photographs much too dark."

Even for less tan brides, he recommends using a much lighter pancake makeup than usual.

"There must be balance in total makeup," he comments, "because overemphasizing eyes or or lips or skin detracts from the whole effectiveness of the picture."

Likewise, weak makeup, like a pale orange lipstick, does nothing for the wearer. Stanley recommends sticking to a traditional rosy red.

The wedding photographs Stanley usually makes are three-quarter length, with the bride-to-be in sitting position. Such a picture, he says, will always be attractive, since style changes in the gown's skirt are not detectable.

Because his photographic customers have been coming to his wife's shop from four to six months prior to the wedding, Stanley finds the girls usually quite relaxed when they pose.

"But if they're not, I strike up a conversation about anything but their wedding."

NAIL POLISH?

Will the bride wear nail polish? It's up to her.

Clear is always in good taste. Pink and rosy tones are flattering to hands and the brilliant sparkle of diamonds. Dark polish creates a heavy contrast with a filmy white gown. Irridescene polish in peach and pink lends a soft, ethereal quality.

Bring half a cup of molasses and a tablespoon of butter to a boil; stir in the juice of a lemon and serve over pancakes.

UNWASHED EGGS BEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eggs will keep longer if they are not washed, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Egg shells are covered with a natural coating that delays the entrance of harmful germs into the interior. Washing will soften this coating and the eggs are more likely to spoil. Clean, unwashed eggs bring the highest wholesale market prices.

Candystripers To Be Honored At Punch Party

The [illegible] party for Candystripers [illegible] of St. Francis Hospital [illegible] Saturday. [illegible] girls who have [illegible] the last year will be honored and service pins will be awarded. Plans for the summer session of volunteer work will be formulated and days, departments and times [illegible] will be given [illegible].

New girls who wish to become Candystripers will be welcome at this time. [illegible] within the last two weeks [illegible] years of age [illegible] to give service to St. Francis Hospital [illegible].

Candystripers work within six fields of volunteer work. These include selective menus, runner service, pediatrics, the gift shop and coffee shop hostess and aid services on some of the floors. They give a half to a full day per week.

The Candystripe program is of national origin under the women's division of the American Hospital Association. The Woman's Board of St. Francis Hospital is a member of this organization, thus Candystripers are sponsored by them locally. Service pins are given for fifty hours in one twelve month period, one hundred hours, and five hundred hours.

Since June 1962 [illegible] girls have gone thru the orientation course and been placed within the hospital. Many worked only during the summer vacation months, others only during the winter season. Several have gone straight thru.

Mrs. Mary [illegible] is in charge of the Candystripe Program. For information she can be reached at [illegible].

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Not a Fish Story

DEAR ABBY: Another man and I went on a week-end fishing trip. When we came into my home, he met my wife for the first time. When he looked at her, his eyes grew watery, then he turned to me and said, "You must be nuts to leave a beautiful thing like that alone for the week-end!" Do you think I was? —LIKES TO FISH

DEAR LIKES: I don't know about that weekend, but the next time you go fishing be sure to take the same man with you.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think that diabetes runs in a family? Our son is getting married to a girl who has diabetes. There are three in her family who have it. There are two in our own family who have it, although my son doesn't. They would like to have four children. The girl says there is a good chance the children would be born with diabetes, but that is the chance my son must take as he has been told of her condition. What is your advice?—YOUNG MAN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your son and his future wife should sit down with a physician and discuss the matter thoroughly with him. Diabetes most certainly does "run" in the family. And when it exists in "both" families, it is doubly dangerous.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just had a heated argument. He came home one evening last week and told me a large company (one he does business with) was having a "dinner." When the night of the "dinner" came, I found out that just a salesman and an assistant buyer were taking him out for dinner and he didn't know where I say a "company dinner" consists of quite a few men. He says it can be for two or three people. Please put your answer in the paper as he wants everything in writing, and it may lead to a divorce. —"P"

DEAR "P": Your problem is plainly "not" how many guests make a "company dinner." Your husband may not have described his dinner engagement accurately, but what's the difference? It "was" a business dinner, wasn't it?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "No Fool": Be a little more patient. You never know what kind of battle the next person may be fighting.

Yes, Abby will send you a personal reply if you send her a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your problem.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Rail Brotherhoods Will Resume Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The railroads said today five operating railroad brotherhoods have agreed to resume efforts here Monday to reach a settlement in their work rules dispute before a June 12 deadline for a nationwide strike.

A three-man presidential panel proposed Tuesday a safety test for elimination of unneeded firemen from freight and yard trains, knottiest problem in the 3½-year-old dispute.

Theeeee old dispute.

Grapes Crown Spring Salad

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Emperor grapes, now excellent and abundant, combine succulently with other fruits in salads and desserts and fruit bowls. Grown in California, they ship and store particularly well, add color and springlike freshness to your family foods.

Tossed Emperor Grape —Pineapple Salad
(6 to 8 servings)

Curley endive
Romaine lettuce
Boston lettuce
2 cups fresh pineapple wedges
1½ cups seeded Emperor grapes
¼ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon fresh orange juice
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash ground white pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon tarragon leaves

Wash and dry salad greens thoroughly. Tear into bite-size pieces, measure 1 cup each and place them in a salad bowl. Add pineapple and grapes. Combine oil, lemon and orange juices, salt, pepper, sugar and tarragon. Beat vigorously with a rotary egg beater. Pour over salad and toss lightly.

Fresh Grapes And Bananas In Sour Cream
(6 servings)

1 cup seeded Emperor grapes
2 large bananas, sliced
1 cup sour cream
3 tablespoons sugar
Grated orange rind, optional

Combine grapes, bananas, sour cream and sugar in a bowl. Toss lightly and chill. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with grated orange rind, if desired.

For the school lunch box: add finely grated carrots and mayonnaise to peanut butter for a sandwich filling.

Market Churns Toward New High in Heavy Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market churned toward new highs for the year in heavy trading early this afternoon.

Tobaccos were weak, some auto stocks were briskly traded and higher, coppers advanced , and rails continued to gain on balance although some of their recent advances were trimmed by profit taking.

Aerospace issues were mixed, still showing no particular response to the orbiting of America's latest astronaut.

The advance was slight on balance and was apparently being made against heavy resistance in the form of stock being sold for long-term capital gains. The ability of the market to make progress at all in the face of such offerings was an illustration of its underlying strength, analysts said.

Volume for the first two hours was 2.55 million shares, indicating that if the pace continues, the day's total might be at six million shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 273.8 with industrials up .2, rails up .3, and utilities up .3.

Forecasts of another record sales month for autos and generally encouraging news from corporations helped foster confidence.

Chrysler's new, split stock, yesterday's pacemaker on the big board, added another point Ford, board, added another point. Ford, helped by reports from Italy that it is negotiating to take over the Ferrari firm, maker of racing cars and luxury automobiles, was briskly traded and fractionally higher. General Motors and Studebaker were easy, American Motors firm.

The tobaccos continued weak on news that the New York State Medical Society had taken an official stand against cigarette smoking. Losses exceeding a point were taken by Liggett & Myers, Philip Morris, and R. J. Reynolds.

Gains of about 2 points were posted for Western Union, Polaroid, and Control Data.

As sugar commodity prices continued strong, Great Western Sugar and American Crystal Sugar advanced more than a point. South Puerto Rico Sugar weathered some profit taking and showed a net gain of about a point.

Among the rails, Southern Pacific raised the dividend and gained about a point. Up fractionally were Union Pacific, Southern Railway, and Denver, Rio Grande & Western. New York Central and Illinois Central eased.

National Lead was off 1⅛ at 72 on blocks of 9,000, 11,000, and 20,000 shares.

Anaconda, which reported it has developed a process for extracting aluminum ore from clays found abundantly in the United States, gained about a point, along with Kennecott.

Tung-sol dipped a couple of points. Eastern Airlines rose more than a point. American Airlines rose ¾ to 24 on 10,000 shares.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose .95 at noon to 725.29.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in moderately active trading. Trading was halted temporarily in Rapid American to match a pile up of sell orders. The stock sold off about 2 points when dealings were resumed. A company official was quoted as saying he knew of no reason for the stock's action.

Among other Amex issues, New Process dropped a couple of points in further profit taking on its tremendous advance. Gains of about a point were scored by Syntex and Essex Chemical. Fractional losers included Mead Johnson, Western Equities, British Petroleum, Campbell - Chibougamau, and Allêghany warrants. Exquisite Form, Servo, and Aurora Plastics rose.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Government bonds edged upward.

Kassler & Co. Moves to New Office in Denver

Kassler and Co., one of the region's largest mortgage banking firms, which has a branch office in Colorado Springs, has moved to new and modern headquarters at 600 Grant St. in Denver. The newly remodeled and air-conditioned building has adjacent parking and additional room for expansion.

The company's history dates to the 1880's when the Kassler family, one of the pioneer families in the area, began active operations in the real estate and mortgage field. Formal incorporation of the firm did not take place until 1924 when Hitch-Kassler was formed to deal principally in farm and city loans. Shortly thereafter, the name was changed to Kassler Mortgage Co. and mortgage banking was instituted. From its small beginnings with five employees at its first office in the old U. S. National Bank Building, the company has grown rapidly in the industry to its present standing with more than 135 employees.

Recently, many changes have been made, including the name change to Kassler & Co. in 1952, its purchase by Midwestern Financial Corp. in 1962, and the merger of Inglis Mortgage Co. into Kassler & Co. in 1962. At the present time, Kassler & Co. services approximately 15,000 loans with a total dollar volume approaching $180 million in outstanding mortgages.

Kassler & Co. also has branch offices in Phoenix, Ariz.; Albuquerque, N. M.; Detroit, Mich.; Independence, Mo.; and Cheyenne, Wyo. A production and service office is located in Aurora.

RELEASE PRISONERS

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China released 353 Indian prisoners of war Wednesday, the New China news agency said in a broadcast monitored here.

The Communist agency said the prisoners, captured during Sino-Indian border fighting last year, were released "in the Tibet region on the northern side of Bang Pass." New China also said that 498 more Indian prisoners will be released Monday.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House government information subcommittee will resume its "managed news" investigation Tuesday and broaden it to include news coverage "problems" in Viet Nam.

Chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., said Wednesday the subcommittee would investigate complaints that a Defense Department "space secrecy directive has resulted in questionable withholding of information from the public about U.S. and foreign space activities."

Moss said subsequent hearings would include further testimony on information problems resulting from the Cuban crisis as well as the Viet Nam situation.

Shopping Centers With Enclosed Malls Catch on

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the nearly 7,000 shopping centers that have sprung up across the land in recent years have run into trouble. Too many, too close, or in the wrong locations are some of the reasons.

But one highly specialized form—a relatively newcomer, with an enclosed mall, air-conditioned and heated—boasts it will double its numbers within a year.

These are still comparatively few—20 now and maybe 40 a year from now. And last year their total sales came to $1 billion, compared with $55 billion for all centers.

But proponents say they are catching on both in the North, where artificial heat is a selling point, and in the South and Southwest, where refuge from the natural heat draws in the customers.

These enclosed mall, airconditioned centers, called EMAC cost more to build and to run. The additional cost can run as high as $1 million. The rent can be as much as 25 cents a square foot more. But their builders say that increased sales justify the higher rentals.

Twenty more are reported under construction or planned. In addition, there are a number of major suburban shopping centers with covered malls—the difference is they aren't totally enclosed and air-conditioned. Some of the newer ones are said to be designed with an eye to conversion later.

Most EMAC complexes are 300,000 square feet or larger with a major department store at each end of the mall.

The mall usually contains fountains and benches, gardens or shrubbery. Often the centers offer community and cultural services along with usual diversified retailing facilities.

"Concerts, art exhibits, garden shows, international film and food festivals, and amateur theater productions are just a few of these," says David Muss, president of Winston-Muss Corp. His firm is the builder for the Long Island and New Jersey centers and has others under way near Phoenix, Ariz., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

He says the pioneer of the movement was a center near Edina, Minn., in 1956. This was followed by others near Kansas City and St. Louis.

EMAC is only one of the trends in shopping centers. They are becoming larger and adding more than shops and parking lots. Now found in some centers are hotels, libraries, hospitals, theaters and auditoriums.

Clifton Earnings Up in First Fiscal Half

Clifton Precision Products Co., Inc., reported to its mid-year directors' meeting that the company earned $358,315, or 77 cents a share, on sales of $6,921,035, in the first six motnhs of its fiscal year, the period ended March 31. This compares with earnings of $107,397, or 23 cents a share, on sales of $5,844,330, for the first half of fiscal 1962.

A major factor in this difference was a non-recurring loss suffered by the company in the earlier period as a result of defective bearings purchased from an outside supplier. John P. Glass, Clifton president, explained that the company is now producing many of its own bearings, thus materially reducing dependence on vendors while improving product quality and cutting costs by integrating production processes.

In the company's principal product lines, rotary components for electronic equipment in aircraft and missiles, Clifton's sales remain good despite strong price competition, Glass said, and new products are contributing to sales growth. Clifton products are used in nearly every major guided missile and aircraft including Gemini, Polaris, Dynasoar and Mercury. The company has recently been the successful competitor for supplying components for use in the Apollo guidance system.

A recent result of Clifton's diversification efforts is the invention of a new "display device" principle applicable to a wide variety of commercial and industrial equipment beyond its first experimental use in aircraft readout devices.

It was also announced that the company has nearly completed a construction program at its plants in Clifton Heights, Pa., and Colorado Springs, which doubles the plant space occupied when the program was undertaken two years ago.

DISPATCHED A COON

GLEN ELDER, Kan. (AP) — Nine-year-old Tim Porter returned home from school, found his parents gone and a large raccoon wandering about the farm yard.

Seeing his duty, 31-pound Tim got the family rifle and shot and killed the 35-pound animal.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investment counselor Kenneth Ward of prices in the near future the longer-range trend will be up "but on an even more highly selective basis."

Ward said there is growing doubt the stock market can continue its broad advance without some "correction" or "consolidation." He thinks it would be unwise for investors to "abandon any well-entrenched position in sound dividend paying stocks."

Bache & Co. warns that at this stage the market shows some signs of becoming more selective, and in this light it suggests commitments in selected rails, steels, aluminums and oils.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. points out that the stock list had to overcome a lot of resistance when it reached new 1963 highs. Gilbert presumes that these same favorable forces will continue to dominate the market trend for quite some time ahead.

D. C. Williams Named To Out West Board

William C. Mason, president, announced today the election of D. Claire Williams to the board of directors of the Out West Printing and Stationery Co.

Williams became associated with the company last September as comptroller and manager of the accounting department. He has been a resident of Colorado Springs for 42 years, 27 of which he was associated with the firm of Kingsolver, White, Giffis & Jonson. He attended the public schools of Colorado Springs, Colorado College, and Colorado State College at Greeley.

He has been active in Tejon No. 104, AF and AM; and Rocky Mountain Consistory of Denver, and is a member of Winter Night Club and the Rotary Club of Colorado Springs, of which he is a member of the board of directors. He has been closely associated with the Boy Scouts, Skyline District for the Pikes Peak Council.

During World War II, he served in the armed forces for four years, being attached to Special Services.

The first university press was established at Cornell University in 1869.

Yesterday's Market

Selected Issues Join Advance in Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and selected issues joined the advancing rails and the stock market moved slightly higher late Wednesday in farly active trading.

Volume for the day was estimated at a million shares compared with 4.76 million.

The rails remained well ahead on balance but here and there a few of the recent gainers among them were clipped by profit taking.

Denver, Rio Grande & Western was traded on some big blocks and rose nearly a point. Smaller gains were held by New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Railway, St. Louis-San Francisco, and Illinois Central.

The top steelmakers displayed a string of fractional gains. Motors were mixed, with General Motors steady, Ford a bit lower, and Chrysler up a bit.

Pan American World Airways was up a point and Trans World Airlines a fraction as the U.S. government agreed to higher fares for transatlantic travel.

South Puerto Rico Sugar and DuPont were up about 2.

American Telephone advanced a fraction after some disappointment over failure to increase the dividend was digested.

Lorillard was up about a point as the dividend was upped.

Gains of about 2 were made by Control Data, IBM, Polaroid, and Xerox.

Prices moved generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 NT	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣

Declarer's failure in today's hand resulted from his not being aware early in the play as to which diamond honor he was trying to locate.

South's two spade overcall of his opponent's opening one no-trump bid is a calculated risk which is warranted by his distributional holding. A pass would run the risk of being shut out altogether and a chance to score might well be lost. When North jumped directly to game, East doubled.

West opened the six of clubs. East put up the ace of clubs and continued with the queen which declarer ruffed. It appeared to South that the diamond suit was more readily establishable than hearts, so at trick two he led a small diamond and finessed North's queen. East was in with the king and another round of clubs reduced declarer to only three trumps.

South decided that it was about time to draw trumps and in order to avoid a further force on his own spades, he first cashed the ace of hearts and discarded North's last club. The king of spades was led which East took and exited with a spade. Fortunately for declarer, the adverse trumps divided evenly.

A diamond was led over to the ace and the ten of diamonds was returned. East played low and the moment of decision had come. South finally elected to play for an even split in diamonds and he used his last spade to trump the trick. When West showed out, East could not be prevented from making good his jack of diamonds for the setting trick.

Declarer had subjected himself to an unnecessary guess in the diamond suit, and his real mistake had been committed early in the hand. When the diamond finesse is taken at trick two, South should play the ten of diamonds from dummy and not the queen. East is for certain marked with the king of diamonds from his conduct during the auction. The deep finesse in the suit will therefore locate the jack without subjecting declarer to any loss. When the finesse does lose to the jack, South can, after cashing the ace of diamonds, take a ruffing finesse through East's king to establish the suit. He loses only one trick each in spades, diamonds, and clubs.

Vatican Pavilian Is Planned at Fair

ROME (AP) — The Vatican pavilion at the 1964 New York World's Fair will cost an estimated $3 million, but the public will be admitted free, the fair's vice president Charles Poletti, said Tuesday night after a conference with Vatican officials.

He said voluntary contributions, largely from the United States, will finance the exhibit.

Poletti said the pavilion will include Michelangelo's statue of "The Good Shepherd" from Rome's Basilica of St. John Lateran as well as the previously announced "Pieta."

Rules Are Tempered With Etiquette, Practicality

Today's brides and grooms are finding it necessary to temper the traditional rules of etiquette with practicality.

In less hectic times, the bride began to make her plans at least three months before her wedding day. She was able to move serenely from ordering invitations to finding a place for the reception to trying on wedding gowns without any last-minute flurry. She had time to be entertained at showers, and time to fete her bridal party.

No so today.

"Sandra told me this morning she wants to marry Bob two weeks from Saturday," says one mother, "because his company is sending him to North Carolina for sales orientation, and she wants to be with him."

"Dick writes he has three weeks' leave before his regiment goes overseas, so we're planning an informal wedding for Janie on the 9th," says another.

Without time for formal, third-person invitations, the bride's mother settles for informal notes or even phone calls.

There ceremony is at 11 a.m. or 3 p.m. simply because the church and the minister are available.

The bridal party's size is determined by the availability of friends who can participate on short notice.

Guests may not have time to shop for that perfect piece of silver, and may find themselves sending the present later to the couple at their new address.

And with increasing frequency, girls are being married away from their home towns, in chapels and on Army bases far from home, and sometimes halfway around the world.

S plans for semiformal or formal weddings, complete with ushers in cutaways or full dress, are scrapped. The bride usually wants to wear a long, white gown, even though etiquette formerly frowned on it for weddings prior to 4 p.m.

The groom is more than likely to wear his best blue suit, and the ushers may include the groom's 12-year-old brother.

Receptions are realistic, too. A buffet meal at noon, following an 11 o'clock wedding, may be most sensible if the couple is to leave soon after by car for a long trip to a new place of employment.

Members of both families may do their own catering, gathering in the bride's kitchen to prepare canapes, and then to change quickly into their wedding finery.

But eliminating time-honored traditions and ignoring elaborate etiquette rules do not alter the beauty of the marriage ceremony. The vows exchanged are timeless, there is joy in the faces of the bride and groom, and warmth and love in the santuary.

Franks Are Barbecued

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Even famous sub-teen choir boys enjoy barbecued franks. George Bragg, music director of the famed Texas Boys Choir which has sung for Pope John at St. Peters, in London's Westminster Abbey and in many other historic places throughout the world, has taught the boys not only how to sing, but also how to whip up easy cowboy and southwestern dishes at their home town of Fort Worth, Texas.

He says the boys are particularly fond of these dishes:

Barbecued Franks, Ranch-Style

1½ pounds large franks
½ cup catsup
3 tablespoons steak sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons water
6 frankfurter rolls

Light oven, set 350 degrees (moderate). Have ready a medium-sized casserole with cover. Prick each frank with a fork in several places. Place franks in casserole. Place all other ingredients in medium - sized mixing bowl and stir together. Pour this mixture over the franks in casserole. Cover the casserole, place on middle shelf of oven and allow to bake for one hour. Serve franks hot between halves of rolls.

Mexican Dinner

1 pound freshly ground beef
2-3 cup quick-cooking rice
1 No. 2 can whole tomatoes
½ cup finely-chopped onions
¼ cup finely-chopped green pepper
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon dry mustard
3 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup evaporated milk

Melt fat in large pan on top of stove. Add chopped onions to fat and fry over low flame until lightly browned. Remove onions from pan and put them in medium-sized bowl. Combine ground beef with onions and mix well. Add evaporated milk, 1 teaspoon salt, all of pepper, chili powder and dry mustard. Shape mixture into 5 or 6 patties. Roll patties in flour on a board. Brown patties in fat which remains in pan in which the onions have been fried. Add green pepper, rice, tomatoes and the other teaspoon of salt. Cover the pan and cook over a very low flame for 15 minutes.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I am a deaf mute. I am the mother of three children.

Before I remove my laundry from the clothes lines . . . I give my three children a squirt bottle (the type that has a push button on top) and let them fill it with hot water and then go to the clothes line and squirt and spray all my clothes before removing them from the line. The children love it!

As soon as this is done my children remove the clothes and roll them up into balls, and put them into plastic bags. I can leave them overnight. The children have pleased me, and they also felt satisfaction out of helping their mother.

I thought this might help "hearing" mothers also. It is great fun . . . whether you can hear or not, just to see your children come home from school and pick up those bottles and spray the clothes on your line and have them sprinkle your clothes.

And may God Bless you always, Heloise. I come from a completely deaf family. I do hope you understand as will some of my other coffee friends. —Rose R.

My grandparents were totally deaf. I talk the sign language! So, I understand. I think you are doing wonderfully with your children.

Wish I was in your kitchen drinking a cup of coffee. Couldn't we have fun? We "all" love "you"! —Heloise

---

Dear Heloise:

My husband works on different shifts . . .

Since this entails my husband eating at one time and us eating at another I solved the problem of having to prepare two different evening meals by saving my foil TV dinner plates from previous purchases.

I prepare dinner for my husband at the appropriate hour. What is left I simply make up six TV dinner plates for me and the children with whatever I have prepared for him.

Now here's the catch:

Since we eat the dinners the same evening there is "no" need to freeze these!

We cover the TV plate with foil and place it in the refrigerator until ready to heat.

When he is on the "other" shift I do it visa versa. When husband comes home, place the dinner in the oven and set it at 400 for about fifteen or twenty minutes.

I dot my potatoes with butter instead of using gravy and put the extra gravy on the meat. This is also an excellent idea for mothers who must leave children with a baby sitter.

Dinners may be prepared in advance for the sitter and children with no extra effort on their part. —Mrs. J. Forbes

Dear Heloise:

By keeping potatoes in your refrigerator it eliminates the growth of "eyes" and also they stay fresh much longer.

I also keep a little of my bacon grease to rub on my baked potatoes and wrap them tightly in aluminum foil before baking. This keeps the potato and skin moist and adds a little flavor. —Judith Moran

---

Dear Judith:

Thanks . . . I tried this for six months. Keeping potatoes in the refrigerator does eliminate the "eyes." Also keeps them from becoming pithy. The bacon grease on the outside skin before baking is fabulous. —Heloise

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

HOLLYWOOD, Jane Powell, rehearsing for a summer theater tour with "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," makes a hatful of money with TV, night clubs, record albums, and concerts. Altho she put in 12 years at Metro from the time she was 14 and gets a top price in other fields as a big movie name, she feels neglected because she hasn't been asked to do a picture lately. She went to school on the Culver City lot with Liz Taylor and was one of the bridesmaids at Liz's wedding to Nicky Hilton.

"But I've never been asked back to M-G-M for a picture," she told me. "They've forgotten me where production is concerned. For a while I felt hurt because Metro was the only thing I knew thru my growing-up years. I feel I have talent—I sing and dance as well as act—and I've always drawn people wherever I've appeared. On TV I write my own ticket so far as shows I want to do are concerned, and my salary is as high as that of anyone else. They often cast people with no following; nobody knows who they are and often they're never heard of again.

"Since I was first identified with movies, I'd like to keep up the identification occasionally. I'd lose confidence in myself if I hadn't always done marvelous business in summer theaters, and my price on TV wouldn't be what it is if I didn't have the ability to get people to look in."

Jane packed them in at the Sahara in Las Vegas last November, again in March of this year, and she's set for a return in September. She'll guest with Perry Como on May 22 live from Chicago. "Molly Brown" opens in Wallingford, Conn., next month and brings her to our new Melodyland theater in Anaheim for an August run, a light time schedule. She's had numerous offers to make pictures abroad but turned them down. "There were none I wanted to do. I don't want to make a picture just to say I've been in one; it must be something that will do me some good. Many foreign pictures aren't released—they just escape."

Three or four Broadway offers left her cold. "They were too chancy; it must be something worthwhile. With the children it's a lot of effort to move back there, but I'd do it if the pay is good enough. I'd also like a chance of type, because I sing and dance I'm apt to be caught in that mold." She got an interlocutory decree of divorce from Pat Nerney last week. They'd been married nine and one-half years, separated last fall, then went back together again.

"I went back because you alway say maybe I was wrong. It was the holiday season and I'm a "I went back because you always and besides, Pat is very sweet. He's doing well now in stocks and bonds, is serious-minded, and I feel he'll be all right."

When I asked, "Who's he in love with?" she answered, "Nobody, as far as I know. You really can't put your finger on it; there's just one thing after another. Monetary things became important to him; money wasn't that important to me and maybe that's the basic difference." She loves to cook, adores children, has practically raised 15-year-old Monie, Pat's daughter by Mona Freeman. Geary, 11, and Suzanne, 10, are Jane's children by her first marriage to Geary Steffen, and 7-year-old Lidsay is by Pat. Even-tempered and logical, she sees Steffen frequently. "Geary married a girl who was a singer; she's very nice. They have three children who attend the same school as mine. When all the kids get together there's quite a crowd. On Easter I had 10 to dinner; next Sunday I'm taking 12 on a picnic."

Makeup Is Important in Studio Picture

WANTAGH, L. I. (AP) —Proud as you may be of that perfect tan you've acquired, it's likely to be a detriment when you have your summer wedding pictures taken.

"A sunburned bride is murder to photograph," says Michael Stanley, who has photographed hundreds of brides in his studio adjoining his wife's bridal shop.

"Since she's surrounded by clouds of white, her face photographs much too dark."

Even for less tan brides, he recommends using a much lighter pancake makeup than usual.

"There must be balance in total makeup," he comments, "because overemphasizing eyes or or lips or skin detracts from the whole effectiveness of the picture."

Likewise, weak makeup like a pale orange lipstick does nothing for the wearer. Stanley recommends sticking to a traditional rosy red.

The wedding photographs Stanley usually makes are three-quarter length, with the bride-to-be in sitting position. Such a picture, he says, will always be attractive, since style changes in the gown's skirt are not detectable.

Because his photographic customers have been coming to his wife's shop from four to six months prior to the wedding, Stanley finds the [illegible] quite relaxed when they pose.

But if they're not, [illegible] a conversation about [illegible] their wedding.

NAIL POLISH?

Will the bride wear nail polish? It's up to her.

Clear is always in good taste. Pink and rosy tones are flattering to hands and the brilliant sparkle of diamonds. Dark polish creates a heavy contrast with a filmy white gown. Irridescene polish in peach and pink lends a soft, ethereal quality.

Bring half a cup of molasses and a tablespoon of butter to a boil, stir in the juice of a lemon and serve over pancakes.

Human Skin May Remember, Scientist Says

DENVER (AP) — A public health worker says the human skin may be capable of remembering — and acting a certain way as a direct result of that previous experience.

This theory was presented by Mrs. Shirley H. Ferebee of the U.S. Public Health Service in a paper Tuesday at the annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Mrs. Ferebee, of Washington, D.C., disclosed the result of an unuaul study in tuberculin testing.

The tuberculin test is a skin test which causes an allergic-type reaction in people who have been infected with the TB germ, tubercle bacillus. Once infected, a person has been presumed to be tuberculin-positive the remainder of his life.

Large groups of people were thus tested by government health workers and given similar tests one year later.

"Something strange had happened," said Mrs. Ferebee.

"The number of reactors on the second go-round far exceeded the expected number. . . . It occurred to us that these people might have been infected years ago, that allergy had waned but had been stirred up by the first test, as with a booster shot, with the result that the second test 12 months later was positive."

Similar tests were given at shorter intervals, Mrs. Ferebee said, with the same conclusion that a "recall" phenomenon had occurred.

They showed that the first tests had not sensitized the skin but had "stirred the memory of the body and brought about an allergic response," she said.

Fear Overcome, Crystal City Mayor Declares

By CHARLES GREEN

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP)—Manuel Palacios, dark-skinned owner of a Crystal City tavern, leaned against a stack of beer cases. His voice was soft, with a heavy Spanish accent.

"These people did one big thing for us," he said. "They taught the Mexicanos of Crystal City to overcome fear. Fear was our big problem. Some people had lived here for 50 years and never voted. They were just afraid."

"These people" are members of the Political Association of Spanish-Speaking Organizations who spent four months preparing Mexican-American residents to vote in the city elections April 2.

Their work paid off when five citizens of Mexican descent defeated long-time incumbents in a dramatic upset, and formed the first all-Latin City Council in this southwest Texas town.

Some Latin Americans have for years been elected to the councils of border cities such as Laredo, Tex. They even dominate politics in Zapata County and some small Texas border towns. However, they never before had participated in the government of Crystal City. Their overthrow of the established "Anglo" regime was a spectacular success.

The campaign in Crystal City—PASO'e first concentrated effort to win an election in Texas—began back in November. Association representatives and members of the Teamsters Union met to plan a poll tax drive among the Latin-American citizens who comprise 80 per cent of the town's 9,10 people.

By January 31—the poll tax deadline—the qualified voters with Mexican-American names outnumbered the "Anglos" almost three-to-one.

From then through April 1, association and teamsters men held rallies, private meetings and voter education programs.

More votes were cast than in any other election in the city's history. The Anglo government was turned out of office completely. The city manager subsequently resigned, and a Latin-American was named to his place.

The Teamsters Union is the bargaining agent for the vegetable cannery that is Crystal City's largest industry. PASO's leaders say frankly that they might not have succeeded without Teamsters' Union help. But they say the union's role was only advisory.

However, indications are that the teamsters played a major role, in order to pave the way for organization of farm labor and food processing workers.

Juan Cornejo, business agent for the Teamsters local in Crystal City, was chosen by his fellow councilmen-elect to be mayor. Not long afterwards, Cornejo charged that Texas Ranger Captain A. Y. Allee had "roughed him up" in the City Hall. The mayor filed a $15,000 damage suit. Allee, who had been stationed in the city to keep order, denied the allegation.

Some association members seem convinced the Crystal City success will be repeated in other areas of the Southwest. But there is some dissension.

"We don't want to be identified with any group that uses steamroller tactics," says Claro Carreon of San Antonio, a PASO member for a year. "That's obviously what went on in Crystal City."

Carreon said he also dislikes the autonomy of state and local chapters of PASO, a loosely knit organization formed in Phoenix, Ariz. in February, 1961.

The national president, Dr. Hector Garcia of Corpus Christi, Tex., said he did not know of the Crystal City plans until he read of them in a newspaper.

PASO got its start during the 1960 presidential campaign, when Viva Kennedy clubs popped up among Spanish-speaking people. Leaders of the clubs, impressed by the turnout for Kennedy, decided in Phoenix to form a national organization. It now has chapters in Texas, California, New Mexico, Nevada, and Illinois (Chicago).

Titular head of PASO in Texas is Albert Pena Jr., a lawyer of 45 who is a Bexar County (San Antonio) commissioner.

Asked about steamroller tactics, he replied: "We were happy to see a 95 per cent vote in Crystal City. If this is a steamroller, then we need steamrollers all over the country, because this is democracy in action.'

Prestige Is Going to The Dogs in Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prestige is going to the dogs in the nation's capital.

John Nelson, assistant chief of the District of Columbia Licensing Bureau, said Wednesday that President Kennedy's three dogs will be given the low-number prestige of 1, 2 and 3 on their licenses this year.

Charlie, a Welsh terrior belonging to the Kennedy family has been the No. 1 dog in town for more than a year. But Pushinka, a gift from Soviet Premier Khrushchev, and Clipper, the familys German shepherd, had been relegated to the fairly low status of Nos. 9 and 10.

The new lineup means downgrading for the canine licenses of two other well known families. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's Beagle will drop from No. 2 to No. 4. And FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's Cairn terriers will slip from Nos. 3 and 4 to 5 and 6.

STRONG AND SILENT

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Oscar Thomas King, Jr. is the silent type. When he pulled a 3-year-old boy from the path of a truck, he didn't even tell his mother. She heard about it from neighbor children. The word got around, though, and 13-year-old Tommy received a certificate of heroism from the Boy Scouts.

Low Bid Submitted For Work on Bridge

DENVER (AP) — Ramsour Bros., Inc., Castle Rock, submitted today an apparent low bid of $113,722 for constructiono f a highway bridge to carry Colorado 115 across the Arkansas River in Canon City.

Ten offers were submitted to the Colorado Department of Highways.

The bridge will be a three-span concrete slab and welded girder structure, 246 feet long. Work is to be completed within four months.

Resident engineer E. W. Killin, Pueblo, will supervise the construction.

Railroad Told To Continue Until Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal Judge Leonard Walsh ordered the Southern Railroad today to continue using firemen on diesel engines until the National Railroad Adjustment Board rules on the long standing dispute.

In a memorandum opinion, Walsh enjoined Southern from changing the current practice of using firemen or helpers on diesels.

Southern argued before Walsh that it was compelled to use firemen only if they were currently on the roster and that it was entitled to reduce the rolls through attrition.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen contended that firemen must be aboard diesels under any circumstances.

Walsh said that the court cannot decide the merits of the dispute and added that it was up to the adjustment board.

Walsh cited a section of the Railway Labor Act which said that "working conditions shall not be altered by the carrier until the controversy has been finally acted upon."

Walsh said he interpreted the section as meaning that Southern must continue to use the firemen because "It was the practice of the railroad to operate with a fireman or helper from 1950 until 1959."

SPECIAL VISITOR

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Ordinarily dogs and children are not allowed to visit patients at St. Mary-Corwin Hospital. But rules have been suspended in the case of Al J. Bernardin and his dog, Gallant.

The seeing-eye dog is permitted to see his blind master before and after daily visiting hours. Bernardin is being treated for a broken neck disc.

Intercontinental missles have a range of 5,000 miles and it is expected this will soon be doubled.

Market Churns Toward New High in Heavy Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market churned toward new highs for the year in heavy trading early this afternoon.

Tobaccos were weak, some auto stocks were briskly traded and higher, coppers advanced, and rails continued to gain on balance although some of their recent advances were trimmed by profit taking.

Aerospace issues were mixed, still showing no particular response to the orbiting of America's latest astronaut.

The advance was slight on balance and was apparently being made against heavy resistance in the form of stock being sold for long-term capital gains. The ability of the market to make progress at all in the face of such offerings was an illustration of its underlying strength, analysts said.

Volume for the first two hours was 2.55 million shares, indicating that if the pace continues, the day's total might be at six million shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 273.8 with industrials up .2, rails up .3, and utilities up .3.

Forecasts of another record sales month for autos and generally encouraging news from corporations helped foster confidence.

Chrysler's new, split stock, yesterday's pacemaker on the big board, added another point Ford. board, added another point. Ford, helped by reports from Italy that it is negotiating to take over the Ferrari firm, maker of racing cars and luxury automobiles, was briskly traded and fractionally higher. General Motors and Studebaker were easy. American Motors firm.

The tobaccos continued weak on news that the New York State Medical Society had taken an official stand against cigarette smoking. Losses exceeding a point were taken by Liggett & Myers, Philip Morris, and R. J. Reynolds.

Gains of about 2 points were posted for Western Union, Polaroid, and Control Data.

As sugar commodity prices continued strong, Great Western Sugar and American Crystal Sugar advanced more than a point. South Puerto Rico Sugar weathered some profit taking and showed a net gain of about a point.

Among the rails, Southern Pacific raised the dividend and gained about a point. Up fractionally were Union Pacific, Southern Railway, and Denver, Rio Grande & Western. New York Central and Illinois Central eased.

National Lead was off 1⅝ at 72 on blocks of 9,000, 11,000, and 20,000 shares.

Anaconda, which reported it has developed a process for extracting aluminum ore from clays found abundantly in the United States, gained about a point along with Kennecott.

Tung-sol dipped a couple of points. Eastern Airlines rose more than a point. American Airlines rose ¾ to 24 on 10,000 shares.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose .95 at noon to 725.29.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in moderately active trading. Trading was halted temporarily in Rapid American to match a pile up of sell orders. The stock sold off about 2 points when dealings were resumed. A company official was quoted as saying he knew of no reason for the stock's action.

Among other Amex issues, New Process cropped a couple of points in further profit taking on its tremendous advance. Gains of about a point were scored by Syntex and Essex Chemical. Fractional losers included Mead Johnson, Western Equities, British Petroleum, Campbell - Chibougamau, and Alleghany warrants. Exquisite Form, Servo, and Aurora Plastics rose.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Government bonds edged upward.

Kassler & Co. Moves to New Office in Denver

Kassler and Co., one of the region's largest mortgage banking firms, which has a branch office in Colorado Springs, has moved to new and modern headquarters at 600 Grant St. in Denver. The newly remodeled and air-conditioned building has adjacent parking and additional room for expansion.

The company's history dates to the 1880's when the Kassler family, one of the pioneer families in the area, began active operations in the real estate and mortgage field. Formal incorporation of the firm did not take place until 1924 when Hitch-Kassler was formed to deal principally in farm and city loans. Shortly thereafter, the name was changed to Kassler Mortgage Co. and mortgage banking was instituted. From its small beginnings with five employees at its first office in the old U. S. National Bank Building, the company has grown rapidly in the industry to its present standing with more than 135 employees.

Recently, many changes have been made, including the name change to Kassler & Co. in 1952, its purchase by Midwestern Financial Corp. in 1962, and the merger of Inglis Mortgage Co. into Kassler & Co. in 1962. At the present time, Kassler & Co. services approximately 15,000 loans with a total dollar volume approaching $180 million in outstanding mortgages.

Kassler & Co. also has branch offices in Phoenix, Ariz.; Albuquerque, N. M.; Detroit, Mich.; Independence, Mo., and Cheyenne, Wyo. A production and service office is located in Aurora.

TO EXTEND PROBE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House government information subcommittee will resume its "managed news" investigation Tuesday and broaden it to include news coverage problems in Viet Nam.

Chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., said Wednesday the subcommittee would investigate complaints that a Defense Department "space secrecy" directive has resulted in questionable withholding of information from the public about U. S. and foreign space activities.

Shopping Centers With Enclosed Malls Catch on

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the nearly 7,000 shopping centers that have sprung up across the land in recent years have run into trouble. Too many, too close, or in the wrong locations are some of the reasons.

But one highly specialized form—a relatively newcomer, with an enclosed mall, air-conditioned and heated—boasts it will double its numbers within a year.

These are still comparatively few—20 now and maybe 40 a year from now. And last year their total sales came to $1 billion, compared with $55 billion for all centers.

But proponents say they are catching on both in the North, where artificial heat is a selling point, and in the South and Southwest, where refuge from the natural heat draws in the customers.

These enclosed mall, air-conditioned centers, called EMAC, cost more to build and to run. The additional cost can run as high as $1 million. The rent can be as much as 25 cents a square foot more. But their builders say that increased sales justify the higher rentals.

Twenty more are reported under construction or planned. In addition, there are a number of major suburban shopping centers with covered malls—the difference is they aren't totally enclosed and air-conditioned. Some of the newer ones are said to be designed with an eye to conversion later.

Most EMAC complexes are 300,000 square feet or larger with a major department store at each end of the mall.

The mall usually contains fountains and benches, gardens or shrubbery. Often the centers offer community and cultural services along with usual diversified retailing facilities.

"Concerts, art exhibits, garden shows, international film and food festivals, and amateur theater productions are just a few of these," says David Mass, president of Winston-Mass Corp. His firm is the builder for the Long Island and New Jersey centers and has others under way near Phoenix, Ariz., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

He says the pioneer of the movement was a center near Edina, Minn., in 1956. This was followed by others near Kansas City and St. Louis.

EMAC is only one of the trends in shopping centers. They are becoming larger and adding more than shops and parking lots. Now found in some centers are hotels, libraries, hospitals, theaters and auditoriums.

Clifton Earnings Up in First Fiscal Half

Clifton Precision Products Co., Inc., reported to its mid-year directors' meeting that the company earned $358,315, or 77 cents a share on sales of $6,921,035 in the first six months of its fiscal year, the period ended March 31. This compares with earnings of $107,397, or 23 cents a share, on sales of $5,844,330, for the first half of fiscal 1962.

A major factor in this difference was a non-recurring loss suffered by the company in the earlier period as a result of defective bearings purchased from an outside supplier. John P. Glass, Clifton president, explained that the company is now producing many of its own bearings, thus materially reducing dependence on vendors while improving product quality and cutting costs by integrating production processes.

In the company's principal product lines, rotary components for electronic equipment in aircraft and missiles, Clifton's sales remain good despite strong price competition, Glass said, and new products are contributing to sales growth. Clifton products are used in nearly every major guided missile and aircraft including Gemini, Polaris, Dynasoar and Mercury. The company has recently been the successful competitor for supplying components for use in the Apollo guidance system.

A recent result of Clifton's diversification efforts is the invention of a new "display device" principle applicable to a wide variety of commercial and industrial equipment beyond its first experimental use in aircraft readout devices.

It was also announced that the company has nearly completed a construction program at its plants in Clifton Heights, Pa., and Colorado Springs, which doubles the plant space occupied when the program was undertaken two years ago.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investment counselor Kenneth Ward of prices in the near future the longer-range trend will be up "but on an even more highly selective basis."

Ward said there is growing doubt the stock market can continue its broad advance without some "correction" or "consolidation." He thinks it would be unwise for investors to "abandon any well-entrenched position in sound dividend paying stocks."

Bache & Co. warns that at this stage the market shows some signs of becoming more selective, and in this light it suggests commitments in selected rails, steels, aluminums and oils.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. points out that the stock list had to overcome a lot of resistance when it reached new 1963 highs. Gilbert presumes that these same favorable forces will continue to dominate the market trend for quite some time ahead.

D. C. Williams Named To Out West Board

William C. Mason, president, announced today the election of D. Claire Williams to the board of directors of the Out West Printing and Stationery Co.

Williams became associated with the company last September as comptroller and manager of the accounting department. He has been a resident of Colorado Springs for 42 years, 27 of which he was associated with the firm of Kingsolver, White, Giffs & Jonson. He attended the public schools of Colorado Springs, Colorado College and Colorado State College at Greeley.

He has been active in Tejon No. 104 AF and AM, and Rocky Mountain Consistory of Denver and is a member of Winter Night Club and the Rotary Club of Colorado Springs, of which he is a member of the board of directors. He has been closely associated with the Boy Scouts Sky-line District for the Pikes Peak Council.

During World War II he served in the armed forces for four years, being attached to Special Services.

The first university press was established at Cornell University in 1869.

Yesterday's Market

Selected Issues Join Advance in Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and selected issues joined the advancing rails and the stock market moved slightly higher late Wednesday in fairly active trading.

Volume for the day was estimated at a million shares compared with 4.76 million.

The rails remained well ahead on balance but here and there a few of the recent gainers among them were clipped by profit taking.

Denver, Rio Grande & Western was traded on some big blocks and rose nearly a point. Smaller gains were held by New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Railway, St. Louis-San Francisco, and Illinois Central.

The top steelmakers displayed a string of fractional gains. Motors were mixed, with General Motors steady, Ford a bit lower, and Chrysler up a bit.

Pan American World Airways was up a point and Trans World Airlines a fraction as the U.S. government agreed to higher fares for transatlantic travel.

South Puerto Rico Sugar and DuPont were up about 2.

American Telephone advanced a fraction after some disappointment over failure to increase the dividend was digested.

Lorillard was up about a point as the dividend was upped.

Gains of about 2 were made by Control Data, IBM, Polaroid, and Xerox.

Prices moved generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Human Skin May Remember, Scientist Says

DENVER (AP) — A public health worker says the human skin may be capable of remembering — and acting a certain way as a direct result of that previous experience.

This theory was presented by Mrs. Shirley H. Ferebee of the U.S. Public Health Service in a paper Tuesday at the annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Mrs. Ferebee, of Washington, D.C., disclosed the result of an unusual study in tuberculin testing.

The tuberculin test is a skin test which causes an allergic-type reaction in people who have been infected with the TB germ, tubercle bacillus. Once infected, a person has been presumed to be tuberculin-positive the remainder of his life.

Large groups of people were thus tested by government health workers and given similar tests one year later.

"Something strange had happened," said Mrs. Ferebee.

"The number of reactors on the second go-round far exceeded the expected number. . . . It occurred to us that these people might have been infected years ago, that allergy had waned but had been stirred up by the first test, as with a booster shot, with the result that the second test 12 months later was positive."

Similar tests were given at shorter intervals, Mrs. Ferebee said, with the same conclusion that a "recall" phenomenon had occurred.

They showed that the first tests had not sensitized the skin but had "stirred the memory of the body and brought about an allergic response," she said.

Railroad Told To Continue Until Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal Judge Leonard Walsh ordered the Southern Railroad today to continue using firemen on diesel engines until the National Railroad Adjustment Board rules on the long standing dispute.

In a memorandum opinion, Walsh enjoined Southern from changing the current practice of using firemen or helpers on diesels.

Southern argued before Walsh that it was compelled to use firemen only if they were currently on the roster and that it was entitled to reduce the rolls through attrition.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen contended that firemen must be aboard diesels under any circumstances.

Walsh said that the court cannot decide the merits of the dispute and added that it was up to the adjustment board.

Walsh cited a section of the Railway Labor Act which said that "working conditions shall not be altered by the carrier until the controversy has been finally acted upon."

Walsh said he interpreted the section as meaning that Southern must continue to use the firemen because "It was the practice of the railroad to operate with a fireman or helper from 1950 until 1959."

Fear Overcome, Crystal City Mayor Declares

By CHARLES GREEN

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — Manuel Palacios, dark-skinned owner of a Crystal City tavern, leaned against a stack of beer cases. His voice was soft, with a heavy Spanish accent.

"These people did one big thing for us," he said. "They taught the Mexicanos of Crystal City to overcome fear. Fear was our big problem. Some people had lived here for 50 years and never voted. They were just afraid."

"These people" are members of the Political Association of Spanish-Speaking Organizations who spent four months preparing Mexican-American residents to vote in the city elections April 2.

Their work paid off when five citizens of Mexican descent defeated long-time incumbents in a dramatic upset, and formed the first all-Latin City Council in this southwest Texas town.

Some Latin Americans have for years been elected to the councils of border cities such as Laredo, Tex. They even dominate politics in Zapata County and some small Texas border towns. However, they never before had participated in the government of Crystal City. Their overthrow of the established "Anglo" regime was a spectacular success.

The campaign in Crystal City—PASO'e first concentrated effort to win an election in Texas—began back in November. Association representatives and members of the Teamsters Union met to plan a poll tax drive among the Latin-American citizens who comprise 80 per cent of the town's 9,10 people.

By January 31—the poll tax deadline—the qualified voters with Mexican-American names outnumbered the "Anglos" almost three-to-one.

From then through April 1, association and teamsters men held rallies, private meetings and voter education programs.

More votes were cast than in any other election in the city's history. The Anglo government was turned out of office completely. The city manager subsequently resigned, and a Latin-American was named to his place.

The Teamsters Union is the bargaining agent for the vegetable cannery that is Crystal City's largest industry. PASO's leaders say frankly that they might not have succeeded without Teamsters' Union help. But they say the union's role was only advisory.

However, indications are that the teamsters played a major role, in order to pave the way for organization of farm labor and food processing workers.

Juan Cornejo, business agent for the Teamsters local in Crystal City, was chosen by his fellow councilmen-elect to be mayor. Not long afterwards, Cornejo charged that Texas Ranger Captain A. Y. Allee had "roughed him up" in the City Hall. The mayor filed a $15,000 damage suit. Allee, who had been stationed in the city to keep order, denied the allegation.

Some association members seem convinced the Crystal City success will be repeated in other areas of the Southwest. But there is some dissension.

"We don't want to be identified with any group that uses steamroller tactics," says Cato Carreon of San Antonio, a PASO member for a year. "This is obviously what went on in Crystal City."

Carreon said he also [illegible] the autonomy of state and local chapters of PASO, a loosely knit organization formed in Phoenix, Ariz., in February, 1961.

The national president, Dr. Hector Garcia of Corpus Christi, Tex., said he did not know of the Crystal City plans until he read of them in a newspaper.

PASO got its start during the 1960 presidential campaign when Viva Kennedy clubs popped up among Spanish-speaking people. Leaders of the clubs, impressed by the turnout for Kennedy, decided in Phoenix to form a national organization. It now has chapters in Texas, California, New Mexico, Nevada, and Illinois (Chicago).

Titular head of PASO in Texas is Albert Pena Jr., a lawyer of 45 who is a Bexar County (San Antonio) commissioner.

Asked about steamroller tactics, he replied: "We were happy to see a 95 per cent vote in Crystal City. If this is a steamroller, then we need steamrollers all over the country, because this is democracy in action."

Prestige Is Going to The Dogs in Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prestige is going to the dogs in the nation's capital.

John Nelson, assistant chief of the District of Columbia Licensing Bureau, said Wednesday that President Kennedy's three dogs will be given the low-number prestige of 1, 2 and 3 on their licenses this year.

Charlie, a Welsh terrior belonging to the Kennedy family has been the No. 1 dog in town for more than a year. But Pushinka, a gift from Soviet Premier Khrushchev, and Clipper, the familys German shepherd, had been relegated to the fairly low status of Nos. 9 and 10.

The new lineup means downgrading for the canine licenses of two other well known families. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's Beagle will drop from No. 2 to No. 4. And FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's Cairn terriers will slip from Nos. 3 and 4 to 5 and 6.

STRONG AND SILENT

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Oscar Thomas King, Jr. is the silent type. When he pulled a 3-year-old boy from the path of a truck, he didn't even tell his mother. She heard about it from neighbor children. The word got around, though, and 13-year-old Tommy received a certificate of heroism from the Boy Scouts.

Low Bid Submitted For Work on Bridge

DENVER (AP) — Ramseur Bros., Inc., Castle Rock, submitted today an apparent low bid of $113,722 for constructiono f a highway bridge to carry Colorado 115 across the Arkansas River in Canon City.

Ten offers were submitted to the Colorado Department of Highways.

The bridge will be a three-span concrete slab and welded girder structure, 246 feet long. Work is to be completed within four months.

Resident engineer E. W. Kilin, Pueblo, will supervise the construction.

Sorehead Found in Group of Students

BELGRADE (AP) — A professor at the Belgrade Electro-Technic Institute answered the phone and heard a muffled voice say: "I broke your automobile windshield because you flunked me in the exam."

Police said there was no use trying to trace the culprit. More than 100 of the professor's students had failed.

Partridge Caught For Own Protection

NOVI SAD, Yugoslavia (AP — Hunters in northern Yugoslavia turned out without guns during the heavy snows and extreme cold this winter to catch 20,000 partridges in nets.

They were taken to protected shelters where they could be kept until spring.

Then they will be released and the truce will end. The hunters will be after them again—with guns.

Money Lost From 'Blessed' Billfold

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — John Burnett, 8, won't be so quick next time to have his wallet "blessed."

Two women asked him to give them a chicken so they could make broth for a sick child, Burnett told the sheriff's office. He didn't have a chicken so he gave them $2. The women then gratefully offered to "bless" his billfold. He later discovered $119 missing from it.

A BOATSWAIN ADMIRAL IN THE AIR FORCE?? — Lt. Col. Ray Hutchins of the U. S. Air Force, gives off the biggest grin this side of a toothpaste commercial as he is made an honorary admiral in the Mountain Navy and is presented with an engraved Navy Boatswain's pipe. Both should hold the NORAD officer in good stead at his next assignment in Reno, Nev. Doing the honors for the Navy is Capt. V. Erwin, commander of Naval forces for the Continental Air Command.

Famous Pecan Tree Saved From Highway

CISCO, Tex. (AP) — The famous Burkett Pecan Tree, the original pecan from which came the Burkett nut variety, is safe from the progress of modern "freeway" expansion.

The tree, located just north of U.S. Highway 80 between Baird and Cisco, will be in a sheltered plot between the main freeway and a new frontage road.

District highway engineer Jake Roberts knows a good pecan when he peels one. A handful of pecans presented by owner Omar Burkett helped decide the tree's fate.

GROWING BIZ

NEW YORK (UPI) — Caring for the health of farm animals is a business certain to grow, believes Whitmoyer Laboratories, which makes 90 products for livestock and poultry growers. The company says millions of calves, sheep, swine and poultry die yearly that could be saved and brought to market.

Capital News

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washinton:

MILITARY BUYING: Congress has approved and sent to President Kennedy a bill authorizing military purchases of $15.3 billion.

This is $44.4 million less than the administration requested. The reduction actually was deeper, for included in the authorization was $363.7 million for construction of two additional RS70 planes—money for the administration didn't ask and probably won't spend.

All told, Congress denied some $408 million of the military procurement the Pentagon originally proposed.

The authorization, which the House completed final legislative action on Tuesday, only sets ceilings. The subsequent appropriation may trim the spending further.

CIVIL RIGHTS: Atty. Gen. Robet F. Kennedy has postponed his appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on the administration's proposed civil-rights legislation.

He was scheduled to testify today but a subcommittee spokesman said Kennedy asked that his testimony be heard later.

POWELL TRAVEL: The House has refused to approve an overseas trip next month for four members of the Education and Labor Committee headed by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y.

But its refusal—on a 217 to 153 roll call—won't keep Powell and a Republican colleague from making the trip. As official House delegates to the International Labor Organization conference in Geneva, their expenses will be paid by the State Department.

The House vote was on a resolution that would have allowed two delegates and two alternates to go from the committee with their expenses to be paid from appropriated funds or from foreign currencies available to the State Department.

Republicans and Southern Democrats provided most of the votes defeating the resolution.

The delegates, named by the House speaker, will be Powell and Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio.

Sorehead Found in Group of Students

BELGRADE (AP) — A professor at the Belgrade Electro-Technic Institute answered the phone and heard a muffled voice say: "I broke your automobile windshield because you [illegible] the exam."

Police said there was no use trying to trace the culprit. More than 100 of the professor's students had failed.

Partridge Caught For Own Protection

NOVI SAD, Yugoslavia (AP) — Hunters in northern Yugoslavia turned out without guns [illegible] the heavy snows and extreme cold this winter to catch 2,000 partridges in nets.

They were taken to protected shelters where they will be fed until spring.

Then they will be released and the truce will end. The hunters will be after them again—with guns.

Money Lost From 'Blessed' Billfold

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — [illegible] Barnett, 8, won't be so quick next time to have his wallet blessed.

Two women asked him to give them a chicken so they could make broth for a sick child, Barnett told the sheriff's office. He didn't have a chicken so he gave them $2. The women then gratefully offered to bless his billfold. He later discovered $119 missing from it.

A BOATSWAIN ADMIRAL IN THE AIR FORCE?? — Lt. Col. Ray Hutchins of the U.S. Air Force gives off the biggest grin this side of a toothpaste commercial as he is made an honorary admiral in the Mountain Navy and is presented with an engraved Navy Boatswain's pipe. Both should hold the NORAD officer in good stead at his next assignment in Reno, Nev. Doing the honors for the Navy is Capt. V. Erwin, commander of Naval forces for the Continental Air Command.

Capital News

WASHINGTON (AP) — [illegible] news from Washington:

MILITARY BUYING: Congress has approved and sent to President Kennedy a bill authorizing military purchases of $[illegible] billion.

This is $444 million less than the administration requested. The reduction actually was deeper, for included in the authorization was $363.7 million for construction of two additional RS70 planes—money the administration didn't ask and probably won't spend.

All told, Congress denied some $408 million of the military procurement the Pentagon originally proposed.

The authorization, on which the House completed final legislative action on Tuesday, only sets ceilings. The subsequent appropriation may trim the spending further.

CIVIL RIGHTS: Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has postponed his appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on the administration's proposed civil rights legislation.

He was scheduled to testify today but a subcommittee spokesman said Kennedy asked that his testimony be heard later.

POWELL TRAVEL: The House has refused to approve an overseas trip next month for four members of the Education and Labor Committee headed by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y.

But its refusal—on a 217 to [illegible] roll call—won't keep Powell and a Republican colleague from making the trip. As official House delegates to the International Labor Organization conference in Geneva, their expenses will be paid by the State Department.

The House vote was on a resolution that would have allowed two delegates and two alternates to go from the committee with their expenses to be paid from appropriated funds or from foreign currencies available to the State Department.

Republicans and Southern Democrats provided most of the votes defeating the resolution.

The delegates, named by the House speaker, will be Powell and Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio.

Famous Pecan Tree Saved From Highway

CISCO, Tex. (AP) — The famous Burkett Pecan Tree, the original pecan from which came the Burkett nut variety, is safe from the progress of modern freeway expansion.

The tree, located just north of U.S. Highway 80 between Baird and Cisco, will be in a sheltered plot between the main freeway and a new frontage road.

District highway engineer Jake Roberts knows a good pecan when he sees one. A handful of pecans presented by owner Omar Burkett helped decide the tree's fate.

GROWING BIZ

NEW YORK (UPI) — Caring for the health of farm animals is a business certain to grow, believes Whitmoyer Laboratories, which makes 90 products for livestock and poultry growers. The company says millions of calves, sheep, swine and poultry die yearly that could be saved and brought to market.

Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Charges Against Private Schools

We are in the midst of our discussion on taxation and schools. The series began five days ago and here we have parts nine and ten, the concluding parts of this series.

Questioner: You've established that there are private schools. Also, that in the field of higher education there are more private schools than government schools. But you haven't shown how we could have as many schools in the secondary and primary levels if we relied solely on contributions and tuitions.

Also, you haven't touched on the fact that many of our private and independent schools are oriented to some church or that they tend to become "snob" schools with excessively high tuition.

Where would children go to school if tuitions were uniformly high?

Where would children go to school to obtain academic training outside of the religious field if only the private schools existed? Wouldn't there be a preponderance of church-oriented schools?

Answer: You have actually asked three questions. We'll try to answer them in order.

First, we will concede that we might not have as many schools as we now have. We don't know this, of course. We might have more. But we would have schools in the degree that a demand for schools existed. This is the nature of the market place. And in a country where the people have more than 60 million motor cars on the road, it is entirely possible that they would also provide sufficient schools to offer education to their own children.

One thing you may have overlooked. Americans love their children. Indeed, most of us take the view that there is nothing too good for our children. We want them to have a situation better than the one we had. And most of us are eager to do something about this. That is why we insist that our children have more and better clothes than we had; more and better food; better means of transportation and more of it. If anything is apparent, it is the fact of our constant dotage on our own children.

Why we would find ourselves impotent to provide more and better schools if we were in an improved financial position beggars the imagination. And the fact is that without having to pay the enormous school taxes, we would most of us be in a better financial position.

Now, about church-oriented schools. First of all, we see nothing wrong with this. If particular church groups wish to have their children educated in the religion of their own choice, we cannot object. But it would also be true, as it is true now, that some people do not want their children brought up in any particular sect or believing in any particular creed. To the degree that this was true, to this degree the market place would tend to provide the non-church-oriented type of school.

Now, about the "snob" charge. It is probably true at the moment that some schools have obtained this onus as a result of attitudes engendered. But it is far from being a constant. Also, in most cases it is far from being deserved. Probably one of the reasons for the "snobbery" charge is the fact that in contrasting government schools with private and independent schools, the latter provide a higher level of academic excellence as a rule. Who's Who in America reveals that the vast majority of Americans who become leaders in business, literature, the arts, and so on obtained at least some of their education in private or independent schools.

But there is something else that happens here which you haven't mentioned.

Questioner: What is that?

Answer: It is the working of the market place. Let's discuss that.

Fear Creates Scarcity

Good ideas are always in scarce supply. The reason is that so many people are afraid of them.

Why Not Moral Education

Questioner: Would market place rules apply to schools if we did not have government schools?

Answer: Yes, indeed. As a matter of fact, market rules apply, anyhow. They would simply work better if there were less interference. In the market place if only one firm makes vacuum cleaners, would the price of vacuum cleaners tend to be high or low?

Questioner: That would be a monopoly. The price would be high.

Answer: It would not necessarily mean a monopoly, but you are right about the price. The price would tend to be high. What would happen if more firms got into business of making vacuum cleaners? Would the price go up or down?

Questioner: It could go either way.

Answer: No. We are assuming a free market. The price would tend to come down. In fact, the more people who were making vacuum cleaners, the more the price would tend to be lowered.

Questioner: Yes, I guess that is right unless the manufacturers got together to keep the price up.

Answer: We are assuming a free market. Without government backing, no group of manufacturers could keep the price high indefinitely. In a free market, the more producers, the lower the price. The same would apply to schools. The more private schools there were, the lower the tuition rates would tend to fall. In private and independent schools right now, tuition rates are very low. In higher education, tuition costs are competitive whether you go to a state-supported school or a private school. With government completely out of the education picture, we would tend to have many more schools at ever lower tuition costs.

Questioner: But there still might be many people who couldn't afford to send their children. What about them? Is it right for them to grow up without a chance for an education?

Answer: Now that you've mentioned "right" again, let's get at that point. We agree that it would be fine for every child to have an opportunity to be educated. But in this day and age, even in spite of high taxes an education for almost any child who evinces a desire to learn would be possible. There are many private persons who have put up millions of dollars and do so every year just to help those who wish to get an education.

But let's get back to this matter of rightness. Earlier, we talked about taking money from people against their wills. You agreed that it was wrong to take money by force. This, we agreed, was immoral. Now, as a result of a logical examination of the question, you also agreed that voting in favor of a tax did not change the nature of the act of collecting the tax. Those persons who do not willingly pay the tax are being robbed when they are compelled to pay that tax.

Mind you, we are not talking at all about those persons who wish to be taxed for schools. They have a right to wish to be taxed, and indeed to be taxed. But they have no right to compel you to pay a tax for something you don't wish to support, whether that something is a reward to a murderer or a scholarship for a student.

Questioner: Yes, I remember.

Answer: Very well. Now, what we both want is more education and better schools. Wouldn't it be better to have our schools supported voluntarily than to have them supported by some kind of legalized theft, sanctified by the voting process?

Questioner: Let me concede a point. Let me admit that it would be BETTER. But how do you know you could do it? How do you know you'd get enough money to provide all the education required?

Answer: We don't KNOW. But we never will know unless we try. What is wrong with trying to improve the quality of the education our children receive by insisting that the money to be used for it be raised in a moral and proper manner?

This is all we are trying to say. We do not wish to abolish anything. We are FOR education. But we are FOR moral education, based upon a fair and reasonable method of obtaining money. It is NOT correct to take money from persons against their wills. And it isn't necessary to do so.

Our market place is the greatest in the world. It has provided us with more homes, cars, churches, food, clothing, comforts and luxuries than all other nations combined and it has done it on a voluntary market basis.

There is no logical reason to suppose that education provides an exception to the general rule.

Blue Plate Political Specials

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Senator William Proxmire is adding a new dimension to his favorite oratorical topic — "fiscal responsibility."

He is promoting a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner in his own behalf.

Last week this column disclosed that the highest-paid employe on the senatorial payroll of the Wisconsin liberal Democrat was a full-time graduate student at the University of Wisconsin. Frank J. Campenni, 33, was getting $14,596 as "legislative assistant," although he does not live in Washington and hadn't done a lick of work in Proxmire's office.

This column pointed out that this curious situation was in striking contrast to a pet role of Proxmire — of declaiming often and at length about economizing, fiscal responsibility (a favorite expression) and the need to balance the federal budget.

When Proxmire got wind of this column's interest in his high-salaried absentee employe, he suddenly issued a three-page statement announcing he was repaying the government upwards of $9,000 — the salary plus interest Campenni had received since Proxmire put him on his payroll last August. The Senator solemnly explained he was doing this wholly on his own initiative, and that Campenni would come to Washington in June to head his office staff.

Several days later Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., who also faces a tough re-election stuggle next year, warmly lauded Proxmire for his high sense of public responsibility. Mansfield carefully said nothing about Proxmire having had this high-paid absentee employee on his payroll for eight months and acting only when he learned this was to be published.

The $25-a-plate dinner Proxmire is now busily organizing is avowedly to raise funds for his re-election campaign next year. Proxmire's unannounced goal is $25,000.

The affair is to be a buffet on June 25, in one of Washington's new hotels that seems to specialize in fund-raising events. No speakers have yet been selected, and other important arrangements are still up in the air.

Proxmire has encountered some difficulty in putting together an imposing list of "sponsors." At least several prominent Democrats turned him down.

PROFITABLE SHINDIGS

Proxmire's fund-raising dinner is the latest to be launched.

It will be the last if Senator Warren Magnuson, Wash., chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, has his way. He wants to concentrate all fund-raising in his committee, and is urgently appealing to other Democratic senators up for election to support his plan.

In return, Magnuson is offering them $5,000 each this year and at least $10,000 next year. How far he will get with that remains to be seen.

So far, individual fund-raising dinners have been far more productive.

One for Senator Howard Cannon, D-Nev., in Las Vegas, raised $100,000 for his 1964 electioneering. This was a $100-a-plate affair attended by more than 1,000. A special plane with some 70 Washington notables flew to the famed resort city for the occasion. From their elated accounts, a "wonderful time" was had by all.

Another dinner for Senator Vance Hartke, Inc., in Washington, netted more than $40,000. The charge was $50-a-plate, and close to 1,000 tickets were sold.

Next Monday a $100-a-plate dinner is being held in the capital for Senator Frank Moss, Utah. Former President Truman has contributed $25, the only senatorial fund to which he has contributed. Truman, Vice President Lyndon Johnson and Senator Clinton Anderson, N.M., are honorary chairmen of Moss' affair. Anderson will act as master of ceremonies.

President Kennedy will be the big attraction at $1,000-a-plate dinners in New York on May 23, and in Los Angeles on June 20.

Similar affairs also are contemplated in Chicago, Boston and Dallas. No dates have yet been set for them, but they will take place this year, probably in the fall. Funds from these events will go the Democratic National Committee.

More than $1 million was netted last winter at a combined $1,000-a-plate dinner and $100-a-ticket gala to celebrate the second anniversary of the Kennedy administration.

REBUFFED

President Kennedy ran head-on into a cool reception when he sounded out House Democratic leaders on increasing the pay of government scientists to $22,550, the same amount received by Congress. The President, seconded by Dr. Jerome Wiesner, his scientific adviser, urged this pay boost at the weekly meeting with Democratic congressional leaders. Wiesner warned that unless scientists' salaries are increased, the government will lose up to 50 per cent of them. He pointed out that the present top pay of $20,500 is far short of what scientists make in private industry. Said Wiesner, "I spend half my time pleading with scientists in the government to stay rather than to take higher-paid jobs outside." Speaker John McCormack and House Democratic Leader Carl Albert, Okla., stated their chamber would never approve a salary scale for government employes that equaled congressional pay. Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., favored an increase for scientists — provided congressional salaries are raised. No decision was reached...Vice President Lyndon Johnson's appearance at a forthcoming big fund-raising dinner in Milwaukee will mark an interesting reversal on the part of Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis. He is slated to introduce Johnson. But several years ago Proxmire was labeling Johnson as an Old Guarder and hotly assailing him for vigorously defending the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, which Proxmire wants to abolish. Now Proxmire has agreed to acclaim Johnson in glowing terms.

Bids for a Smile

There are more than 2,000,000 laws in force in the United States. If a man could familiarize himself with them at the rate of ten each day, it would take him 6,000 years to become a completely law-abiding citizen.

As I See It

A Heavier Burden Looms

By TOM L. GIBSON

I saw in newspaper reports that Kennedy expects to put on about 25,000 or 30,000 more government employees. Then the next day we happened to hear him make a talk in which he said, in general, that it is the policy of his administration to see that the people have a more reasonable life, and more assurance of a brighter future without the fear of having to carry a load they cannot stand under. It has been his constant wave of thought that he will give the nation more remuneration and lighter labors. He is going to do this with the taxpayers' money.

I will promise you this, altho he might help the indolent, the slothful, and those who would live a life of a "little more folding of hands, and a little more slumber," he will do it with your money.

He just might put this thru, because we are living in a democracy. It was said several hundred years ago, "A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters discover that they can vote themselves largess out of the public treasury."

From that moment the majority always vote for the candidate who promises them the most benefits from the public treasury. The result is that the democracy always collapses over a loose fiscal policy, and is always followed by a dictatorship. It is up to you voters to get out and use your God-given rights, and associate yourselves with other fighters, that our generations to come will not have their heads bowed down because of disaster.

Freedom to Choose Our Own Occupation

By OSCAR COOLEY

If men are to be free to buy and sell, then they must be free to sell that most precious possession,.. their labor. That is, they must be free to offer their services in any field they may choose. How free are Americans in 1963 to choose their own occupations?

The most obvious breach of this freedom is the draft law, which Congress recently renewed for another 5 years. Another example is labor unions, which in their effort to restrict the supply of labor and thus push wages upward, exclude many people from jobs.

The draft law means that our young men, full of energy and ambition and posed on the very brink of a career, are forcibly diverted into the military service for two years. All their career plans must be held in abeyance. Many of the tools of knowledge gained in school are lost, or at best become very rusty, during the time in service. When the two years are up, they have to make an entirely new start.

The theory of the draft is that every young man should do his bit to defend his country. But was this not also true during the first 150 years of the republic? Yet, except during the brief emergencies of the Civil War and World War 1, military service was not compulsory.

If the armed services had urgent need of more men than would volunteer, the incursion on freedom represented by the draft might be justified, but do they?

To be prepared for modern war, the services need, not millions of green youth drilled in the manual of arms, but technical men, schooled in rocketry, radar, sonar, missiles, nuclear subs, jet aircraft, whirly-birds, and the like. The technology of war has become vastly different and vastly more complex even since World War II. Defense has become a profession as it never was before.

America needs men who will make the armed services a career, training themselves thoroly to operate the complicated machines of modern warfare. Draft armies simply will not do; we are fooling ourselves if we think we are building a tough bulwark of defense out of 18-year-old boys, who as they polish their rifles pine for the day when their 2-year stint will be up and they can return to civilian life.

But it may be said, not enough men could be secured by voluntary enlistment. At present wages paid to men in the armed services, this may be true. But why should not Uncle Sam pay whatever wage is necessary to hire the men he wants, just as other employers have to do? Surely he cannot plead poverty; witness the billions he spends for a hundred purposes less needful than defense. And a small army of well paid men might cost less than a large one of poorly paid draftees.

Some, perhaps, assume that because of the dangers involved in the life of the soldier not enough would serve even at handsome wages. But history shows that men, if well paid, are not averse to joining military forces. And in the next war, assuming use of nuclear missiles, who will be in most danger, soldiers or civilians? We may yet see men falling in to escape the fall-out.

Military conscription is temporarily denying tens of thousands of young men the freedom to choose a vocation. And whether it is achieving the end sought, a strong defense, is questionable.

Young men also bear the brunt of union exclusiveness. What college youth, looking for a summer job to help pay his tuition, has not applied for a construction job only to be told, "We employ only union men"?

Even more serious are high union wage rates which many youth meet when they apply for their first permanent job. These are often so high that an untrained youth cannot earn them and so is not hired.

Here not only the unions but the government is guilty of slamming the door of opportunity in the face of youth. The minimum wage, which next October 1 is slated to rise to $1.25 an hour, is higher than many youth at the start can earn. Being denied such jobs youth are forced into jobs not covered by the minimum wage law, which are likely to be lowly jobs without a future.

More than anyone else, young men and women want freedom of choice of occupation. And it is to the interest of all ages that youth have such freedom, in order that they may have the best chance of choosing and entering the occupation in which they will be most productive.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 227: "Are all state socialists and collectivists 'hit and run' critics? If so, why?"

We would say that they are. The reason they are "hit and run" critics is that they are not anchored to any principle. They are dreamers and cannot answer questions that are germane to what they are advocating. Therefore, they have to evade and-or refuse to answer.

And when they have what they want, which gives them a lot of power, it is only natural for them to keep quiet and thus evade answering. That's the case with the school administrators. They are operating socialistic schools and do not want the public to know that they really are socialistic schools. And the parents, for years, have been indoctrinated in these socialistic schools and most of them do not yet realize what is taking place.

And "hit and run" critics are the most dangerous kind of critics, because they are clever and use almost any ruse to keep the power they have.

One of the primary purposes of education is to get people to recognize what is harmonious and what is discordant and a contradiction.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

These Days

The Stakes for 1964

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Despite the reported decline of old-fashioned morality, the average American still prefers to be high-minded about most things. But if anyone mentions that high-minded adage about politics stopping at the water's edge, it's ten to one that the response from even the most moral person will be a cynical "Oh, yeah?" It's accepted as a fact of life that politicians will not refuse to capitalize domestically on the breaks of diplomacy even when it has the bipartisan support.

Well, the Republicans have been capitalizing on the festering Cuban issue. I do not doubt for a moment that they are doing this for the most part as patriots. Nevertheless, they know that Cuba has its domestic potential, cashable in terms of votes.

The only trouble with Cuba as a sure-fire oppositionist vote-getting issue is that John F. Kennedy, in his dual role as originator of U.S. foreign policy and commander-in-chief of the armed forces, can always call the Republican bet, or even raise the ante, well before the 1964 elections are upon us.

It's not impugning the President's patriotism to say that, in staring Khrushchev down at "eyeball to eyeball" range last autumn, he was happy to accept the domestic vote-catching by-product of his first really bold action in the conduct of foreign policy. The one Republican who really staked his wad on the Cuban issue, the then incumbent Senator Capehart of Inidana found himself completely outmaneuvered on election day, and the result is that he is now an "ex." In this business of continuing to capitalize on the domestic by-product of the foreign policy issue, however, President Kennedy will have to do some pretty fast stepping. His words in Costa Rica about "building a wall of dedicated men" around Castro's Cuba have been discounted in many Republican circles as rhetoric. But Kennedy, as an astute politician, certainly knows that he can't regard the words of his promise to the Costa Ricans as self-fulfilling. If the cancer of Castro's Cuba is permitted to metastasize, the Republicans would really have an issue. Imagine the consternation of the Democrats if, a couple of week before election day in 1964, Brazil should be taken over by a Castroite coup?

Even a Communist seizure of Guatemala, or a Marxist party election victory in Chile, would give the Democrats some tall explaining to do on the hustings. It is for this reason that Gallup polls about Kennedy's popularity are essentially meaningless at this stage of the game. Too much can happen in the next year or so to spoil anybody's guess.

The bets of those who have voluntarily to vote on risking their money in Latin America, however, are that the Kennedy administration can't keep the Castro cancer from spreading. The only new investment money flowing into Latin America recently has been political money, sent at the behest of Washington, D.C. We have shored up Brazil and the Argentine all over again with an infusion of political funds to permit them to buy time in the battle to get their own domestic economies on the up-beat. It remains to be seen whether American businessmen will back up the political moves to save Latin America by coming thru with new investments of their own.

THEIR OWN CAPITAL FLOW

In some instances Americans are committed willy-nilly: the Kennecott Copper Company can not very well pull up stakes in Chile, for its fabulous Braden Mine is there to stay. This mine will certainly be operated as long as it yields even a small profit after the heavy local taxes. Nevertheless, Kennecott is not expanding its Chilean operations. Recently the big copper producer cut its dividend, not to provide itself with investment funds to carry out an old plan to add $200 million to its Chilean facilities, but to improve its methods of getting copper ore from relatively poor domestic deposits in Utah. This may not amount to a consciously made bet that the left, in Chile, will win the election that is scheduled for this summer. But it will certainly be taken as such by other potential investors in the Chilean economy.

The tip-off, on the prospects for stability in Latin America, will come when the more well-to-do Brazilians, Argentinians and Chileans begin to repatriate their own capital. A common estimate is that Latin Americans have upwards of ten billion dollars in potential investment money stashed away in numbered bank accounts in Switzerland. Since nobody really knows the truth about this save the secretive Swiss bankers, the figure can be discounted. But the general movement of money out of Latin America has been visible enough. If Kennedy can't get it going the other way in time to stop the spread of the Castro cancer, he risks the dramatic South American upheaval that will mock his domestic hopes for 1964.

WATERING

To the Editor:

The other night I was coming home and passed by the old county court house on the Tejon Street side of the street at 9:30 p.m. I saw the most disgusting thing. They had the water sprinklers on full force. Three of the sprinklers near the sidewalk had the sidewalk all wet. One of them had the spray of the water clear over to the curb. Water was running in the curb and the lawn looked saturated.

Another incident was on the boulevard on Platte Avenue. They are always watering and if a car tries to turn, it gets all wet because half of the spray is in the street.

Then the city has to start rationing out the water. If watering the correct way was stressed in the newspaper more than what days, tickets were given to people watering the sidewalk instead of the grass, then people wouldn't have to worry so much about dried out grass and the water shortage.

The city should set an example for the people but when the city waters everything except the grass, then the city can't expect the people to be thrifty with the water.

I believe if everyone waters correctly, there wouldn't be a water shortage.

QUICK QUIZ

Q — Has a black tulip ever been cultivated?

A — Since the 17th century, tulip fanciers have searched for a black tulip. Growers have developed a tulip that looks black at a distance but really is dark maroon.

Q — What is meant by "striking" the flag?

A — When a ship or military post surrenders to an enemy, it hauls down, or "strikes," the flag.

Q — By what name did Henry Mencken refer to the American public?

A — He scornfully labeled it the "Booboisie."

Q — When did the United States acquire its first important insular possessions?

A — In 1889, when it annexed Hawaii and obtained Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Guam as a result of the war with Spain.

Q—What measuring device was used in building Egypt's Great Pyramid?

A — A knotted string. But, it was so accurate that modern instruments show only ½-inch error along one 775-foot side.

Candy Is Emergency Food, Expert Says

CHICAGO (AP) — An armed forces nutritionist says candy is a good emergency food for a survival kit.

It won't be a professional, perfectly balanced survival ration such as the government has prepared for the armed forces, said H. B. Cosler, chief of the Cereal and General Products Branch, Armed Forces and Container Institute.

But it can play a very important role in helping to keep people alive.

Cosler said the "Food Packet, Abandon Ship," which is in Navy life boats, is composed entirely of confections.

It includes starch jelly bars which are similar to gum drops, compressed mint hard candies and sugar coated gum.

Cosler advises those using confections for an emergency survival kit to hide them lest they tend to eat the candy before the survival situation might arise.

Adolescent Is Very Delicate, Prof. Says

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — An adolescent is very delicate.

So speaks Prof. M. Dale Baughman of the University of Illinois College of Education who made the observation during a meeting of junior high and upper elementary school teachers and administrators.

He advised them to be on youth's side.

"Contrary to what many adults believe, the growth of a child is unlike that of the sturdy oak tree which grows simply by getting bigger and bigger," he said.

"Compared with the tough guy of preadolescence," Prof. Baughman said, "the junior high school pupil is not unlike the crab which has just cast aside its protective shell while the new one is yet soft and touchy."

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Charges Against Private Schools

We are in the midst of our discussion on taxation and schools. The series began five days ago and here we have parts nine and ten, the concluding parts of this series.

Questioner: You've established that there are private schools. Also, that in the field of higher education there are more private schools than government schools. But you haven't shown how we could have as many schools in the secondary and primary levels if we relied solely on contributions and tuitions.

Also, you haven't touched on the fact that many of our private and independent schools are attached to some church or that they tend to become "snob" schools with excessively high tuition.

Where would children go to school if tuitions were unduly high?

Where would children go to school to obtain academic training outside of the religious field if only the private schools existed? Wouldn't there be a preponderance of church-oriented schools?

Answer: You have actually asked three questions. We'll try to answer them in order.

First, we will concede that we might not have as many schools as we now have. We don't know this, of course. We might have more. But we would have schools in the degree that a demand for schools existed. This is the rule of the market place. And in a country where the people have more than 60 million motor cars on the road, it is entirely possible that they would also provide sufficient schools to offer education to their own children.

One thing you may have overlooked. Americans love their children. Indeed, most of us take the view that there is nothing too good for our children. We want them to have a situation better than the one we had. And most of us are eager to do something about this. That is why we insist that our children have more and better clothes than we had, more and better food, better means of transportation and more of it. It is everywhere apparent. It is the fact of our constant dotage of our own children.

Why we would find ourselves impatient to provide more and better schools if we were in an improved financial position beggars the imagination. And the fact is that without having to pay the enormous school taxes, we would most of us be in a better financial position.

Now, about church-oriented schools. First of all, we see nothing wrong with this. If particular church groups wish to have their children educated in the religion of their own choice, we cannot object. But it would also be true, as it is true now, that some people do not want their children brought up in any particular sect or believing in any particular creed. To the degree that this was true, to this degree the market place would tend to provide the non-church-oriented type of school.

Now, about the "snob" charge. It is probably true at the moment that some schools have obtained this onus as a result of attitudes engendered. But it is far from being a constant. Also, in most cases it is far from being deserved. Probably one of the reasons for the "snobbery" charge is the fact that in contrasting government schools with private and independent schools, the latter provide a higher level of academic excellence as a rule. Who's Who in America reveals that the vast majority of Americans who become leaders in business, literature, the arts, and so on obtained at least some of their education in private or independent schools.

But there is something else that happens here which you haven't mentioned.

Questioner: What is that?

Answer: It is the working of the market place. Let's discuss that.

Fear Creates Scarcity

Good ideas are always in scarce supply. The reason is that so many people are afraid of them.

Why Not Moral Education

Questioner: Would market place rules apply to schools if we did not have government schools?

Answer: Yes, indeed. As a matter of fact, market rules apply anyhow. They would simply work better if there were less interference. In the market place if only one firm makes vacuum cleaners, would the price of vacuum cleaners tend to be high or low?

Questioner: That would be a monopoly. The price would be high.

Answer: It would not necessarily mean a monopoly, but you are right about the price. The price would tend to be high. What would happen if more firms got into business of making vacuum cleaners? Would the price go up or down?

Questioner: It could go either way.

Answer: No. We are assuming a free market. The price would tend to come down. In fact, the more people who were making vacuum cleaners, the more the price would tend to be lowered.

Questioner: Yes, I guess that is right unless the manufacturers got together to keep the price up.

Answer: We are assuming a free market. Without government backing, no group of manufacturers could keep the price high indefinitely. In a free market, the more producers, the lower the price. The same would apply to schools. The more private schools there were, the lower the tuition rates would tend to fall. In private and independent schools right now, tuition rates are very low. In higher education, tuition costs are competitive whether you go to a state-supported school or a private school. With government completely out of the education picture, we would tend to have many more schools at ever lower tuition costs.

Questioner: But there still might be many people who couldn't afford to send their children. What about them? Is it right for them to grow up without a chance for an education?

Answer: Now that you've mentioned "right" again, let's get at that point. We agree that it would be fine for every child to have an opportunity to be educated. But in this day and age, even in spite of high taxes an education for almost any child who evinces a desire to learn would be possible. There are many private persons who have put up millions of dollars and do so every year just to help those who wish to get an education.

But let's get back to this matter of rightness. Earlier, we talked about taking money from people against their wills. You agreed that it was wrong to take money by force. This, we agreed, was immoral. Now, as a result of a logical examination of the question, you also agreed that voting in favor of a tax did not change the nature of the act of collecting the tax. Those persons who do not willingly pay the tax are being robbed when they are compelled to pay that tax.

Mind you, we are not talking at all about those persons who wish to be taxed for schools. They have a right to wish to be taxed, and indeed to be taxed. But they have no right to compel you to pay a tax for something you don't wish to support, whether that something is a reward to a murderer or a scholarship for a student.

Questioner: Yes, I remember.

Answer: Very well. Now, what we both want is more education and better schools. Wouldn't it be better to have our schools supported voluntarily than to have them supported by some kind of legalized theft, sanctified by the voting process?

Questioner: Let me concede a point. Let me admit that it would be BETTER. But how do you know you could do it? How do you know you'd get enough money to provide all the education required?

Answer: We don't KNOW. But we never will know unless we try. What is wrong with trying to improve the quality of the education our children receive by insisting that the money to be used for it be raised in a moral and proper manner?

This is all we are trying to say. We do not wish to abolish anything. We are FOR education. But we are FOR moral education based upon a fair and reasonable method of obtaining money. It is NOT correct to take money from persons against their wills. And it isn't necessary to do so.

Our market place is the greatest in the world. It has provided us with more homes, cars, churches, food, clothing, comforts and luxuries than all other nations combined and it has done it on a voluntary market basis.

There is no logical reason to suppose that education provides an exception to the general rule.

Blue Plate Political Specials

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Senator William Proxmire is adding a new dimension to his favorite oratorical topic — "fiscal responsibility."

He is promoting a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner in his own behalf.

Last week this column disclosed that the highest-paid employe on the senatorial payroll of the Wisconsin liberal Democrat was a full-time graduate student at the University of Wisconsin. Frank J. Campenni, 33, was getting $14,396 as "legislative assistant," although he does not live in Washington and hadn't done a lick of work in Proxmire's office.

This column pointed out that this curious situation was in striking contrast to a pet role of Proxmire — of declaiming often and at length about economizing, "fiscal responsibility" (a favorite expression) and the need to balance the federal budget.

When Proxmire got wind of this column's interest in his high-salaried absentee employe, he suddenly issued a three-page statement announcing he was repaying the government upwards of $9,000 — the salary plus interest Campenni had received since Proxmire put him on his payroll last August. The Senator solemnly explained he was doing this wholly on his own initiative, and that Campenni would come to Washington in June to head his office staff.

Several days later Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., who also faces a tough re-election stuggle next year, warmly lauded Proxmire for his high sense of public responsibility. Mansfield carefully said nothing about Proxmire having had this high-paid absentee employee on his payroll for eight months and acting only when he learned this was to be published.

The $25-a-plate dinner Proxmire is now busily organizing is avowedly to raise funds for his re-election campaign next year. Proxmire's unannounced goal is $25,000.

The affair is to be a buffet on June 25, in one of Washington's new hotels that seems to specialize in fund-raising events. No speakers have yet been selected, and other important arrangements are still up in the air.

Proxmire has encountered some difficulty in putting together an imposing list of "sponsors." At least several prominent Democrats turned him down.

PROFITABLE SHINDIGS

Proxmire's fund-raising dinner is the latest to be launched.

It will be the last if Senator Warren Magnuson, Wash., chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, has his way. He wants to concentrate all fund-raising in his committee, and is urgently appealing to other Democratic senators up for election to support his plan.

In return, Magnuson is offering them $5,000 each this year and at least $10,000 next year. How far he will get with that remains to be seen.

So far, individual fund-raising dinners have been far more productive.

One for Senator Howard Cannon, D-Nev., in Las Vegas raised $100,000 for his 1964 re-election [illegible]. This was a $100-a-plate affair attended by more than 1,000. A special plane with some 70 Washington notables flew to the famed resort city for the occasion. From their elated accounts, "a wonderful time" was had by all.

Another dinner for Senator Vance Hartke, Ind., in Washington, netted more than $40,000. The charge was $50-a-plate and close to 1,000 tickets were sold.

Next Monday a $100-a-plate dinner is being held in the capital for Senator Frank Moss, Utah. Former President Truman has contributed $25, the only senatorial fund to which he has contributed. Truman, Vice President Lyndon Johnson and Senator Clinton Anderson, N.M., are honorary chairmen of Moss' affair. Anderson will act as master of ceremonies.

President Kennedy will be the big attraction at $1,000-a-plate dinners in New York on May 22 and in Los Angeles on June 5.

Similar affairs also are contemplated in Chicago, Boston and Dallas. No dates have yet been set for them, but they will take place this year, probably in the fall. Funds from these events will go the Democratic National Committee.

More than $1 million was netted last winter at a combined $1,000-a-plate dinner and $100-a-ticket gala to celebrate the second anniversary of the Kennedy administration.

REBUFFED

President Kennedy ran head-on into a cool reception when he sounded out House Democratic leaders on increasing the pay of government scientists to $22,550, the same amount received by Congress. The President, seconded by Dr. Jerome Wiesner, his scientific adviser, urged this pay boost at the weekly meeting with Democratic congressional leaders. Wiesner warned that unless scientists' salaries are increased, the government will lose up to 50 per cent of them. He pointed out that the present top pay of $20,500 is far short of what scientists make in private industry. Said Wiesner, "I spend half my time pleading with scientists in the government to stay rather than to take higher-paid jobs outside."

Speaker John McCormack and House Democratic Leader Carl Albert, Okla., stated their chamber would never approve a salary scale for government employes that equaled congressional pay. Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., favored an increase for scientists — provided congressional salaries are raised. No decision was reached. Vice President Lyndon Johnson's appearance at a forthcoming big fund-raising dinner in Milwaukee will mark an interesting reversal on the part of Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis. He is slated to introduce Johnson. But several years ago Proxmire was labeling Johnson as an Old Guarder and hotly assailing him for vigorously defending the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, which Proxmire wants to abolish. Now Proxmire has agreed to acclaim Johnson in glowing terms.

As I See It

A Heavier Burden Looms

By TOM L. GIBSON

I saw in newspaper reports that Kennedy expects to put on about 25,000 or 30,000 more government employees. Then the next day we happened to hear him make a talk in which he said, in general, that it is the policy of his administration to see that the people have a more reasonable life, and more assurance of a brighter future without the fear of having to carry a load they cannot stand under. It has been his constant wave of thought that he will give the nation more remuneration and lighter labors. He is going to do this with the taxpayers' money.

I will promise you this, altho he might help the indolent, the slothful, and those who would live a life of a "little more folding of hands, and a little more slumber," he will do it with your money.

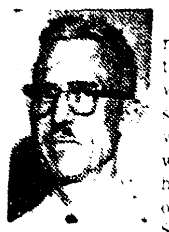
He just might put this thru, because we are living in a democracy. It was said several hundred years ago: "A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters discover that they can vote themselves largess out of the public treasury."

From that moment the majority always vote for the candidate who promises them the most benefits from the public treasury. The result is that the democracy always collapses over a loose fiscal policy, and is always followed by a dictatorship. It is up to you voters to get out and use your God-given rights, and associate yourselves with other fighters, that our generations to come will not have their heads bowed down because of disaster.

Freedom to Choose Our Own Occupation

By OSCAR COOLEY

If men are to be free to buy and sell, then they must be free to sell that most precious possession — their labor. That is, they must be free to offer their services in any field they may choose. How free are Americans in 1963 to choose their own occupations?



The most obvious breach of this freedom is the draft law which Congress recently renewed for another 5 years. Another example is labor unions which in their effort to restrict the supply of labor and thus push wages upward, exclude many people from jobs.

The draft law means that our young men, full of energy and ambition and posed on the very brink of a career, are forcibly diverted into the military service for two years. All their career plans must be held in abeyance. Many of the tools of knowledge gained in school are lost or at best become very rusty during the time in service. When the two years are up, they have to make an entirely new start.

The theory of the draft is that every young man should do his bit to defend his country. But was this not also true during the first 150 years of the republic? Yet, except during the brief emergencies of the Civil War and World War I, military service was not compulsory.

If the armed services had urgent need of more men than would volunteer, the incursion on freedom represented by the draft might be justified, but do they?

To be prepared for modern war, the services need, not millions of green youth drilled in the manual of arms, but technical men, schooled in rocketry, radar, sonar, missiles, nuclear subs, jet aircraft, whirly-birds, and the like. The technology of war has become vastly different and vastly more complex even since World War II. Defense has become a profession as it never was before.

America needs men who will make the armed services a career, training themselves thoroly to operate the complicated machines of modern warfare. Draft armies simply will not do; we are fooling ourselves if we think we are building a tough bulwark of defense out of 18-year-old boys, who as they polish their rifles pine for the day when their 2-year stint will be up and they can return to civilian life.

But it may be said, not enough men could be secured by voluntary enlistment. At present wages paid to men in the armed services, this may be true. But why should not Uncle Sam pay whatever wage is necessary to hire the men he wants, just as other employers have to do? Surely he cannot plead poverty, witness the billions he spends for a hundred purposes less needful than defense. And a small army of well paid men might cost less than a large one of poorly paid draftees.

Some perhaps assume that because of the dangers involved in the life of the soldier not enough would serve even at handsome wages. But history shows that men, if well paid, are not averse to joining military forces. And in the next war, assuming use of nuclear missiles, who will be in most danger, soldiers or civilians? We may yet see men falling in to escape the fall-out.

Military conscription is temporarily denying tens of thousands of young men the freedom to choose a vocation. And whether it is achieving the end sought, a strong defense, is questionable.

Young men also bear the brunt of union exclusiveness. What college youth, looking for a summer job to help pay his tuition, has not applied for a construction job only to be told, "We employ only union men"?

Even more serious are high union wage rates which many youth meet when they apply for their first permanent job. These are often so high that an untrained youth cannot earn them and so is not hired.

Here not only the unions but the government is guilty of slamming the door of opportunity in the face of youth. The minimum wage, which next October 1 is slated to rise to $1.25 an hour, is higher than many youth at the start can earn. Being denied such jobs youth are forced into jobs not covered by the minimum wage law, which are likely to be lowly jobs without a future.

More than anyone else, young men and women want freedom of choice of occupation. And it is to the interest of all ages that youth have such freedom, in order that they may have the best chance of choosing and entering the occupation in which they will be most productive.

Question Box

We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.

Question No. 227: "Are all state socialists and collectivists 'hit and run' critics? If so, why?"

We would say that they are. The reason they are "hit and run" critics is that they are not anchored to any principle. They are dreamers and cannot answer questions that are germane to what they are advocating. Therefore, they have to evade and-or refuse to answer.

And when they have what they want, which gives them a lot of power, it is only natural for them to keep quiet and thus evade answering. That's the case with the school administrators. They are operating socialistic schools and do not want the public to know that they really are socialistic schools. And the parents, for years, have been indoctrinated in these socialistic schools and most of them do not yet realize what is taking place.

And "hit and run" critics are the most dangerous kind of critics, because they are clever and use almost any ruse to keep the power they have.

One of the primary purposes of education is to get people to recognize what is harmonious and what is discordant and a contradiction.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind [illegible]

These Days

The Stakes for 1964

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Despite the reported decline of old-fashioned morality, the average American still prefers to be high-minded about most things. But if anyone mentions that high-minded adage about politics stopping at the water's edge, it's ten to one that the response from even the most moral person will be a cynical "Oh, yeah?" It's accepted as a fact of life that politicians will not refuse to capitalize domestically on the breaks of diplomacy even when it has the bipartisan support.

Well, the Republicans have been capitalizing on the festering Cuban issue. I do not doubt for a moment that they are doing this for the most part as patriots. Nevertheless, they know that Cuba has its domestic potential, cashable in terms of votes.

The only trouble with Cuba as a sure-fire oppositionist vote-getting issue is that John F. Kennedy, in his dual role as originator of U.S. foreign policy and commander-in-chief of the armed forces, can always call the Republican bet, or even raise the ante, well before the 1964 elections are upon us.

It's not impugning the President's patriotism to say that, in staring Khrushchev down at "eyeball to eyeball" range last autumn, he was happy to accept the domestic vote-catching by-product of his first really bold action in the conduct of foreign policy. The one Republican who really staked his wad on the Cuban issue, the then incumbent Senator Capehart of Inidana found himself completely outmaneuvered on election day, and the result is that he is now an "ex." In this business of continuing to capitalize on the domestic by-product of the foreign policy issue, however, President Kennedy will have to do some pretty fast stepping. His words in Costa Rica about "building a wall of dedicated men" around Castro's Cuba have been discounted in many Republican circles as rhetoric. But Kennedy, as an astute politician, certainly knows that he can't regard the words of his promise to the Costa Ricans as self-fulfilling. If the cancer of Castro's Cuba is permitted to metastasize, the Republicans would really have an issue. Imagine the consternation of the Democrats if a couple of weeks before election day in 1964, Brazil should be taken over by a Castroite coup!

Even a Communist seizure of Guatemala, or a Marxist party election victory in Chile, would give the Democrats some tall explaining to do on the hustings. It is for this reason that Gallup polls about Kennedy's popularity are essentially meaningless at this stage of the game. Too much can happen in the next year or so to spoil anybody's guess.

The bets of those who have something to vote on, risking their money in Latin America, however, are that the Kennedy administration can't keep the Castro cancer from spreading. The only new investment money flowing into Latin America recently has been political money, sent at the behest of Washington, D.C. We have shored up Brazil and the Argentine all over again with an infusion of political funds to permit them to buy time in the battle to get their own domestic economics on the up-beat. It remains to be seen whether American businessmen will back up the political moves to save Latin America by coming thru with new investments of their own.

THEIR OWN CAPITAL FLOW

In some instances Americans are committed willy-nilly; the Kennecott Copper Company can not very well pull up stakes in Chile, for its fabulous Braden Mine is there to stay. This mine will certainly be operated as long as it yields even a small profit after the heavy local taxes. Nevertheless, Kennecott is not expanding its Chilean operations. Recently the big copper producer cut its dividend, not to provide itself with investment funds to carry out an old plan to add $200 million to its Chilean facilities, but to improve its methods of getting copper ore from relatively poor domestic deposits in Utah. This may not amount to a consciously made bet that the left in Chile will win the election that is scheduled for this summer. But it will certainly be taken as such by other potential investors in the Chilean economy.

The tip-off on the prospects for stability in Latin America will come when the more well-to-do Brazilians, Argentinians and Chileans begin to repatriate their own capital. A common estimate is that Latin Americans have upwards of ten billion dollars in potential investment money stashed away in numbered bank accounts in Switzerland. Since nobody really knows the truth about this save the secretive Swiss bankers, the figure can be discounted. But the general movement of money out of Latin America has been visible enough. If Kennedy can't get it going the other way in time to stop the spread of the Castro cancer, he risks the dramatic South American upheaval that will mock his domestic hopes for 1964.

WATERING

To the Editor:

The other night I was coming home and passed by the old county court house on the Tejon Street side of the street at 9:30 p.m. I saw the most disgusting thing. They had the water sprinklers on full force. Three of the sprinklers near the sidewalk had the sidewalk all wet. One of them had the spray of the water clear over to the curb. Water was running in the curb and the lawn looked saturated.

Another incident was on the boulevard on Platte Avenue. They are always watering and if a car tries to turn, it gets all wet because half of the spray is in the street.

Then the city has to start rationing out the water. If watering the correct way was stressed in the newspaper more than what days tickets were given to people watering the sidewalk instead of the grass, then people wouldn't have to worry so much about dried out grass and the water shortage.

The city should set an example for the people but when the city waters everything except the grass, then the city can't expect the people to be thrifty with the water.

I believe if everyone waters correctly, there wouldn't be a water shortage.

QUICK QUIZ

Q — Has a black tulip ever been cultivated?

A — Since the 17th century, tulip fanciers have searched for a black tulip. Growers have developed a tulip that looks black at a distance but really is dark maroon.

Q — What is meant by "striking" the flag?

A — When a ship or military post surrenders to an enemy, it hauls down, or "strikes," the flag.

Q — By what name did Henry Mencken refer to the American public?

A — He scornfully labeled it the "Booboisie."

Q — When did the United States acquire its first important insular possessions?

A — In 1889, when it annexed Hawaii and obtained Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Guam as a result of the war with Spain.

Q — What measuring device was used in building Egypt's Great Pyramid?

A — A knotted string. But it was so accurate that modern instruments show [illegible] along one [illegible] side.

Green Mountain Falls News

By CAROLYN McADAMS
MU 7-9065

At the monthly meeting of the Woodland Park Lions Club, held at the Brockhurst Boys Ranch, 22 Lion members were present. Don Gilbert was appointed to the board of directors to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Fay Donahue.

The annual pancake supper and carnival of the Lions Club has been scheduled for July 27, in the Community Building in Green Mountain Falls. Herman Fleischer has been appointed general chairman of the affair with Kenneth Quinn assisting.

At the Installation meeting Wednesday night May 8, held at the First Congregational Church, Mrs. Polly Bartley was installed as corresponding secretary of Sweet Adelines Inc.

Miss Eloise Bellinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bellinger, with Miss Donetta Hower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hower, were initiated into the International Order of Job's Daughters Bethel No. 23, at the Masonic Temple in Colorado Springs, on Monday night May 6.

Mrs. Kate Schorer entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club at her home, with dessert lunch. All members were present, playing at two tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bucher, returned to their home at Paint Pony Country Club after a three week vacation with their daughter in Houston, Tex. While there they attended the showing "How The West Was Won"

The business and residence structure of Mr. and Mrs. Mick Quint on Highway 24, had been completed, with opening on Mother's Day. An inscription on the front "Gott behute dieses haus, und die da gehen ein und aus" designates the "Schwyzer Alpe Restaurant" of typical Swiss architecture. A large and small dining room includes a fire place in each and red checked curtains and lamp shades with a variety of family crests and shields decorate the walls. Of knotty pine log construction, the roof is of shake shingles spotted with rocks typical of Switzerland.

The wedding of Miss Patricia Pease, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pease of Woodland Park, to Roy Foland of Colorado Springs, was performed May 4, at the Church in the Wildwood by Judge Allan Asher of Colorado Springs.

The Ladies Guild had an all day meeting May 8, at the home of Mrs. R. A. Hendrickson, 12 Deneta Drive, in Manitou Springs, with twelve members present.

Sermon topic at the church in the Wildwood on Mothers's Day was "Don't Jump — Stay Aboard" by Conard Pyle, minister. Offertory solo by Wini Pyle was "He Shall Feed His Flock" (Handel's "Messiah"). Hosts at the "Get-Acquainted" coffee hour after church were Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lamb of Chipita Park.

Sunday evening, May 12, 75 persons attended the Fellowship covered dish dinner honoring new members of the church. A program on Migrant Work in Colorado was presented by Rev. Jack Alford from the Council of Churches. The church-Wide fellowship dinner was sponsored by the Missions, Social Action and Fellowship Board, one of the seven ministries of the church program.

Migrants to Get Aid For New Life in City

BEREA, Ky. (AP)—The Council of the Southern Mountains is establishing an office in Chicago to help migrants from mountain communities adjust to city life.

The office is part of a multi-purpose program the council is developing for people of economically depressed mountain regions.

The council will encourage mountain people to develop skills and job opportunities that will enable them to make a contribution to their new community and will offer them advice on their move to the city.

Another part of the program will encourage creation of employment facilities in the Appalachian South to make good use of natural and personal resources of the region.

Candidate Wins After 32 Years

CASTLE, Okla. (AP) — "After 32 years of unsuccessful campaigning for public office," says Everett Wyrick, "it gives a man a contented feeling to close out a winner.

Wyrick defeated Jimmy Dyer 27-18 for a city council seat in this year's city election. It was his first victory after a series of political efforts, beginning in 1931, in which he lost four times in attempts for the sheriff's office, placed third in a three-man race for county commissioner and, in Castle's last city election race in 1948, lost a try for mayor by two votes.

Candy Is Emergency Food, Expert Says

CHICAGO (AP) — An armed forces nutritionist says candy is a good emergency food for a survival kit

It won't be a professional, perfectly balanced survival ration such as the government has prepared for the armed forces, said H. B Cosler, chief of the Cereal and General Products Branch, Armed Forces and Container Institute.

But it can play a very important role in helping to keep people alive.

Cosler said the "Food Packet, Abandon Ship," which is in Navy life boats, is composed entirely of confections.

It includes starch jelly bars which are similar to gum drops, compressed mint hard candies and sugar coated gum.

Cosler advises those using confections for an emergency survival kit to hide them lest they tend to eat the candy before the survival situation might arise.

Adolescent Is Very Delicate, Prof. Says

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — An adolescent is very delicate.

So speaks Prof. M. Dale Baughman of the University of Illinois College of Education who made the observation during a meeting of junior high and upper elementary school teachers and administrators.

He advised them to be on youth's side.

"Contrary to what many adults believe, the growth of a child is unlike that of the sturdy oak tree which grows simply by getting bigger and bigger," he said.

"Compared with the tough guy of preadolescence," Prof Baughman said, "the junior high school pupil is not unlike the crab which has just cast aside its protective shell while the new one is yet soft and touchy"

Mrs. Mamie Young, a member of Liberty Chapter No. 108, Fairplay, was a visitor at the meeting, and discussed plans for presenting the program as it was in the year 1867. Snowflake Chapter is planning a special meeting for this group in June. Helen Randal is Worthy Matron and Tom Bonifield, Worthy Patron of Snowflake Chapter.

Rev. and Mrs. Paul Hutchens attended at 6 o'clock banquet, Saturday night, at the Village Inn which was sponsored by the Christian Service Fellowship of Northwestern College in Minneapolis Minn. Guest speakers were Horace Fenton from Latin American Mission and Juan Isais of Mexico. Presenting a special message at the Ute Pass Bible Church, at the 11 a.m. worship service on Mother's Day was the Rev. Spencer Bower, director of CSF in Minneapolis. The Rev. Mr. Bower is administrator of several college radio stations in the west and midwest.

The annual luncheon meeting of the Cascade Community Club, scheduled for May 9 at Paint Pony Country Club, was cancelled due to conflicing engagements. Installation of new officers will be held over until September when meetings will be resumed.

Mrs. Hazel Lisiecki entertained a bridge foursome at her home, Thursday evening. Her guests were Shirley Nixon, Jane Henricks and Carol Hunt.

Mrs. Helen Dugdale is chairman of the Board of Missions, Social Action and Fellowship which sponsored a Ch8rch-Wide Fellowship dinner meeting May 12, in Fellowship Hall Church in the Wildwood. Seventy-five persons attended.

Rev. Jack Alfird, chairman of the "Harvester" program, Council of Churches, gave an inspiring program on "Migrants", portraying the migrant work to the church family.

Thousands Are Handed Relief in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — In queues reminiscent of depression days, thousands of persons lined up for food handouts today in the worsening Illinois relief crisis.

Hard - pressed families whose welfare checks for the month of May have been held up by a political feud crowded 30 neighborhood centers, hauling away federal surplus and donated foods.

In boxes, bags, old cars and coaster wagons, at the rate of 35 pounds to a person, they carted away dried milk, dried beans, rice, peanut butter, corn meal, rolled wheat, chopped meat, lard, butter and cheese.

When the relief crisis would pass, no one knew. The Illinois legislature, back on the job after a four-day holiday, failed again Tuesday to make an emergency appropriation to end the eight-week dispute.

Protest In Civil Exam Is Reported

DENVER (UPI)—A field representative for the State Anti-Discrimination Commission said Tuesday he felt he should have scored a place in an examination for director of the agency.

George Roybals said at a Colorado Civil Service Commission meeting that with his experience, he felt he should have scored on the oral test.

Roybals charged that the examiners were personally acquainted with some of the applicants, and that the board unfairly did not contain any members from the Spanish-American community.

The Civil Service Commission took Roybal's statements under advisement. It is scheduled to hear an appeal from Ed Terrones, acting director, who also failed the exam.

Terrones also has made similar charges.

High scorer on the test was James Reynolds, a Negro.

U.N. Chief Says Cash Reserves Dwindling

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U Thant warned today cash resources of the United Nations may dwindle by the end of the year to $10 million—less than enough to meet the organization's requirements for a month.

The secretary-general issued the warning in a report in advance of an afternoon committee meeting on U.N. financial problems.

Informed diplomats said the situation might be eased by voluntary contributions from about 15 industrialized nations to help finance the U.N. Congo and Middle East peace operations for the last half of 1963.

Thant said that unless members make good on $13 million pledged for U.N. bonds the deficit at the end of this year will reach $140 million and there will be only $10 million in cash in the till.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

LOW BLOOD SUGAR LEVEL

AZION, Ill., woman wants more information on hypoglycemia, a condition in which the sugar content of the blood is too low: "I have had fasting blood sugar tests with readings of 45 and 54 (normal is 70-120). I have sudden sinking spells frequently and become so weak and trembly, it seems I'll collapse. Hard candy tides me over these spells, but would like something more permanent. Is there a remedy?"

There is no cure unless a tumor in the pancreas is responsible for producing the excessive amount of insulin that is lowering the blood sugar concentration of the blood. Successful removal of the growth leads to cure. But this is the exception as the cause of an overly active pancreas rarely is found.

Food raises the blood level temporarily and sugar, orange juice or candy is ideal for this purpose. But it works too well because sweets stimulate the pancreas to produce more insulin which in turn drops the sugar level ower than it was prior to the temporary rise.

As a rule, the best treatment of ordinary hypoglycemia is a diet high in proteins and fats but low in carbbohydrates. Proteins and fats have less effect on the pancreas than do sugar and starches.

Most of us have experienced mild degrees of hypoglycemia before breakfast or between meals when the blood sugar level is likely to be low. We feel hungry and weak. A cup of coffee or tea with sugar and cream or a cookie or soft drink brings immediate relief. The snack is just enough to raise the blood sugar level. This may explain the popularity of the coffee break, afternoon tea, or midnight raid on the refrigerator.

But in persons with an overactive pancreas the sugar level goes lower than normal, making the individual feel not only weak and shaky but dizzy, faint, depressed, foggy, or anxious. Some become so fatigued they are unable to move a muscle. Others weep, become nervous, and go into a convulsion if the level drops precipitately. The clue is the development of symptoms between or before meals that are relieved by food.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

E. B. writes: What can be expected in the future if X-ray shows arthritis of the fifth and sixth dorsal vertebras?

Reply

X-ray evidence of arthritis of the spine does not necessarily parallel the symptoms. Some persons with marked evidence of arthritis or stiffness. Others with severe disability have few or no irregularities on the film.

Nervous Manifestations

Mrs. R. I. writes: Could the menopaus cause palpitations in the head and throughout the body?

Reply

No, but the nervous aspects of the change of life are blamed for many symptoms, including palpitation. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on the menopause.

No Value

Mrs. M. writes: Would cortisone help hardening of the arteries in an 84 year old woman?

Reply

No, and the hormone would not help this condition if you were only 34.

Uncommon Occurrence

A. B. writes: Do gall bladder attacks often follow coronary attacks? This happened to me.

Reply

No, and I think you will agree this is fortunate.

He Gets Hole in One Hard Way on Course

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Norman Hurz got his hole-in-one at the Topeka municipal golf course—the hard way.

Hurz, playing the [illegible]-yard eighth hole, hit his iron shot onto the green. It struck another ball five feet from the cup and both rolled in.

The other ball belonged to Russ Nelson, playing in a group ahead. The lucky bump gave him a two on the par three hole.

Bill Dana Says He Will Risk For TV Success

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Bill Dana's series for next season represents a financial flyer.

Dana, alias Jose Jimenez, says he'll be losing money for '63-'64 by doing his new Bill Dana Show over NBC-TV. But there's method behind his monetary madness.

"What I earn now in personal appearances and guest shots," he says, "is much more than I'll make from the series next year. But this is a gamble. If the series is a hit, I could easily be a millionaire. And I admit I like money. I'd like to be financially independent.

"If I was, I could do things I never thought possible. I could take time to write a Broadway musical comedy. I could sponsor young performers — I get a big kick out of doing that. The fact that I was partially responsible for the success of Don Knotts is very gratifying to me." (Dana, when he was a Steve Allen writer, gave Knotts his first big break.)

The Dana show will, of course, have Dana as Jimenez, a hotel bellboy. While Jose is a complete Dana creation, there is no Dana in Jimenez.

In fact, the actor talks about the character in the third person —as though he is somebody he knows. Dana is proudest of the fact that fine actors, like Sidney Poiter and Lee J. Cobb, have told him that he is a real actor, not merely a comedian.

He's also proud that Latin Americans enjoy Jose and realize that Dana isn't ridiculing anybody in his characterization.

"Jose," says Dana, "is very popular in Mexico."

He seems not to realize that they really love Bill Dana.

Two factors that Dan Duryea feels have contributed to his acting success are items which few actors would mention — a college education and a generous helping of luck.

"College," Duryea says, "is necessary for the complete man. I had to wait on tables to get through Cornell, but it was well worth it. 8

"And luck — well, luck plays a big part in anyone's career.e You have to be in the right spot at the right time."

After Cornell, Duryea married and found out that acting was not a very lucrative business, ordinarily. He says he learned that the average actor then made $300 a year.

"So I went to work for my uncle in the advertising business" he says.

For six years, he toiled in New York and Philadelphia. He sold newspaper space to national advertisers and it was hard work.

"At the same time," he says, "our first child died. I had to make a change, to change my whole life. I went to see Sidney Kingsley, who was a classmate of mine at Cornell. By coincidence, he had just finished a play and was going to stage it. He said I could do some of the walk-ons. I did, for $40 a week."

The play was "Dead End," a major hit. And then came other plays. In one, "Missouri Legend," the director cast him as "the dirty little coward who shot Mr. Howard" (Jesse James) and that was his first time playing what he calls "a sniveling villain." Later he played another sniveling villain in "The Little Foxes," and, when that was bought fo ra movie, he went along. 3

So it was a procession of coincidences which made Duryea one of Hollywood's most accomplished heavies. College, luck—and plenty of ability.

Beachcomber Proves Detecting Profitable

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Phil Mann, a 24-year-old native of New York City, has brought the ancient art of beachcombing up to date and says he makes a fair living at it.

Mann, who uses an electronic metal detector, arrived here after a 3½ month hitchhiking trip which started at Bangor, Maine. He reported he picked up $1,746.09 in coins plus assorted jewelry from bathing beaches en route.

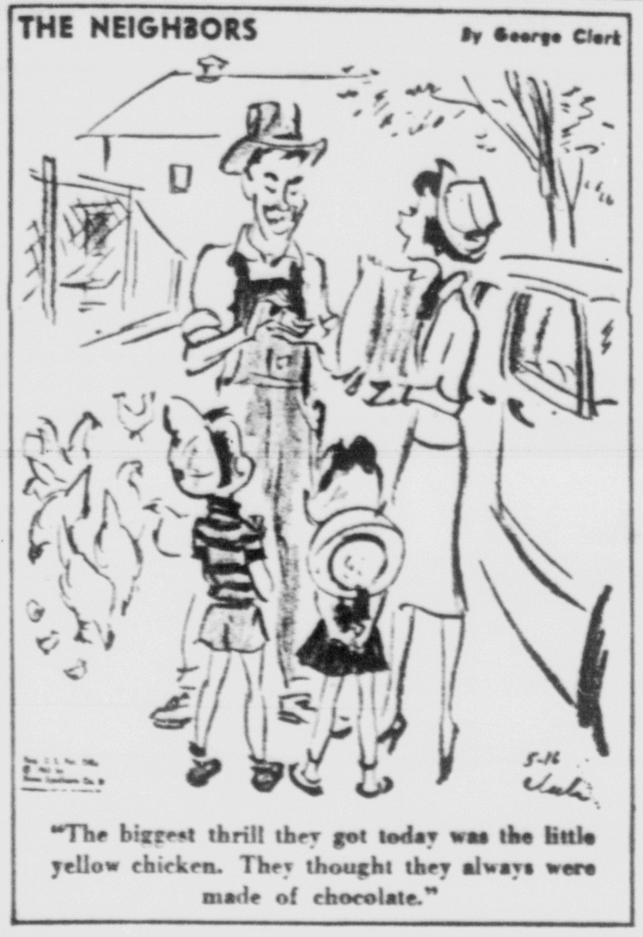
He hit Key West's two public beaches as soon as he arrived and found $18 and two valuable rings within seven hours.

THUMBNAIL SKETCH

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — After 20 years of research, Dr. William B. Bean says his left thumbnail is growing slower now than in 1942.

Bean, a member of the faculty at State University of Iowa, explained in the Archives of Internal Medicine that from 1942 to 1958 the nail took between 117 and 126 days to grow from cutical to fingertip.

In 1961, he said, it took 138 days.



"The biggest thrill they got today was the little yellow chicken. They thought they always were made of chocolate."

Open House Set at Brady Hospital

An open house at the Emory John Brady Hospital, 401 Southgate Rd., will be the highlight for "Community Mental Health Day" in Colorado Springs Tuesday.

Jack B. Ewing, president of the sponsoring El Paso County Association for Mental Health, Inc., said the public will be invited to the open house from 10 a.m. thru 3 p.m.

"We hope to have representatives from all agencies involved in mental health work and feel this is an excellent opportunity to tell the community what we are doing, and what other facilities the community offers," Ewing said.

"The shift across the country is to community-centered services for treatment and our 'Community Mental Health Day' will be a demonstration of our part of this month's National rally against mental illness," he said.

Executive director of the association is Mrs. Stewart L. Hinds. Other officers are Stig W. Palm, first vice president; the Rev. C. William Bryan, second vice president; J. D. Bilderback, treasurer; and Mrs. Naomi Fredricks, secretary.

Long Winter Causes Hauling of Water

PLEASANT VALLEY, Ill. (AP)—It's been a long winter for the R. J. Groepers who have had to add hauling household water to farm chores.

Water pipe, about 3,000 feet of it from the town source, froze during the January freeze when temperatures dropped to 20 degrees below zero.

The pipe is four feet underground and some of it is shady area. By mid-April, the pipe was beginning to warm enough to permit a trickle of water through.

TATTOOS TABOO

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Tattoos are taboo in Connecticut, even for sailors.

The state legislature approved recently a bill outlawing tattooing and in effect shuttering tattoo parlors near the U. S. Submarine Base at Groton.

From now on, tattoos can be applied only by a doctor or under a doctor's supervision.

At the monthly meeting of the Woodland Park Lions Club, held at the Brockhurst Boys Ranch, 22 Lion members were present. Don Gilbert was appointed to the board of directors to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Fay Donahue.

The annual pancake supper and carnival of the Lions Club has been scheduled for July 27, in the Community Building in Green Mountain Falls. Herman Fleischer has been appointed general chairman of the affair with Kenneth Quinn assisting.

At the Installation meeting Wednesday night May 8, held at the First Congregational Church, Mrs Polly Bartley was installed as corresponding secretary of Sweet Adelines Inc.

Miss Eloise Bellinger, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Jerry Bellinger, with Miss Donetta Hower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hower, were initiated into the International Order of Job's Daughters Bethel No 23, at the Masonic Temple in Colorado Springs, on Monday night May 6.

Mrs Kate Schorer entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club at her home with dessert lunch. All members were present, playing at two tables

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bucher, returned to their home at Paint Pony Country Club after a three week vacation with their daughter in Houston, Tex While there they attended the showing "How The West Was Won"

The wedding of Miss Patricia Pease, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Charles B. Pease of Woodland Park, to Roy Foland of Colorado Springs, was performed May 4 at the Church in the Wildwood by Judge Allan Asher of Colorado Springs.

The Ladies Guild had an all day meeting May 8, at the home of Mrs R. A. Hendrickson, 12 Deneta Drive, in Manitou Springs, with twelve members present.

Sermon topic at the church in the Wildwood on Mothers's Day was "Don't Jump — Stay Aboard" by Conard Pyle, minister. Offertory solo by Wini Pyle was "He Shall Feed His Flock" (Handel's "Messiah"). Hosts at the "Get-Acquainted" coffee hour after church were Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lamb of Chipita Park.

Sunday evening, May 12, 75 persons attended the Fellowship covered dish dinner honoring new members of the church. A program on Migrant Work in Colorado was presented by Rev. Jack Alford from the Council of Churches. The church-Wide fellowship dinner was sponsored by the Missions, Social Action and Fellowship Board, one of the seven ministries of the church program.

Migrants to Get Aid For New Life in City

BEREA, Ky. (AP)—The Council of the Southern Mountains is establishing an office in Chicago to help migrants from mountain communities adjust to city life.

The office is part of a multi-purpose program the council is developing for people of economically depressed mountain regions.

The council will encourage mountain people to develop skills and job opportunities that will enable them to make a contribution to their new community and will offer them advice on their move to the city.

Another part of the program will encourage creation of employment facilities in the Appalachian South to make good use of natural and personal resources of the region.

Candidate Wins After 32 Years

CASTLE, Okla. (AP) — "After 32 years of unsuccessful campaigning for public office," says Everett Wyrick, "it gives a man a contented feeling to close out a winner."

Wyrick defeated Jimmy Dyer 27-18 for a city council seat in this year's city election. It was his first victory after a series of political efforts, beginning in 1931, in which he lost four times in attempts for the sheriff's office, placed third in a three-man race for county commissioner and, in Castle's last city election there in 1948, lost a try for mayor by two votes.

CATHOLIC REFORM

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Counicl aims to reform theology and the church itself, says the Rev. Georges Tavard, a consultant to the council Secretariat for Christian Unity. This means "going back to the basic sources of theological thought" and "recovering the Biblical substance of Catholic tradition," he told the University of Minnesota Newman Center.

Building Officials To Meet Here At Little Theatre

The Colorado Chapter of the International Conference of Building Officials will hold a one-day meeting in Colorado Springs Friday.

Perry C. Tyree, city superintendent of building, said the meetings would be held in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium.

Thirty five to 40 building officials from Colorado, plus some from Wyoming will attend. Registration starts in the Little Theatre at 8 a.m. Friday.

One of the special events will be a discussion of proposed changes in the uniform building code in chapter 33, concerning stairs, exits and occupant loads.

Walter Kuenning, former city building superintendent, will conduct this session. He is still a member of the code committee.

Additionally, Tyree said, buildings problems common to communities in Colorado and Wyoming will be discussed.

Attending from Colorado Springs, in addition to Tyree, will be L. E. "Cotton" Owings, chief building inspector; Harold Tweedy, building inspector; and Batallion Fire Chief Ralph Nice.

GETS MARRIED, LOSES JOB

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Begum Shamsur Nehar, 36, one of the three women members of the East Pakistan assembly, has been ousted for marrying a government servant. The assembly's rules bar marriages between a member of the government and a member of the legislature.

Homelike Atmosphere SeenIn Mental Health Porject

By HELENA FROST

RED BANK, N.J. (NEA) — A young professor of psychiatry went to see what they are doing about mental health in Europe and came home with a dream.

Home, for Dr. Robert P. Nenno, is rural country of New Jersey; the dream is to set up community mental health centers in every small town in the four counties serviced by the New Jersey State Hospital at Marlboro, N.J. It is local implementation of the proposed national program to make the care of the mentally ill a community responsibility.

Dr. Nenno is a man of action as well as a dreamer. It is only four months since he took over direction of Marlboro Hospital and already the static resident population of this mental hospital has been reduced from 3,000 to 2,600.

Even more important is Bridgeway House in Red Bank, N.J., which opened its door to 10 recovering patients a few weeks ago.

It is more than a halfway house where mental patients may pause on the road back to normal living. It is a community mental health center and will offer continuity of care to those who need it; precare and aftercare, day-care and vocational rehabilitation and guidance.

President Kennedy's recent message to Congress recommended the "construction of a comprehensive community mental health center" with federal aid. They will obviously take time to build.

Dr. Nenno, eager for action, suggests: "Meanwhile we can use some of our nice old houses."

Nice and Victorian - old like Bridgeway House: white, clapboards, a wide veranda, and a lawn that unrolls to the bank of the Navesink River. Sun pours into the pleasant bedrooms, it has a big old-fashioned kitchen, a family living-room gay with cretonne and plants, where the chatter of birds and patients may be heard.

No, not patients, for already these are people living in a community.

Judy is a young woman, a college graduate and a teacher. In the hospital "aches and pains" kept her in bed often. "Last night I stayed up until nearly 10!" she said. Judy will soon go back to teaching, and share an apartment when she is ready; she doesn't want to live alone again.

"You're all alone in the hospital—among thousands."

This was Edith, who knows too well, for 20 of her 60 years were lost in a "back ward." A Rip Van Winkle brought out of her long sleep by a drug. Three years ago she sought a place "outside" where she could settle into living, but did not find it.

She will make it this time. After four weeks at Bridgeway House she is doing typing again; her hands never forgot their skill during the long, sick years. "But the important thing is learning how to live with people," Edith said.

Bridgeway House gives the men and women who pause there the vital opportunity to live with people in a normal setting before moving on into the community. They do the shopping, house-keeping and repairing, go to church, ballet, movies.

"I began with Red Bank because the mental health association is strong, always a sign of community concern," Dr. Nenno explained. He praised the Monmouth County Mental Health Association and the executive director, Mrs. Jannie Milt, who rallied the community to underwrite a professional salary for the house and to contribute all the furnishings and volunteer services. The local mental health group is a unit of the National Association for Mental Health.

For several years the Red Bank house was a resocialization center run jointly by Marlboro Hospital and the mental health association. Then Dr. Nenno had his dream of a more complete center for recovering patients. Cooperation crystallized it in record time.

On his European tour Dr. Nenno was stimulated by mental health projects visited in Britain and the Netherlands, and when he came home he gave up his post as chairman of psychiatry at the Seton Hall College of Medicine in Jersey City "to plunge right into it." In Nottingham, England, he found this practical and compassionate program for geriatrics:

"I don't like that word, or 'senior citizens'; but picture an elderly lady living alone. A bus driver calls for her, goes in to make sure the gas is turned off and locks the door. Then he takes her to a center where they check her medically and give her a good hot midday meal. She spends the day usefully with other older people. If she lives with young relatives, the center also takes care of her when they go on vacation."

So Dr. Nenno's dream adds up to a mental health center for geriatrics, another for children, and a Bridgeway House — in every community.

Is it just a dream? The psychiatrist doesn't think so. "The community has to care," he said. "Indifference, isolation, institutionalization—they make people sicker."

The community can learn to care. And a Bridgeway House in the community is a good teacher. When people help recovering patients, they begin to understand what mental illness is.

Understanding, they feel sympathy. They care.

Beer Used to Keep Taxicab Going

DARWIN, Australia (AP)—Taxidriver Geor e Panagiotopoulis used a dozen bottles of beer to keep his air-conditioned cab going on a 470-mile trip over lonely, dry roads in northern Australia.

About 200 miles from Timber Creek township, the Greek-born driver hit an outsize pothole and cracked the cab's radiator. His woman passenger had the beer, so Panagiotopoulis primed the radiator with a fresh bottle every half hour or so.

The taxi eventually bubbled into Timber Creek on the last bottle.

LAY CONGRESS

ROME (AP)—Plans were made by the Roman Catholic Committee of International Congresses of the Lay Apostolate for a world congress of Catholic laymen, probably in 1965, to help implement new policies concerning the laity authorized by the Second Vatican Council.

Mrs. Mamie Young, a member of Liberty Chapter No. 108, Fairplay, was a visitor at the meeting, and discussed plans for presenting the program as it was in the year 1867. Snowflake Chapter is planning a special meeting for this group in June. Helen Randal is Worthy Matron and Tom Bonifield, Worthy Patron of Snowflake Chapter.

Rev. and Mrs. Paul Hutchens attended at 6 o'clock banquet, Saturday night, at the Village Inn which was sponsored by the Christian Service Fellowship of Northwestern College in Minneapolis, Minn. Guest speakers were Horace Fenton from Latin American Mission and Juan Isais of Mexico. Presenting a special message at the Ute Pass Bible Church, at the 11 a.m. worship service on Mother's Day was the Rev. Spencer Bower, director of CSF in Minneapolis. The Rev. Mr. Bower is administrator of several college radio stations in the west and midwest.

The annual luncheon meeting of the Cascade Community Club, scheduled for May 9 at Paint Pony Country Club, was cancelled due to conflicing engagements. Installation of new officers will be held over until September when meetings will be resumed.

Mrs. Hazel Lisiecki entertained a bridge foursome at her home, Thursday evening. Her guests were Shirley Nixon, Jane Henricks and Carol Hunt.

Mrs. Helen Dugdale is chairman of the Board of Missions, Social Action and Fellowship which sponsored a Church-Wide Fellowship dinner meeting May 12, in Fellowship Hall Church in the Wildwood. Seventy-five persons attended.

Rev. Jack Alfird, chairman of the "Harvester" program, Council of Churches, gave an inspiring program on "Migrants", portraying the migrant work to the church family.

Thousands Are Handed Relief in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — In queues reminiscent of depression days, thousands of persons lined up for food handouts today in the worsening Illinois relief crisis.

Hard - pressed families whose welfare checks for the month of May have been held up by a political feud crowded 30 neighborhood centers, hauling away federal surplus and donated foods.

In boxes, bags, old cars and coaster wagons, at the rate of 35 pounds to a person, they carted away dried milk, dried beans, rice, peanut butter, corn meal, rolled wheat, chopped meat, lard, butter and cheese.

When the relief crisis would pass, no one knew. The Illinois legislature, back on the job after a four-day holiday, failed again Tuesday to make an emergency appropriation to end the eight-week dispute.

Protest In Civil Exam Is Reported

DENVER (UPI)—A field representative for the State Anti-Discrimination Commission said Tuesday he felt he should have scored a place in an examination for director of the agency.

George Roybals said at a Colorado Civil Service Commission meeting that with his experience, he felt he should have scored on the oral test.

Roybals charged that the examiners were personally acquainted with some of the applicants, and that the board unfairly did not contain any members from the Spanish-American community.

The Civil Service Commission took Roybal's statements under advisement. It is scheduled to hear an appeal from Ed Terrones, acting director, who also failed the exam.

Terrones also has made similar charges.

High scorer on the test was James Reynolds, a Negro.

U.N. Chief Says Cash Reserves Dwindling

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U Thant warned today cash resources of the United Nations may dwindle by the end of the year to $10 million—less than enough to meet the organization's requirements for a month.

The secretary-general issued the warning in a report in advance of an afternoon committee meeting on U.N. financial problems.

Informed diplomats said the situation might be eased by voluntary contributions from about 15 industrialized nations to help finance the U.N. Congo and Middle East peace operations for the last half of 1963.

Thant said that unless members make good on $13 million pledged for U.N. bonds the deficit at the end of this year will reach $140 million and there will be only $10 million in cash in the till.

MY ANSWER

QUESTION: We have raised our children without resorting to the brutality of corporeal punishment. Have we done right? —MRS. M. D.

ANSWER: A good spanking and brutality are not synonymous. It is possible to go beyond the bounds of punishment and inflict physical injury. This is completely wrong. However, it is possible to err in the opposite direction, harming our children by a failure to discipline when discipline is needed. We all know that children react very differently. There are some to whom a word is all that is necessary. There are others who need to be deprived of some treat. There are others who need a sound spanking and profit greatly by it. By and large the problem in America today is a lack of discipline of children in those formative years when it can be so effective in helping them. In Proverbs 23:13, 14 we read: "Do not withold discipline from a child: if you beat him with a rod, he will not die. If you beat him with a rod you will save his life." This does not mean brutal beating but a spanking which hurts and which is understood by the child. At the same time we should never strike our children in anger.

In Proverbs 13:24 we read: "He that spareth his rod hateth his son: but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." In Chapter 9:18: "Chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying." In Proverbs 22:15 we are told: "Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him." These words were written thousands of years ago but they agree with what many modern child psychologists feel today.

QUESTION: I have been told that a Christian should never have a guilt complex but I am often overwhelmed by a sense of my own sinfulness. What is wrong? —W. P. Y.

ANSWER: If you have a sense of guilt over sins which you have confessed and trusted to Christ for forgiveness then you are wrong, for you are questioning God's promise. No Christian should ever carry around a sense of guilt over the forgiven past. But, the more saintly a person is, the more aware he is of his sinful heart and the more he loves the Lord for having saved him. The more we realize our own unworthiness the more we appreciate Christ's love and saving power. There are times when a so-called "guilt complex" is a healthy thing, as healthy as the pain we experience when we get too close to the fire, or pricked by a sharp knife. In these cases pain is a warning of danger. A consciousness of guilt can be a warning that we are sinning and must turn from it.

On the other hand I have known people who were emotionally ill and burdened with a sense of guilt. Many of these people are actually sick and need help. We should treat them with loving compassion and make it possible for them to get the professional treatment they need. For those who are not emotionally sick we should always point them to Christ, our burden - bearer, and help them put their full trust in I Peter 5:7 we read: "Casting all your care on him, for he careth for you." Jesus wants to take the "guilt complex" away because for those who trust in Him there is no guilt left.

Plans call for the U.S. to launch a dozen or so "flying laboratories" called Surveyors.

Pakistan Girls May Enter Nursing Work

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Despite objections from some religious leaders who thought it was un-Islamic, the Pakistan National Assembly has passed a law permitting girls up to the age of 18 to enter the nursing profession.

Opponents of the bill contended that nursing of men who are not members of thier families was forbidden to Moslem women by the Koran.

FAITH AND ORDER

MONTREAL (AP) — Leading Protestant and Orthodox theologians from around the world will meet here July 12-26 to analyze the doctrinal problems in achieving Christian unity. The historic meeting will be the Fourth World Conference on Faith and Order, sponsored by the World Council of Churches. The last one was in 1952 in Lund, Sweden.

Tucson, Ariz., was settled in 1776.

Chipita Park News

By CAROLYN McADAMS — MU 7-9065

Mrs. Polly Lamb, chairman for the Missionary Education Program, Women's Fellowship, held a meeting of the committee May 10, at 9:30 a.m. at the Church the Wildwood. Present were Mrs. Lamb, Wini Pyle, Sallie Bush, Maxine Van Arsdale, and Carolyn McAdams.

Rev. Conard Pyle was gueest speaker May 9, at the 10 a.m. meeting of the Hope House Mothers Club, held at the home of Mrs. Persis Wolf, Colorado Springs. Work of the Association was discussed.

May 12 was proclaimed thruout North America as National Shrine Hospital Day, commemorating the 41st anniversary of the World's Greatest Philanthropy, Shriners Hospitals For Crippled Children. Shrine leaders met recently at Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida and formulated plans to institute the first medical center specializing in the treatment of children's burns, to be operated on a charitable basis.

The first Shrine Burns Institute will be located in Boston, Massachusetts. General Hospital, subject to negotiations with the hospital and the Harvard Medical School. More than 50 medical schools in North America were considered for location of the first burns institute.

Participating in the special music program for the revival meetings held at the First Baptist Church in Woodland Park the week of May 5 through 12, were Nina Wiggins, Dave Walker, Cathy Cornett and Vincent Cornett. Solo and duet selections under the direction of Dale Huffman of Green Mountain Falls with choir and organ accompaniment were on the program.

Rev. Larry Slaughter, a native of Hereford, Tex. who is presently pastor of the First Baptist Church in Manitou Springs, conducted the evangelistic services. A graduate of Hardin Simmons University and Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary, The Rev. Mr. Slaughter plans to enter missionary work in Panama. The theme of the revival was "Crown Christ in Your Heart."

Co-Directors of the Vacation Bible School, sponsored annually by members of the Junior Guild, Church in the Wildwood, will be Mrs. Jonell Ewart, Mrs. Carolyn Houchin and Mrs. Helen Quinn. The theme will be "Widening Relations" with classes for all ages, beginning on June 10 through June 14, from 9 a.m. untill 11:30 a.m. Pre-registration for the Church School will be held on June 2 and June 9, in Fellowship Hall, between the Sunday School hour and Church Service from 10 to 11 a.m.

Teachers of the various classes will be, Beverly Page and Carol Anderson for Pre-school; Joyce Meuer and Barbara Patterson, kindergarten; Patricia Penman with Maxine Van Arsdale, the Primary; Jan Pettit and Grace Wilson teaching lo-Juniors; Doris Pierson and Martha Crabbs the junior group.

An evening program on Friday June 14 will be for parents and friends. Donations of cool aid and cookies for the snack treat each day will be welcome. Call Jonell Ewart 684-9182 for information.

Showboat Will Be Taken to Philadelphia

MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—The Showboat, built in Dubuque at a cost of $250,000, is enroute to Philadelphia to lend a bit of Midwestern culture to the Main Line.

The Mississippi River Excursion boat dates back to before the turn of the century.

The river craft was purchased by Philadelphia Harbor Tours Inc. It is 89 feet long with two decks with a capacity of 400 persons.

Although it has a paddle wheel, it is outfitted with two diesel motors and conventional twin propellers.

Bids for Old Loveland Airport Are Rejected

LOVELAND (AP) — All four bids for the 10-acre site of the present Loveland Municipal Airport were rejected by the City Council Tuesday night when they fell far under the expected figures.

Only one bid, for $25,000, was entered for the entire property. The others were only for portions of the tract.

City officials had hoped to get at least $125,000 for the airport property and use the money to finance a joint Loveland-Fort Collins airport proposed for a site midway between the two cities.

Councilmen decided to reject the bids and meet with Loveland real estate leaders to discuss means of stimulating greater bidder interest in the property.

Presumably, they will call for new bids later this spring.

The lone bidder for the entire site was Arthur L. Arnold of Las Vegas, Nev.

The other bidders seeking parts of the property for figures ranging from $4,450 to $13,200, were R. L. Conger Construction Co. of Loveland, Orin Bullock of Russel, Kan.

SITTING IN FOR EASTER BUNNY

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Doug Smith's Araucana hens have been known as the Easter Egg Fowl, originated in Chile and were first raised by the Araucana Indians. Doing what comes naturally, one hen may lay pink eggs, another green eggs and a third one yellow eggs. Each hen averages 265 eggs a year.

Open House Set at Brady Hospital

An open house at the Emory John Brady Hospital, 401 Southgate Rd., will be the highlight for "Community Mental Health Day" in Colorado Springs Tuesday.

Jack B. Ewing, president of the sponsoring El Paso County Association for Mental Health Inc., said the public will be invited to the open house from 10 a.m. thru 3 p.m.

"We hope to have representatives from all agencies involved in mental health work and feel this is an excellent opportunity to tell the community what we are doing and what other facilities the community offers," Ewing said.

"The shift across the country is to community-centered services for treatment and our Community Mental Health Day will be a demonstration of our part of this month's National rally against mental illness," he said.

Executive director of the association is Mrs. Stewart L. Hinds. Other officers are Sug W. Palm, first vice president, the Rev. C. William Bryan, second vice president, J. D. Bilderback, treasurer, and Mrs. Naomi Fredricks, secretary.

Long Winter Causes Hauling of Water

PLEASANT VALLEY, Ill. (AP) —It's been a long winter for the R. J. Groepers who have had to add hauling household water to farm chores.

Water pipe, about 3,000 feet of it from the town source, froze during the January freeze when temperatures dropped to 20 degrees below zero.

The pipe is four feet underground and some of it is shady area. By mid-April, the pipe was beginning to warm enough to permit a trickle of water through.

TATTOOS TABOO

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) —Tattoos are taboo in Connecticut, even for sailors.

The state legislature approved recently a bill outlawing tattooing and in effect shuttering tattoo parlors near the U. S. Submarine Base at Groton.

From now on, tattoos can be applied only by a doctor or under a doctor's supervision.

CATHOLIC REFORM

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council aims to reform theology and the church itself, says the Rev. Georges Tavard, a consultant to the council Secretariat for Christian Unity. This means "going back to the basic sources of theological thought" and "recovering the Biblical substance of Catholic tradition," he told the University of Minnesota Newman Center.

Building Officials To Meet Here At Little Theatre

The Colorado Chapter of the International Conference of Building Officials will hold a one-day meeting in Colorado Springs Friday.

Perry C Tyree, city superintendent of building, said the meetings would be held in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium.

Thirty five to 40 building officials from Colorado, plus some from Wyoming will attend. Registration starts in the Little Theatre at 8 a.m. Friday.

One of the special events will be a discussion of proposed changes in the uniform building code in chapter 33, concerning stairs, exits and occupant loads.

Walter Kuenning, former city building superintendent, will conduct this session. He is still a member of the code committee.

Additionally, Tyree said, buildings problems common to communities in Colorado and Wyoming will be discussed.

Attending from Colorado Springs, in addition to Tyree, will be L. E. "Cotton" Owings, chief building inspector; Harold Tweedy, building inspector, and Batallion Fire Chief Ralph Nice

Homelike Atmosphere SeenIn Mental Health Porject

By HELENA FROST

RED BANK, N.J. (NEA) — A young professor of psychiatry went to see what they are doing about mental health in Europe and came home with a dream.

Home, for Dr. Robert P. Nenno, is rural country of New Jersey; the dream is to set up community mental health centers in every small town in the four counties serviced by the New Jersey State Hospital at Marlboro, N.J. It is local implementation of the proposed national program to make the care of the mentally ill a community responsibility.

Dr. Nenno is a man of action as well as a dreamer. It is only four months since he took over direction of Marlboro Hospital and already the static resident population of this mental hospital has been reduced from 3,000 to 2,600.

Even more important is Bridgeway House in Red Bank, N.J., which opened its door to 10 recovering patients a few weeks ago.

It is more than a halfway house where mental patients may pause on the road back to normal living. It is a community mental health center and will offer continuity of care to those who need it; precare and aftercare, day-care and vocational rehabilitation and guidance.

President Kennedy's recent message to Congress recommended the "construction of a comprehensive community mental health center" with federal aid. They will obviously take time to build.

Dr. Nenno, eager for action, suggests: "Meanwhile we can use some of our nice old houses."

Nice and Victorian - old like Bridgeway House: white, clapboards, a wide veranda, and a lawn that unrolls to the bank of the Navesink River. Sun pours into the pleasant bedrooms, it has a big old-fashioned kitchen, a family living-room gay with cretonne and plants, where the chatter of birds and patients may be heard.

No, not patients, for already these are people living in a community.

Judy is a young woman, a college graduate and a teacher. In the hospital "aches and pains" kept her in bed often. "Last night I stayed up until nearly 10!" she said. Judy will soon go back to teaching, and share an apartment when she is ready; she doesn't want to live alone again.

"You're all alone in the hospital—among thousands."

This was Edith, who knows too well, for 20 of her 60 years were lost in a "back ward." A Rip Van Winkle brought out of her long sleep by a drug. Three years ago she sought a place "outside" where she could settle into living, but did not find it.

She will make it this time. After four weeks at Bridgeway House she is doing typing again; her hands never forgot their skill during the long, sick years. "But the important thing is learning how to live with people," Edith said.

Bridgeway House gives the men and women who pause there the vital opportunity to live with people in a normal setting before moving on into the community. They do the shopping, house-keeping and repairing, go to church, ballet, movies.

"I began with Red Bank because the mental health association is strong, always a sign of community concern," Dr. Nenno explained. He praised the Monmouth County Mental Health Association and the executive director, Mrs. Jannie Milt, who rallied the community to underwrite a professional salary for the house and to contribute all the furnishings and volunteer services. The local mental health group is a unit of the National Association for Mental Health.

For several years the Red Bank house was a resocialization center run jointly by Marlboro Hospital and the mental health association. Then Dr. Nenno had his dream of a more complete center for recovering patients. Cooperation crystallized it in record time.

On his European tour Dr. Nenno was stimulated by mental health projects visited in Britain and the Netherlands, and when he came home he gave up his post as chairman of psychiatry at the Seton Hall College of Medicine in Jersey City "to plunge right into it." In Nottingham, England, he found this practical and compassionate program for geriatrics:

"I don't like that word, or 'senior citizens'; but picture an elderly lady living alone. A bus driver calls for her, goes in to make sure the gas is turned off and locks the door. Then he takes her to a center where they check her medically and give her a good hot midday meal. She spends the day usefully with other older people. If she lives with young relatives, the center also takes care of her when they go on vacation."

So Dr. Nenno's dream adds up to a mental health center for geriatrics, another for children, and a Bridgeway House — in every community.

Is it just a dream? The psychiatrist doesn't think so. "The community has to care," he said. "Indifference, isolation, institutionalization—they make people sicker."

The community can learn to care. And a Bridgeway House in the community is a good teacher. When people help recovering patients, they begin to understand what mental illness is.

Understanding, they feel sympathy. They care.

Beer Used to Keep Taxicab Going

DARWIN, Australia (AP)—Taxi-driver Geor e Panagiotopoulis used a dozen bottles of beer to keep his air-conditioned cab going on a 470-mile trip over lonely, dry roads in northern Australia.

About 200 miles from Timber Creek township, the Greek-born driver hit an outsize pothole and cracked the cab's radiator. His woman passenger had the beer, so Panagiotopoulis primed the radiator with a fresh bottle every half hour or so.

The taxi eventually bubbled into Timber Creek on the last bottle.

AFA Nixes Playoffs After CSC Loss

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

This spring the Falcons of the Air Force Academy have established themselves as the homer-hittingest team in the entire region and in the history of the school — but despite any fence-busting records set this season, it looks like the Cadets will not be tournament-bound.

The Falcons plastered three more round-trippers Wednesday afternoon in their spacious park but came out on the losing end with Colorado State College of Greeley, 10-4.

The three homers brought the AFA's team total to an outstanding 46 for the season — by far the best in the region. But the loss also gave the Falcons a mediocre 11-11 split in the won-lost column and Coach Wendy Lawrence expressed doubt after the defeat on chances that his team would join in the District 7 playoffs for an NCAA tournament berth.

"With a record like that, I doubt very much if our athletic director will approve our entry in the playoffs," Lawrence said. "Unless we could have won more games than that, we really don't deserve to be in the playoffs."

Thus Lawrence, who just returned last weekend from Brazil where he was the head manager of the United States team in the Pan-American Games, ended the suspense as far as the Academy over which teams will be involved in the district playoffs. Despite winning only half their games so far, the Falcons still are the most logical choice for the independent's spot in that they have beaten the other contenders.

* * *

Colorado State, already crowned champions of the Rocky Mountain Conference for the 22nd straight year, increased their season's record to 17-5 with Wednesday's win. One of those five defeats came at the hands of the AFA, a 7-5 decision in 10 innings earlier at Greeley, and 14 of the victories came against RMC league-mates — which is hardly much of an accomplishment.

So the playoffs remain muddy, altho the Falcons have all but declined their expected invitation. C-State from the RMC will play, as will the winner of a showdown in the Western Athletic Conference between Arizona and BYU, but they may not have another playmate for the planned three-team meet next weekend.

* * *

Meanwhile, the Falcons have four more chances to improve on their record with a single game at home this Friday against Denver (which they defeated 7-2 on Tuesday), a double header with Colorado State University on Saturday at 1 p.m., and then the AFA ends the regular season with a trip to Wyoming University on Sunday.

Wednesday, the heavy-hitting Bears of CSC jumped on Academy ace sophomore Pete Bracci for a dozen hits and then banged their only home run of the game off reliever Larry Backus for the victory. Four of the baker's dozen hits were doubles, one a triple and Bob Bettinger cracked the homer in the ninth inning.

Every one of the AFA's four runs came as a result of their three round-trippers. Bruce Huneke smacked one in the first inning with one aboard and Roger Zoeller's in the second and Jon Medina's in the fourth were both solo blasts.

The homers gave the Cadets a 3-0 jump on the visitors in the first two innings, but C-State bounded back with the equalizers in the third as they scored three times on two doubles and two singles.

The game remained knotted until the fifth when a hit batsman started the Bears off again. Jack Miyamota singled and both runners advanced on a double steal. But it appeared that Bracci might have been able to get out unhurt when a strikeout registered the second out. Duane Banks and Tom Carlson followed up with singles and both stretched it to second on the throws to the plate, and the damage was done.

The Falcons crept back with a singleton on Medina's homer in the sixth, but the Bears refused to let up and again went ahead by three with another run in the seventh on Banks' double and a wild pitch by Bracci. Paul Meka scored after slapping a triple in the eighth, and Bettinger sealed the victory in the ninth with his homer with a man aboard.

While the Falcons finish out the season against Denver, CSU and Wyoming over the weekend, Colorado State will be ending its Rocky Mountain Conference slate with games at Adams State College at Alamosa on Friday and Saturday. C-State is undefeated in RMC play, as usual.

ALL BUT THE BALL — As Colorado State College's Duane Banks slides into home in this seventh inning action of Wednesday's game with the Air Force Academy, pitcher Pete Bracci tries to put on the tag. There's one missing item for Bracci, however. The ball is on the ground next to the plate. Banks scored on a wild pitch after a double and infield out. Umpire John Cryan calls the play as Bob Bettinger of CSC waits with the bat. In the background, Colorado State coach Pete Butler watches from the dugout steps. CSC won the game, 10-4. Colorado Pick to Win Track Crown

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Colorado, led by a few top men, is a slender choice over a balanced Missouri team and Oklahoma State's one-man gang, Charles Strong, in the Big Eight track championships Friday and Saturday.

It could be the tightest four-team finish in 25 years. Four meet records already have been surpassed this season and four others closely approached.

Here is our forecast of the team finish, based on the form chart: Colorado 103, Missouri 92, Oklahoma State 88, Kansas 82, Nebraska 65, Oklahoma 59, Kansas State 21 and Iowa State 17.

Colorado's hopes are carried by four outstanding men — hurdler and dash man Jim Miller, sprinter Dick Burns, jumper Leander Durley and distance man Bob Griffith.

Miller has the league's best high hurdle time at 14.1 seconds and the nation's best 330 hurdles time at 36.2. He is expected to win both events and run on winning 440 and mile relay teams. Colorado has run the 440 relay in 40.8 and the mile relay in 3:10.1 both best in the Big Eight this season.

Burns has run the 100 in 9.6, second only to the 9.5 by Nebraska's Ray Knaub this season, and the 220 in 20.8, compared to the meet record of 20.9. Burns is picked second in both—behind Strong in the 220 — but easily could win both events.

Durley leads the league in both the high jump at 6-8¾ and triple jump at 47-10¾. But winning both will be a severe challenge. He is picked behind Nebraska's Victor Brooks in the triple jump and No. 2 behind Larry Eilert, Iowa State, the defending high jump champion.

Griffith is picked behind Pat McNeal of Kansas State, who has run the mile in 4:05.3, almost a second under the meet record.

Missouri has the depth to score in almost every event, but only two gold medal favorites. They are Greg Pelster, defending 880 champ who will try for the league record of 1:49, and Roy Bryant, whose 14:41.1 leads the 3-mile field. Griffith won the two-mile last year, probably won't run the 3-mile.

If Strong were twins, O-State would be a certain champ. He has broadjumped 24-4¾, run the 440 in 46.9, both league bests, plus the 220 in 20.9, the 100 in 9.7. He'll shoot for firsts in the 440, 220, broad jump and will anchor the 440 and mile relay teams.

On My Honor May Be Race Threat

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP)—The "Big Three" from the Kentucky Derby are on everybody's list before Saturday's Preakness at Pimlico. What about the fourth finisher at Louisville?

On My Honor is mentioned, if at all, only as an afterthought. He was the one behind Chateaugay, Never Bend and Candy Spots.

Which is not a knock, exactly, but the attitude would lead you to believe On My Honor hasn't a ghost of a chance to win the $150,000-added race.

It may well be that he is over his head, but Chateaugay was only fifth choice in a field of nine when he won the Derby May 4. On My Honor swept past No Robbery, the second betting choice, and Bonjour, fourth in the odds, on his way to a share of the purse.

After the invincibility of Candy Spots and No Robbery was shattered in the Derby, interest in the 3-year-old racing class turned to whether Chateaugay can be tripped in either the Preakness or the Belmont Stakes next month. On My Honor might not turn the trick in the Preakness, but a small clan already is looking ahead for him in the Belmont.

The 1 3-16-mile Preakness could be too short for On My Honor's late rally as was the 1¼-mile Derby. However, the 1½-mile Belmont might be right down his alley.

On My Honor was last and more than 16 lengths behind the front running Never Bend after the first three quarters of a mile in the Derby. He trailed by only six lengths at the finish.

State Horse Racing Begins Season Friday

BRUSH, Colo. (UPI)— Colorado's horse racing season gets underway Friday at Memorial Park here with eight sprint races.

Post time for the first race is 1:30 p.m. Officials said many Colorado-owned quarterhorses and thoroughbreds are entered in the season's meet.

Indian Baseball, Track Champs To Challenge for State Titles

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

For the first time in the history of the Pikes Peak League, a school has claimed conference crowns in two major sports in one season.

Cheyenne Mountain High School, PPL champions in both baseball and track this spring, will lead the league into state championships in both sports this coming weekend. Coach Eldon Helm's baseball team squares off against Delta on the latter's field in the state semi-finals Saturday, while Tom McCord's trackmen journey to Alamosa for the state meet the same day.

The Indians' baseball team, winner of the 1962 State Class AA playoffs, travels across the Western Slope to tangle with a squad they defeated in last year's finals. Delta is reported to have basically the same potent team that lost to the Indians, 5-1.

Helm rates Delta the team most capable of winning the state laurels should the Indians lose to the Southwestern League kingpins in Saturday's semi-finals. The Cheyenne mentor will call on Bob Maio to carry the Tribe from the mound.

The baseball game is slated for 1:30 p.m. at the Delta diamond. Meanwhile, Lamar and Mapleton will battle in another semi-final game at the later's field. The winner of that contest will be the guest of the victor of the Cheyenne-Delta game the following Saturday, May 25. If the Indians succeed in defeating Delta, they will host the state championship playoff on their home field a week from Saturday. If they lose, Delta will host the winner of the Lamar-Mapleton game.

Helm will call on his nine regulars to pull out the semi-final victory. They include Joe Folk, catcher; John Patterson, first base; Gary Graham, second base; Steve Markowitz, shortstop; Bill Massarand, third base; Ted Garcia, left field; Greg Cramblit, center field; Barrie Riddoch, right field; and Maio.

The Tribe wrapped up the school's sixth PPL crown and now seeks its fifth state crown during the eight years Helm has coached baseball.

McCord's trackmen, winners of the PPL District Meet, have progressed considerably since the start of the track season. The Cheyenne tracksters encountered a slow start at the break of the season, but developed into a evenly-balanced squad. Altho the Tribe lost the services of big Rick Stowell, who pulled a leg muscle and missed competing in the District Meet, they stand a good chance of placing high in the state track meet at the Adams State College stadium.

Stowell was the first PPL shot putter to heave the 12-pound iron ball over the 50-foot barrier. But beefy Mike Mestas of Salida broke the District Meet record with a toss of 52-8. The big Spartan could encounter little comptition in winning that event.

The Indians have depth in the sprints, field events, and relays. Cheyenne qualified 11 to compete in the state meet. John Shultz's Trojans of Fountain finishd in second place in the District Meet and qualified five men.

Chuck Loper's Gladiators from Widefield, who were favored to win the PPL meet, qualified nine but will be minus speed merchant Rusty Henninger. The 220 state champion injured his knee participating in the broad jump during the preliminaries and altho he qualified to run in the 100 in the district finals, his knee worsened.

Henninger is presently in the Ft. Carson hospital and will miss the state meet. His knee started swelling last Sunday and the doctors put him in traction.

* * *

IT'S ALL IN YOUR HANDS—Eldon Helm, coach of Cheyenne Mountain's baseball team, hands his ace hurler Bob Maio the ball prior to their departure for Delta to play that team in the State Class AA semi-finals Saturday afternoon. Helm will call on his two seniors including John Patterson, (right) the Indians consistent long ball hitter, to pace his youthful team to their fifth state crown.

Angels Plagued by Fire, Fiery Red Sox Batsman

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a tough day for the Los Angeles Angels. First they were routed out of their hotel by a fire, then routed out of Fenway Park by a fiery first baseman.

Dick Stuart, who says he's worried about his hitting, drove in seven runs on two homers—one a grand slam—and led Boston to a doubleheader sweep of the Angels, 9-3 and 7-6 Wednesday night.

Stuart's heroics propelled the surprising Red Sox into second place in the American League, one game back of the Chicago White Sox, who scored a 7-4 victory over Detroit.

Mudcat Grant blanked Kansas City 1-0 on a two-hitter for Cleveland and Baltimore whipped Washington 7-1 on Milt Pappas' three-hitter in other night games, while the New York Yankees edged Minnesota 4-3 in the only day game.

A three-alarm fire in the Hotel Somerset in Boston chased the Angels from their rooms in the early morning hours and the slugging Stuart finished the rout at Fenway Park.

His grand slam in the third inning of the first game put it out of reach. He had a three-run homer in the nightcap, and scored the winning run in the eighth inning.

Stuart lifted his runs batted in total to 24 and increased his home run production to 7, both marks high among the league leaders. But Stuart, hitting only .250, says he isn't satisfied.

"Even if I drive in 100 runs and hit 30 homers, I wouldn't be happy if I hit for the batting average I have right now," he said.

Bill Monbouquette went the distance for the first game victory, beating Bo Belinski, and Dick Radatz won the second in relief.

Grant allowed only a double by Wayne Causey and a single by Chuck Essegian and retired 13 men in a row over one stretch is his outstanding effort against Kansas City. Tito Francona drove in both Indian runs with a first inning single.

Pappas, 3-0 for the season, retired 18 Senators in order at one stretch in his three-hitter. He lost his shutout when Ken Retzer hit an eighth inning homer. Jim Gentile, Jackie Brandt and Jerry Adair had homers for the Orioles.

Ron Hansen keye ad fifth inning rally for the White Sox with a bases-loaded single and Dave Nicholson stroked a two-run homer in the victory over Detroit. Juan Pizarro won his third without loss, but needed help from Jim Brosnan in the eighth.

Elston Howard's eighth inning single drove in the tie-breaking run for the Yankees, who handed the stumbling Twins their 11th loss in their last 14 games. Mickey Mantle had a two-run homer in the sixth for the Yanks.

Bob Hendley Makes Like Sandy Should

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milwaukee's Bob Hendley made like Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Koufax didn't.

While Koufax was making his first appearance since pitching a no-hitter against San Francisco, Hendley stole the spotlight by hurling the Braves to a 9-3 triumph over St. Louis Wednesday night and coming within two outs of matching the Koufax 4-day-old masterpiece.

Hendley got Julian Javier on a grounder to open the ninth, but pinch - hitter George Altman reached first when Frank Bolling booted his grounder.

That seemed to unsettle, Hendley, who was then tagged for a triple to right center by Curt Flood for the first St. Louis hit.

Before Hendley regained his composure, the Cardinals had two more hits and three runs. But nothing could dim the performance of the 24-year-old left-hander, who pitched probably the finest game in his three seasons in the majors.

Koufax was touched for 11 hits, but struck out 12 and won his fourth in a row when Ron Fairly drove in the decisive run with a two-out single in the 12th inning and gave the Dodgers a 3-2 triumph over Philadelphia.

In other National League action, first-place San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 4-3, Cincinnati belted Chicago's Cubs 10-2 and the New York Mets downed Houston 10-2 and the New York Mets downed Houston 7-4, ending the Colts winning streaek at six.

After Flood's triple got things started for the Cards, Dick Groat followed with a single, Charley James was safe on an error by Denny Menke and Groat scored the third run on Ken Boyer's single before Hendley worked out of the jam. Menke homered for the first Braves' run in the third inning and Milwaukee continued to pound Curt Simmons, who lost his first after five victories.

Fairly's run-producing single gave Koufax his fifth victory in six decisions. The Dodger southpaw had been lifted for a pinch hitter at the start of the inning after striking out 10 or more in a game for the 43rd time. Jim Gilliam scored the winning run after singling and moving to second on a passed ball. The loss went to Johnny Klippstein, 1-2.

The Giants broke a scoreless tie against loser Don Cardwell in the fifth after Orlando Cepeda led off with the inning's only hit, a pop fly that dropped in short center. Cardwell, now 1-5, walked winning pitcher Juan Marichal to force in one run and hit Felipe Alou to force in another before Bob Bailey bobbled Willie Mays' grounder and let in two more runs. Marichal brought his record to 5-3 with Bob Bolin's relief help.

Frank Robinson led the Reds, collecting a single, double and triple, driving in three runs and stealing a base. Jim Maloney, 5-1, was the winner, Glen Hobbie, 1-4 the loser.

Al Jackson sparked two rallies with singles and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly as he won his fourth against three losses for the Mets. Jackson scattered six hits and had allowed only an unearned run when John Bateman brought the Colts close in the ninth with a three-run homer.

ANSWER: If you have a sense of guilt over sins which you have confessed and trusted to Christ for forgiveness then you are wrong, for you are questioning God's promise. No Christian should ever carry around a sense of guilt over the forgiven past. But the more saintly a person is the more aware he is of his sinful heart and the more he loves the Lord for having saved him. The more we realize our own unworthiness the more we appreciate Christ's love and saving power. There are times when a so-called "guilt complex" is a healthy thing as healthy as the pain we experience when we get too close to the fire, or pricked by a sharp knife. In these cases pain is a warning of danger. A consciousness of guilt can be a warning that we are sinning and must turn from it.

On the other hand I have known people who were emotionally ill and burdened with a sense of guilt. Many of these people are actually sick and need help. We should treat them with loving compassion and make it possible for them to get the professional treatment they need. For those who are not emotionally sick we should always point them to Christ, our burden - bearer, and help them put their full trust in I Peter 5:7 we read "Casting all your care on him, for he careth for you." Jesus wants to take the "guilt complex" away because for those who trust in Him there is no guilt left.

Plans call for the U.S. to launch a dozen or so "flying laboratories" called Surveyors.

MY ANSWER

QUESTION: We have raised our children without resorting to the brutality of corporeal punishment. Have we done right? —MRS. M. D.

ANSWER: A good spanking and brutality are not synonymous. It is possible to go beyond the bounds of punishment and inflict physical injury. This is completely wrong. However, it is possible to err in the opposite direction, harming our children by a failure to discipline when discipline is needed. We all know that children react very differently. There are some to whom a word is all that is necessary. There are others who need to be deprived of some treat. There are others who need a sound spanking and profit greatly by it. By and large the problem in America today is a lack of discipline of children in those formative years when it can be so effective in helping them. In Proverbs 23:13, 14 we read: "Do not withold discipline from a child; if you beat him with a rod, he will not die. If you beat him with a rod you will save his life." This does not mean brutal beating but a spanking which hurts and which is understood by the child. At the same time we should never strike our children in anger.

In Proverbs 13:24 we read: "He that spareth his rod hateth his son: but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." In Chapter 19:18: "Chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying." In Proverbs 22:15 we are told: "Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him." These words were written thousands of years ago but they agree with what many modern child psychologists feel today.

QUESTION: I have been told that a Christian should never have a guilt complex but I am often overwhelmed by a sense of my own sinfulness. What is wrong? —W. P. Y.

Big Eight Director Set For Retirement in June

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Reaves Peters will preside over his last Big Eight spring meeting as executive director starting today, but he'll stay active in athletics.

"We must do everything we can in programs for youth in the big cities," he said. "Thousands of young people have dropped out of school and are without jobs in every major city.

"The playgrounds and programs are available in suburbia, but too often they are being reduced or shut down in the cities."

Peters will retire June 30 at the age of 70. He has handled the business of the conference for 25 years, the first nine as commissioner of officials. He has watched ed the league grow from six to eight members, with conference members becoming national powers, in almost every sport.

Peters took the lead in urging the conference to share television and Orange Bowl receipts equally among all members. He started the conference holiday basketball tourney and indoor track meet, now annual events.

He has been active in various NCAA and Olympic committees.

Peters has been a leader in improving liaison among conferences. He worked with Howard Grubbs, Southwest Conference executive director, in establishing a Big Eight-Southwest letter of intent agreement for football.

This agreement proved to be a forerunner of a six-conference letter of intent agreement for all sports which becomes effective May 20. Big Eight faculty representatives are expected to approve it at this meeting.

Wayne Duker, 34, formerly of Colorado University and a top assistant to NCAA director Walter Byers for 11 years, will replace Peters. The conference is expanding its office, and Duke will hire a full-time assistant.

Peters is president of the new Missouri Track and Field Federation, under the U.S. Track and Field Federation and will remain active in it.

He is a native of Warrensburg, Mo., a graduate of Central State College there, and has a master's degree from Wisconsin.

Peters was a coach and official for many years before his association with the Big Eight.

"I might even boo the officials when I retire," he said.

Pirates To Enter State Meet

AURORA — St. Mary's will be one of 12 teams competing for the State Parochial Track Championship at the Aurora High School track here Friday.

Coach Dan Wright will take a 25 man squad chosen from the group that was second in the St. Mary's Invitational last weekend. Regis, which won that meet in Colorado Springs, will also be favored in the competition here.

Other schools entering teams, in addition to Regis and St. Mary's, include St. Joseph's, Holy Family, Denver Christian, Denver Lutheran, Denver Country Day, St. Francis, Mullen, Pueblo Catholic, Machebeuf, and Mt. Carmel.

Preliminaries are scheduled to get underway at 4 p.m. with the finals following at 7.

Oklahoma State Favorite to Cop Tennis, Golf

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A crowded cast of 148 professionals and 10 amateurs began their assault on the Quail Creek Country Club course today in the first round of the $35,000 Oklahoma City Open golf tournament.

Defending champion Doug Sanders, Colonial National Invitational winner Julius Boros and New Zealand southpaw Bob Charles, who took the Houston Classic two weeks ago, headline the field.

While it is one of the best groups ever to play in this five-year-old tournament, pro golf's "Big Three" — Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player —are passing it up for a rest.

Par on the 7,050-yard layout is 36-36—72, and tight fairways with out-of-bounds markers face golfers on most holes.

Sanders engineered a truly remarkable comeback to win the $5,300 first prize money last year. As the final round began, the jaunty Californian was six strokes behind the leader, Texan Don Massengale.

But Sanders staged a furious rally and shot a 5-under-par 67 while Massengale stumbled. Sanders capped his onslaught with a 22-foot eagle putt to win by two strokes over Johnny Pott. Massengale wound up four strokes off the pace.

Jockey Wins Five At Pimlico Wednesday

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jockey Wayne Chambers booted home five winners at Pimlico Wednesday, including four in a row.

Chambers scored with Julia Halewood ($9.00) in the second, Affectionate ($5.60) in the fifth, Langley Flyer ($3.60) in the sixth, Acrajet ($5.00) in the seventh and Happy Angle ($3.40) in the feature eighth.

Late Homer By Williams Buries Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denver was staying right on Oklahoma City's heels, but George Williams' three-run homer was a tough act to follow—and the Bears weren't quite up to it.

Williams' blast in the bottom of the seventh broke a 3-3 tie and sent the Oklahomans on a 7-3 victory over the Colorado team Wednesday night in the Pacific Coast League.

Dallas-Fort Worth peppered Salt Lake City with 11 hits for a 9-5 victory, Spokane collected 12 hits from Tacoma pitchers to win 6-4, Seattle shut out San Diego 4-0 and Hawaii walloped Portland 9-3.

Oklahoma City scored a single run in the bottom of the first, but Denver evened things in the second with Jim McKnight's homer. The Oklahomans got two more in the third, but Corky Withrow's home run with one on balanced the score again in the fourth. Williams' roundtripper put the 89ers in front to stay.

Joe Christian, George Banks and Ray Jablonski led the Dallas-Fort Worth offensive with a home run apiece. Salt Lake attempted a comeback with four runs in the top of the eighth, but the Texans already had all nine runs under their belts.

Wilbur Wood struck out eight and only gave up six hits, as he notched his fourth victory of the season for Seattle. Billy Harrell knocked in three runs for the Rainiers.

Spokane jumped on Tacoma for four runs in the first inning and scored two more in the third before the Giants got into the scoring column.

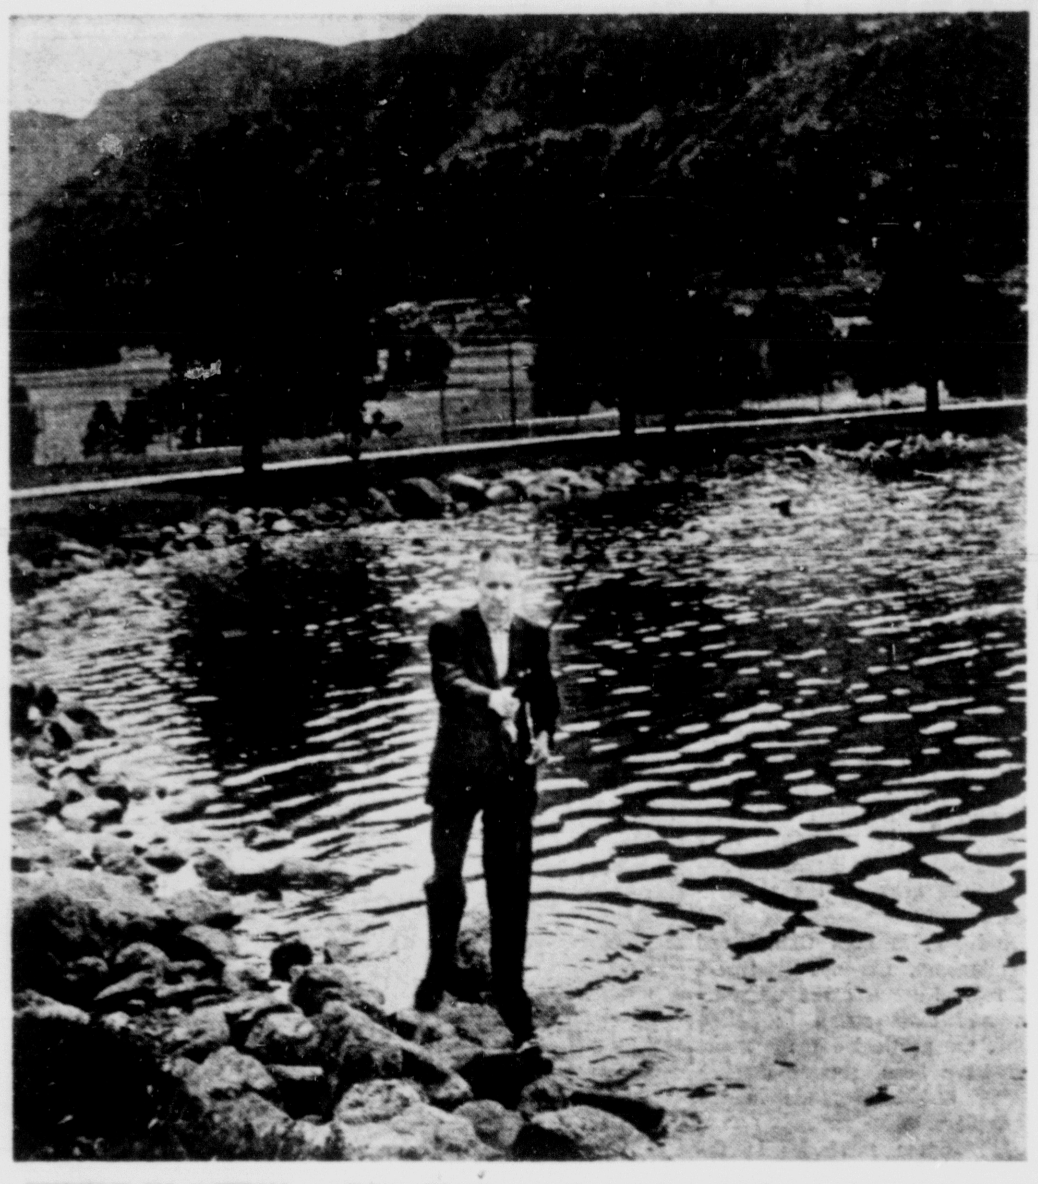
Carlos Bernier stepped up to the plate five times and collected five hits to pace Hawaii's attack. Ed Thomas chalked up his third win of the season with his seven-hitter.

Gene Lipscomb Buried in Native Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Gene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb, a 290-pound goliath of the National Football League gridiron who amused crowds with his antics for a decade, was buried Wednesday in a ceremony almost as colorful as his career.

The coffin of the 6-foot-6 defensive tackle of the Pittsburgh Steelers was borne down an aisle made of 20 women holding floral tributes by fellow Negro professional football players. Only hours before in Baltimore, a medical examiner officially ruled his death the result of an overdose of heroin.

Lipscomb, who played for years with the Baltimore Colts, died early last Friday. His unconscious form was found slumped over a table in the apartment of a friend, who told police the two capped a night of wining and dining by "shooting" heroin.



EXPERT IN ACTION — Eddie Wood, professional fisherman who conducts clinics and gives exhibitions thruout the country, this week is at the Abercrombie and Fitch sporting goods store at the Broadmoor to help Pikes Peak Region fishermen with his tips and demonstrations. He also will be showing the rods, reels and other equipment he had designed for Abercrombie and Fitch. Wood is scheduled to be at the store from 10 a.m. until noon and from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. each day thru Saturday of this week. The fishing clinic is free of charge and open to the public.

Cheyenne Club Honors Athletes

Cheyenne Mountain High School Quarterback Club honored athletes competing in seven sports Wednesday night at the Moors during the 1963 Athletic Awards Banquet.

Some 94 varsity letters were presented to athletes competing in wrestling, track, baseball, hockey, basketball, swimming, and golf. The varsity letters for football were presented during a school assembly earlier this month.

Bill Raines, the triple threat youngster who led Gene Ward's basketball team to the State Class AA finals and participated in football and track, was awarded the coveted Athlete of the Year trophy. Coaches from the school voted on the award which was based on sportsmanship, scholastic achievements. The awardee must be a senior and a varsity letterman.

Chet Franklin, Colorado University assistant football coach, was the featured speaker at the banquet and expounded the importance of the proper mental attitude in athletics.

Academy Frosh Team Wins Triangular Track Meet

The Air Force Academy freshmen won a triangular track and field meet Wednesday afternoon on their home grounds when they topped Trinidad Junior College and Northeastern College of Sterling.

The Cadet frosh tallied 102 points while Trinidad scored 62 and Northeastern scored 7.

Coach Jack Steger's Cadet team completed the season with a 2-1 won and loss dual meet record and won the Pueblo Invitational meet. Their single loss came to Colorado University freshmen. This was the first loss for freshmen tracksters in the history of the Academy.

Cadet Jim Murphy established new freshmen track records in the mile and two-mile events. He was clocked at 4:35.5 in the mile and 9:45.9 in the two-mile run.

Lombardi Signs Henry To Aid at End Spot

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Green Bay Packer coach Vince Lombardi took a step to strengthen his defensive end corps today by signing Urban Henry, who played two years with the Los Angeles Rams, as a free agent.

The Georgia Tech alumnus will probably be tried in the defensive end spot vacated when Bill Quinlan was traded to the New York Giants.

Rookie Dave Robinson of Penn State and veterans Ron Gassert and Ron Kostelnik are also trying for the end spot.

Two AFL Teams To Conduct Drills in Colo.

DENVER (AP) — Two American Football League teams will conduct pre-season training camps in Colorado this summer.

The Houston Oilers, runnersup last season, will use athletic facilities of Colorado College. The training in Colorado Springs will begin early in July.

The Denver Broncos again will train at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, starting this year July 12.

The rival AFL clubs may meet in a pre-season exhibition game.

Pakistan Girls May Enter Nursing Work

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Despite objections from some religious leaders who thought it was un-Islamic, the Pakistan National Assembly has passed a law permitting girls up to the age of 18 to enter the nursing profession.

Opponents of the bill contended that nursing of men who are not members of thier families was forbidden to Moslem women by the Koran.

By CAROLYN McADAMS — MU 7-9065

Mrs. Polly Lamb, chairman for the Missionary Education Program, Women's Fellowship, held a meeting of the committee May 10, at 9:30 a.m. at the Church in the Wildwood. Present were Mrs. Lamb, Wini Pyle, Sallie Bush, Maxine Van Arsdale, and Carolyn McAdams.

Rev. Conard Pyle was guest speaker May 9, at the 10 a.m. meeting of the Hope House Mothers Club, held at the home of Mrs. Persis Wolf. Colorado Springs Work of the Association was discussed.

May 12 was proclaimed thruout North America as National Shrine Hospital Day, commemorating the 41st anniversary of the World's Greatest Philanthropy, Shriners Hospitals For Crippled Children. Shrine leaders met recently at Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida and formulated plans to institute the first medical center specializing in the treatment of children's burns, to be operated on a charitable basis.

The first Shrine Burns Institute will be located in Boston, Massachusetts General Hospital, subject to negotiations with the hospital and the Harvard Medical School. More than 50 medical schools in North America were considered for location of the first burns institute.

Participating in the special music program for the revival meetings held at the First Baptist Church in Woodland Park the week of May 5 through 12, were Nina Wiggins, Dave Walker, Cathy Cornett and Vincent Cornett. Solo and duet selections under the direction of Dale Huffman of Green Mountain Falls with choir and organ accompaniment were on the program.

Rev. Larry Slaughter, a native of Hereford, Tex. who is presently pastor of the First Baptist Church in Manitou Springs, conducted the evangelistic services. A graduate of Hardin Simmons University and Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary, The Rev. Mr. Slaughter plans to enter missionary work in Panama. The theme of the revival was "Crown Christ in Your Heart."

Co-Directors of the Vacation Bible School, sponsored annually by members of the Junior Guild, Church in the Wildwood, will be Mrs. Jonell Ewart, Mrs. Carolyn Houchin and Mrs. Helen Quinn. The theme will be "Widening Relations" with classes for all ages, beginning on June 10 through June 14, from 9 a.m. untill 11:30 a.m. Pre-registration for the Church School will be held on June 2 and June 9, in Fellowship Hall, between the Sunday School hour and Church Service from 10 to 11 a.m.

Teachers of the various classes will be, Beverly Page and Carol Anderson for Pre-school; Joyce Meuer and Barbara Patterson, kindergarten; Patricia Penman with Maxine Van Arsdale, the Primary; Jan Pettit and Grace Wilson teaching lo-Juniors; Doris Pierson and Martha Crabbs the junior group.

An evening program on Friday June 14 will be for parents and friends. Donations of cool aid and cookies for the snack treat each day will be welcome. Call Jonell Ewart 684-9182 for information.

Showboat Will Be Taken to Philadelphia

MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—The Showboat, built in Dubuque at a cost of $250,000, is enroute to Philadelphia to lend a bit of Midwestern culture to the Main Line.

The Mississippi River Excursion boat dates back to before the turn of the century.

The river craft was purchased by Philadelphia Harbor Tours Inc. It is 89 feet long with two decks with a capacity of 400 persons.

Although it has a paddle wheel, it is outfitted with two diesel motors and conventional twin propellers.

Bids for Old Loveland Airport Are Rejected

LOVELAND (AP) — All four bids for the 10-acre site of the present Loveland Municipal Airport were rejected by the City Council Tuesday night when they fell far under the expected figures.

Only one bid, for $25,000, was entered for the entire property. The others were only for portions of the tract.

City officials had hoped to get at least $125,000 for the airport property and use the money to finance a joint Loveland-Fort Collins airport proposed for a site midway between the two cities.

Councilmen decided to reject the bids and meet with Loveland real estate leaders to discuss means of stimulating greater bidder interest in the property.

Presumably, they will call for new bids later this spring.

The lone bidder for the entire site was Arthur L. Arnold of Las Vegas, Nev.

The other bidders seeking parts of the property for figures ranging from $4,450 to $13,200, were R. L. Conger Construction Co. of Loveland, Orin Bullock of Russel, Kan.

SITTING IN FOR EASTER BUNNY

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Doug Smith's Araucana hens have been known as the Easter Egg Fowl, originated in Chile and were first raised by the Araucana Indians. Doing what comes naturally, one hen may lay pink eggs, another green eggs and a third one yellow eggs. Each hen averages 2[illegible] eggs a year.

City Congregations Blasted by Pastor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Too many city church congregations "become little islands sufficient unto themselves," and serving on their own needs without reaching out into the community, says the Rev. Orval C. Hartman of Chicago, the Lutheran Church in America secretary for urban churches.

He made the comment in launcing a new program here under which a social worker is assigned to stimulate downtown churches to broader activities.

The first London Bridge was built in 963, and was the only bridge over the Thames until the 18th Century.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — The kind of leadership President Kennedy has displayed on the civil rights issue is open to question, but there is little argument that it differs considerably from the kind he promised in the 1960 campaign.

When he was running for the office he pledged himself to "move forward on three broad fronts" if elected — as a legislative leader pushing a bold civil rights program, as chief executive and as a "moral leader."

There has been no significant civil rights legislative program submitted as yet. And there is not going to be, despite the fact that the President has now been twice boxed in by bloody civil rights incidents — the first at Oxford, Miss., last Oct. 1, which forced the use of troops, and now the second at Birmingham, Ala., in which there is the threat of troops.

Yet, despite these ugly racial troubles, it can be assumed Kennedy would still stand behind a claim he made in a civil rights message to Congress, Feb. 28.

In this message, the President said that in the first two years of his administration "more progress has been made in securing the civil rights of all Americans than in any comparable period in our history."

The effectiveness of the President's tactics on the civil rights front, as balanced against his pledges of real leadership in 1960, cannot be properly weighed at this time. But what one of the most astute apologists for the administration has to say about the President's brand of leadership in general suggests the reason for balancing acts on civil rights and other issues.

THIN POPULAR VOTE MARGIN CITED

This appraisal is by Theodore C. Sorensen, special counsel to the President, in a lecture at Columbia University last week.

Sorsensen reported that Kennedy is "acutely aware" of this dictum by Thomas Jefferson: "Great innovations should not be forced on slender majorities."

In other words, the President cannot move ahead in the way he promised to because he won by a thin popular margin over Richard M. Nixon.

Sorensen also felt that "presidential appeals for public support must be at the right time and with the right frequency, if they are to be effective." At times the President may feel he "may need to alienate a portion of the public support," but this should never be done "for meaningless or hopeless causes."

Presumably, President Kennedy's national televised appeal last Sept. 30 for public support to keep the Ole Miss James Meredith case from getting out of hand, was in this category cited by Sorensen.

Yet Kennedy said last week that his appeal then "did not seem to do much good." For that reason he turned down a suggestion of a "fireside chat" to put the Birmingham demonstrations in proper perspective.

A 'POLITICAL ANIMAL WITH ANTENNA'

As for the reasons why Kennedy has been in a compromising mood with a Congress controlled by his own party, apologist Sorensen says a President must recognize "the limitations of a lethargic electorate." Sorensen adds in a footnote that what FDR said on this subject is equally pertinent today: "I cannot go faster than the people will let me."

This then, is one reason for the President's hesitancy or refusal, to press for strong civil rights bills.

It is as good an explanation as any for the fact that the administration is firmly opposed to provoking a civil rights scrap in the Senate. This would endanger the tax revision bill, the top priority measure, by alienating needed Southern votes and probably kill off other must legislation.

Reading between the lines of Sorensen's appraisal, it is clear he considers the President first and foremost a political animal with feline antenna able to ascertain a campaign pitfall years ahead.

That explains the overpowering reluctance to act with force in any Southern racial flareup of consqeuence. Every method of mediation, moderation and persuasion must be tried first. Only in this fashion can Southern Democrats be kept on the reservation.

And yet, in both Oxford and Birmingham, the use or threat of federal force came ultimately, and most sound politicians think the political damage would not have been greater if such moves had been made in the first place.

One of the mysteries in the way the White House handled both these racial troubles, especially in view of their probable impact on the President's reelection chances, has been almost total reliance on the advice of Attorney General Bobby Kennedy.

The President's brother at the time of Oxford was considered great shakes in dealing with Southern politicians. But, in retrospect, his telephone dialogues with Gov. Ross Barnett look like a complete waste of long-distance tolls.

The President's Sunday night decision on Birmingham action similarly came after huddles with Bobby, who had seen his all-out moderation effort go up in the Saturday night rioting.

Southern "moderates" in Congress were warning anyone who would listen on Saturday that the "step-at-a-time" desegration agreement would more likely inflame the situation than quiet it. But the Justice Department at the time was acting as if it had achieved a great victory for law and order thru persuasion.

What part did Vice President Lyndon Johnson play, if any, in either case? He has done a significant integration job as chairman of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunities. He was in Texas when Oxford blew up. He was here in town during the Sunday huddles on Birmingham. But his name did not show on any conference list, either at the White House or Justice Department.

Love Announces First Trip 'To the People'

DENVER (UPI)—Gov. John A. Love announced here that his first trip "to take the government to the people" will be to Lamar June 11-12.

Love said he picked the southeastern part of the state to fulfill a campaign pledge to let the people know first-hand what the state government is doing, because of the drought.

"I think this would be a good place to start because it is in an area which has one of the most important problems that faces the state," Love said.

He said he would drive to Lamar and probably would be accompanied by several state officials, including representatives of the State Department of Agriculture and probably highway officials. He said he would invite people from surrounding counties to attend the meetings.

"I hope we will have good representation from the agricultural people in the area," he said.

The governor said a series of meetings would begin at noon June 11 and run through the evening of June 12. He said it had not yet been decided where the meetings would be held.

An hour-by-hour schedule for the trip will be released later.

Love said he thought communication between representatives of state government and the people "could be helpful" on the drought situation.

He said he did not know if his wife, Ann, would accompany him on the trip.

He is expected to make other similar trips during the summer and fall.

Germans Plan Monument for Former Enemy

LUECHTRINGEN, Germany (UPI) — The 2,700 inhabitants of Luechtringen are making plans to U.S. pilot who they think died in erect a monument to an unknown U.S. pilot who they think died in saving their village from destruction in World War II.

Hubert Fromme, a blind German war veteran, proposed the construction of a memorial at a recent citizens' meeting. Stone mason Bernhard Stiefel immediately offered to donate the monument and a local youth organization volunteered to prepare the ground.

According to witnesses, a formation of Flying Fortresses passed over Luechtringen on day in March, 1945, heading for the industrial center of Brauncschweig, when a crippled bomber suddenly lost altitude and headed straight for the church tower of Luechtringen.

"The plane with its full bomb load would have smashed straight into our church and caused untold devastation," a 76-year-old villager recalled. "But suddenly the bomber was pulled up, barely passed over the church steeple and crashed outside the village in a forest."

Most villagers are convinced the pilot died to save them, instead of bailing out.

But farmer Adam Struck said he pulled the charred remains of the Flying Fortress apart with his horses and removed the bombs, and found no indication anybody had died in the wreckage.

August Dolle, another farmer who picked up two crew members of the plane who had bailed out before the crash, said he never asked them whether anybody else had been aboard.

District youth leader Ewald Heinemeier, a major supporter of the monument idea, said: "Even if Struck didn't find the remains of the pilot in the wreckage, I'm convinced he was in the cockpit at the time—how else could the plane have jumped over the church tower?"

Nobody could recall the exact day of the crash, but several witnesses said it happened at exactly 4:30 P.M. They also remembered that U.S. troops had already taken nearby Uslar, but had not yet occupied the Weser Valley.

The villagers said they have asked U.S. Air Force officers and the U.S. Embassy in Germany to help in investigations.

Tidy Traffic Tips Given in Slogans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pedestrians should be seen and not hurt.

That's one of half a dozen "Tips for New Drivers" that local employes of the firm that makes the Swedish Volvo car came up with in a recent contest.

The others are:

—Drive so that the only time you lost control of your car is when you forget to make payments.

—Remember that people who live near railroad crossings seldom have to buy automobile parts.

—An ounce of prevention should be added to every 10 gallons of gas.

—When driving for recreation, don't change it to wreck-creation.

Bear in mind that a reckless driver is an accident going somewhere to happen.

Convicted Britisher Sees Wife in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — British businessman Greville Wynne saw his wife Wednesday for what she said may be the last time before he is led off to confinement in a Soviet prison to serve a sentence for spying against the Soviet Union.

The couple met for 2½ hours in the Soviet Supreme Court building where he was sentenced last Saturday to eight years in confinement.

Lightweight Portable Braille Writer Built

LOUISVILLE (AP)—The American Printing House for the Blind has produced a lightweight, portable Braille writer that was developed over a five-year period. It is three to five pounds lighter and costs $20-$35 less than existing writers.

Officials predicted it would be widely used in blind schools, by blind adults in business and correspondence and by volunteers who transcribe reading materials in Braille for school children.

Seem like a pretty big order? It's' not! Exciting things can happen every day to the wise families who use fast-action Classified Ads. Here's how this modern homemaker made Want Ads work for her.

First, she went all through her home and made a list of every worthwhile thing she found that wasn't being used or enjoyed. For example, in the very room Classified Ads redecorated for her, she found good, but outgrown clothing and toys, a musical instrument no one played, a chest — and, smart gal that she is — she even listed the rugs, drapes and spreads she wanted to replace.

When she had her list, she just dialed 632-4641 and gave it to the friendly, experienced Ad Writer who answered. Soon she was in touch with buyers who paid her cash for the things she wanted to sell. This extra cash paid for the newer things she wanted to buy.

Easy? You bet! Put this effective and profitable formula to work for you today. Dial 632-4641 with your list of "sellables." It's inexpensive. A 10 word ad costs only $2.60 for one full week.

AFA Nixes Playoffs After CSC Loss

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

This spring the Falcons of the Air Force Academy have established themselves as the homer-hittingest team in the entire region and in the history of the school — but despite any fence-busting records set this season, it looks like the Cadets will not be tournament-bound.

The Falcons plastered three more round-trippers Wednesday afternoon in their spacious park but came out on the losing end with Colorado State College of Greeley, 10-4.

The three homers brought the AFA's team total to an outstanding 46 for the season — by far the best in the region. But the loss also gave the Falcons a mediocre 11-11 split in the won-lost column and Coach Wendy Lawrence expressed doubt after the defeat on chances that his team would join in the District 7 playoffs for an NCAA tournament berth.

"With a record like that, I doubt very much if our athletic director will approve our entry in the playoffs," Lawrence said. "Unless we could have won more games than that, we really don't deserve to be in the playoffs."

Thus Lawrence, who just returned last weekend from Brazil where he was the head manager of the United States team in the Pan-American Games, ended the suspense as far as the Academy over which teams will be involved in the district playoffs. Despite winning only half their games so far, the Falcons still are the most logical choice for the independent's spot in that they have beaten the other contenders.

Colorado State, already crowned champions of the Rocky Mountain Conference for the 22nd straight year, increased their season's record to 17-5 with Wednesday's win. One of those five defeats came at the hands of the AFA, a 7-5 decision in 10 innings earlier at Greeley, and 14 of the victories came against RMC league-mates — which is hardly much of an accomplishment.

So the playoffs remain muddy, altho the Falcons have all but declined their expected invitation. C-State from the RMC will play, as will the winner of a showdown in the Western Athletic Conference between Arizona and BYU, but they may not have another playmate for the planned three-team meet next weekend.

* * *

Meanwhile, the Falcons have four more chances to improve on their record with a single game at home this Friday against Denver (which they defeated 7-2 on Tuesday), a double header with Colorado State University on Saturday at 1 p.m., and then the AFA ends the regular season with a trip to Wyoming University on Sunday.

Wednesday, the heavy-hitting Bears of CSC jumped on Academy ace sophomore Pete Bracci for a dozen hits and then banged their only home run of the game off reliever Larry Backus for the victory. Four of the baker's dozen hits were doubles, one a triple and Bob Bettinger cracked the homer in the ninth inning.

Every one of the AFA's four runs came as a result of their three round-trippers. Bruce Hunneke smacked one in the first inning with one aboard and Roger Zoeller's in the second and Jon Medina's in the fourth were both solo blasts.

The homers gave the Cadets a 3-0 jump on the visitors in the first two innings, but C-State bounded back with the equalizers in the third as they scored three times on two doubles and two singles.

The game remained knotted until the fifth when a hit batsman started the Bears off again. Jack Miyamota singled and both runners advanced on a double steal. But it appeared that Bracci might have been able to get out unhurt when a strikeout registered the second out. Duane Banks and Tom Carlson followed up with singles and both stretched it to second on the throws to the plate, and the damage was done.

The Falcons crept back with a singleton on Medina's homer in the sixth, but the Bears refused to let up and again went ahead by three with another run in the seventh on Banks' double and a wild pitch by Bracci. Paul Meka scored after slapping a triple in the eighth, and Bettinger sealed the victory in the ninth with his homer with a man aboard.

While the Falcons finish out the season against Denver, CSU and Wyoming over the weekend, Colorado State will be ending its Rocky Mountain Conference slate with games at Adams State College at Alamosa on Friday and Saturday. C-State is undefeated in RMC play, as usual.

Colorado Pick to Win Track Crown

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Colorado, led by a few top men, is a slender choice over a balanced Missouri team and Oklahoma State's one-man gang, Charles Strong, in the Big Eight track championships Friday and Saturday.

It could be the tightest four-team finish in 25 years. Four meet records already have been surpassed this season and four others closely approached.

Here is our forecast of the team finish, based on the form chart:

Colorado 103, Missouri 92, Oklahoma State 88, Kansas 82, Nebraska 65, Oklahoma 59, Kansas State 21 and Iowa State 17.

Colorado's hopes are carried by four outstanding men — hurdler and dash man Jim Miller, sprinter Dick Burns, jumper Leander Durley and distance man Bob Griffith.

Miller has the league's best high hurdle time at 14.1 seconds and the nation's best 330 hurdles time at 36.2. He is expected to win both events and run on winning 440 and mile relay teams. Colorado has run the 440 relay in 40.8 and the mile relay in 3:10.1, both best in the Big Eight this season.

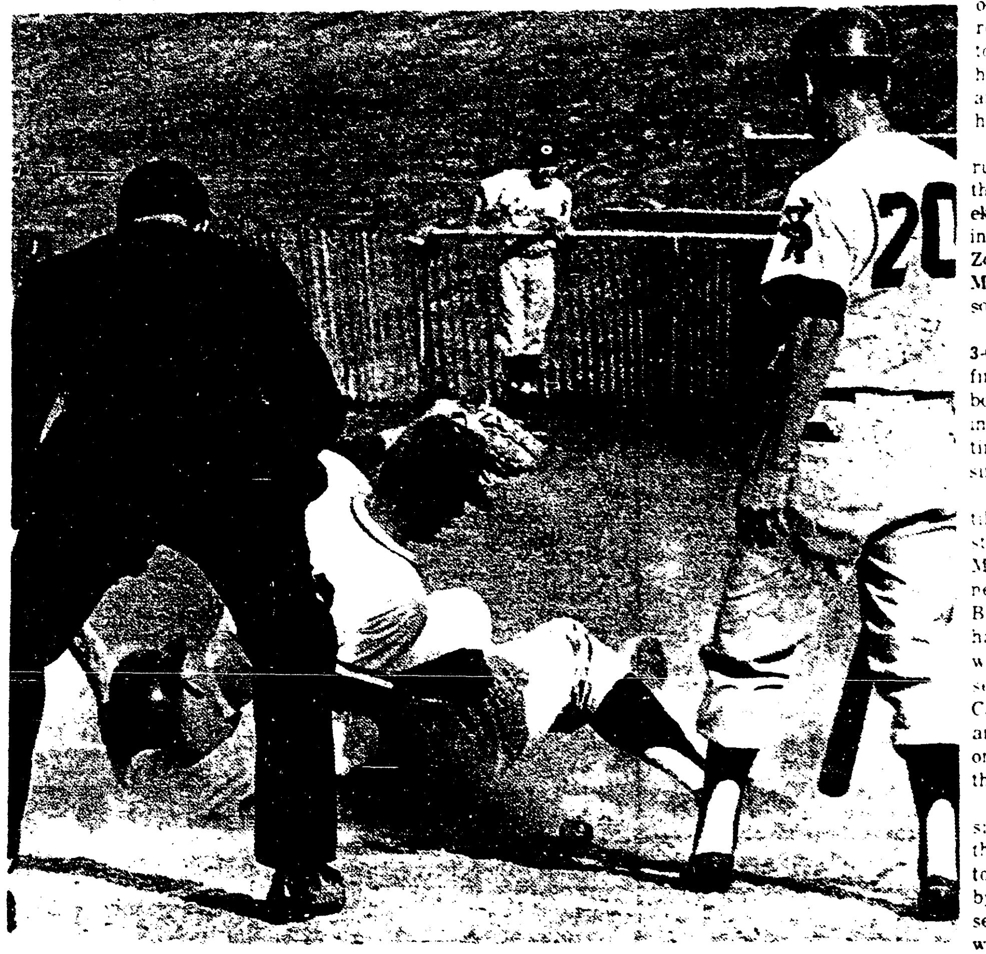
Burns has run the 100 in 9.6, second only to the 9.5 by Nebraska's Ray Knaub this season, and the 220 in 20.8, compared to the meet record of 20.9. Burns is picked second in both—behind Strong in the 220 — but easily could win both events.

Durley leads the league in both the high jump at 6-8¾ and triple jump at 47-10¾. But winning both will be a severe challenge. He is picked behind Nebraska's Victor Brooks in the triple jump and No. 2 behind Larry Eilert, Iowa State, the defending high jump champion.

Griffith is picked behind Pat McNeal of Kansas State, who has run the mile in 4:05.3, almost a second under the meet record.

Missouri has the depth to score in almost every event, but only two gold medal favorites. They are Greg Pelster, defending 880 champ who will try for the league record of 1:49, and Roy Bryant, whose 14:41.1 leads the 3-mile field. Griffith won the two-mile last year, probably won't run the 3-mile.

If Strong were twins, O-State would be a certain champ. He has broadjumped 24-4¾, run the 440 in 46.9, both league bests, plus the 220 in 20.9, the 100 in 9.7. He'll shoot for firsts in the 440, 220, broad jump and will anchor the 440 and mile relay teams.



ALL BUT THE BALL — As Colorado State College's Duane Banks slides into home in this seventh inning action of Wednesday's game with the Air Force Academy, pitcher Pete Bracci tries to put on the tag. There's one missing item for Bracci, however. The ball is on the ground next to the plate. Banks scored on a wild pitch after a double and infield out. Umpire John Cryan calls the play as Bob Bettinger of CSC waits with the bat. In the background, Colorado State coach Pete Butler watches from the dugout steps. CSC won the game, 10-4. On My Honor May Be Race Threat

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP)—The "Big Three" from the Kentucky Derby are on everybody's list before Saturday's Preakness at Pimlico. What about the fourth finisher at Louisville?

On My Honor is mentioned, if at all, only as an afterthought. He was the one behind Chateaugay, Never Bend and Candy Spots.

Which is not a knock, exactly, but the attitude would lead you to believe On My Honor hasn't a ghost of a chance to win the $150,000-added race.

It may well be that he is over his head, but Chateaugay was only fifth choice in a field of nine when he won the Derby May 4. On My Honor swept past No Robbery, the second betting choice, and Bonjour, fourth in the odds, on his way to a share of the purse.

After the invincibility of Candy Spots and No Robbery was shattered in the Derby, interest in the 3-year-old racing class turned to whether Chateaugay can be tripped in either the Preakness or the Belmont Stakes next month. On My Honor might not turn the trick in the Preakness, but a small clan already is looking ahead for him in the Belmont.

The 1 3-16-mile Preakness could be too short for On My Honor's late rally as was the 1¼-mile Derby. However, the 1½-mile Belmont might be right down his alley.

On My Honor was last and more than 16 lengths behind the front running Never Bend after the first three quarters of a mile in the Derby. He trailed by only six lengths at the finish.

State Horse Racing Begins Season Friday

BRUSH, Colo. (UPI)— Colorado's horse racing season gets underway Friday at Memorial Park here with eight sprint races.

Post time for the first race is 1:30 p.m. Officials said many Colorado-owned quarterhorses and thoroughbreds are entered in the season's meet.

Indian Baseball, Track Champs To Challenge for State Titles

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

For the first time in the history of the Pikes Peak League, a school has claimed conference crowns in two major sports in one season.

Cheyenne Mountain High School, PPL champions in both baseball and track this spring, will lead the league into state championships in both sports this coming weekend. Coach Eldon Helm's baseball team squares off against Delta on the latter's field in the state semi-finals Saturday, while Tom McCord's trackmen journey to Alamosa for the state meet the same day.

The Indians' baseball team, winner of the 1962 State Class AA playoffs, travels across the Western Slope to tangle with a squad they defeated in last year's finals. Delta is reported to have basically the same potent team that lost to the Indians, 5-1.

Helm rates Delta the team most capable of winning the state laurels should the Indians lose to the Southwestern League kingpins in Saturday's semi-finals. The Cheyenne mentor will call on Bob Maio to carry the Tribe from the mound.

The baseball game is slated for 1:30 p.m. at the Delta diamond. Meanwhile, Lamar and Mapleton will battle in another semi-final game at the later's field. The winner of that contest will be the guest of the victor of the Cheyenne-Delta game the following Saturday, May 25. If the Indians succeed in defeating Delta, they will host the state championship playoff on their home field a week from Saturday. If they lose, Delta will host the winner of the Lamar-Mapleton game.

Helm will call on his nine regulars to pull out the semi-final victory. They include Joe Folk, catcher; John Patterson, first base; Gary Graham, second base; Steve Markowitz, shortstop; Bill Massarand, third base; Ted Garcia, left field; Greg Cramblit, center field; Barrie Riddoch, right field; and Maio.

The Tribe wrapped up the school's sixth PPL crown and now seeks its fifth state crown during the eight years Helm has coached baseball.

McCord's trackmen, winners of the PPL District Meet, have progressed considerably since the start of the track season. The Cheyenne tracksters encountered a slow start at the break of the season, but developed into a evenly-balanced squad. Altho the Tribe lost the services of big Rick Stowell, who pulled a leg muscle and missed competing in the District Meet, they stand a good chance of placing high in the state track meet at the Adams State College stadium.

Stowell was the first PPL shot putter to heave the 12-pound iron ball over the 50-foot barrier. But beefy Mike Mestas of Salida broke the District Meet record with a toss of 52-8. The big Spartan could encounter little comptition in winning that event.

The Indians have depth in the sprints, field events, and relays. Cheyenne qualified 11 to compete in the state meet. John Shultz's Trojans of Fountain finishd in second place in the District Meet and qualified five men.

Chuck Loper's Gladiators from Widefield, who were favored to win the PPL meet, qualified nine but will be minus speed merchant Rusty Henninger. The 220 state champion injured his knee participating in the broad jump during the preliminaries and altho he qualified to run in the 100 in the district finals, his knee worsened.

Henninger is presently in the Ft. Carson hospital and will miss the state meet. His knee started swelling last Sunday and the doctors put him in traction.

* * *

IT'S ALL IN YOUR HANDS—Eldon Helm, coach of Cheyenne Mountain's baseball team, hands his ace hurler Bob Maio the ball prior to their departure for Delta to play that team in the State Class AA semi-finals Saturday afternoon. Helm will call on his two seniors including John Patterson (right), the Indians' consistent long ball hitter to pace his [illegible] ful team to their fifth state [illegible]. Angels Plagued by Fire, Fiery Red Sox Batsman

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a tough day for the Los Angeles Angels. First they were routed out of their hotel by a fire, then routed out of Fenway Park by a fiery first baseman.

Dick Stuart, who says he's worried about his hitting, drove in seven runs on two homers—one a grand slam—and led Boston to a doubleheader sweep of the Angels, 9-3 and 7-6 Wednesday night.

Stuart's heroics propelled the surprising Red Sox into second place in the American League, one game back of the Chicago White Sox, who scored a 7-4 victory over Detroit.

Mudcat Grant blanked Kansas City 1-0 on a two-hitter for Cleveland and Baltimore whipped Washington 7-1 on Milt Pappas' three-hitter in other night games, while the New York Yankees edged Minnesota 4-3 in the only day game.

A three-alarm fire in the Hotel Somerset in Boston chased the Angels from their rooms in the early morning hours and the slugging Stuart finished the rout at Fenway Park.

His grand slam in the third inning of the first game put it out of reach. He had a three-run homer in the nightcap, and scored the winning run in the eighth inning.

Stuart lifted his runs batted in total to 24 and increased his home run production to 7, both marks high among the league leaders. But Stuart, hitting only .250, says he isn't satisfied.

"Even if I drive in 100 runs and hit 30 homers I wouldn't be happy if I hit for the batting average I have right now," he said.

Bill Monbouquette went the distance for the first game victory, beating Bo Belinski, and Dick Radatz won the second in relief.

Grant allowed only a double by Wayne Causey and a single by Chuck Essegian and retired 13 men in a row over one stretch is his outstanding effort against Kansas City. Tito Francona drove in both Indian runs with a first inning single.

Pappas, 3-0 for the season, retired 18 Senators in order at one stretch in his three-hitter. He lost his shutout when Ken Retzer hit an eighth inning homer. Jim Gentile, Jackie Brandt and Jerry Adair had homers for the Orioles.

Ron Hansen keye ad fifth inning rally for the White Sox with a bases-loaded single and Dave Nicholson stroked a two-run homer in the victory over Detroit. Juan Pizarro won his third without loss, but needed help from Jim Brosnan in the eighth.

Elston Howard's eighth inning single drove in the tie-breaking run for the Yankees, who handed the stumbling Twins their 11th loss in their last 14 games. Mickey Mantle had a two-run homer in the sixth for the Yanks.

Bob Hendley Makes Like Sandy Should

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milwaukee's Bob Hendley made like Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Koufax didn't.

While Koufax was making his first appearance since pitching a no-hitter against San Francisco, Hendley stole the spotlight by hurling the Braves to a 9-3 triumph over St. Louis Wednesday night and coming within two outs of matching the Koufax 4-day-old masterpiece.

Hendley got Julian Javier on a grounder to open the ninth, but pinch - hitter George Altman reached first when Frank Bolling booted his grounder.

That seemed to unsettle Hendley, who was then tagged for a triple to right center by Curt Flood for the first St. Louis hit.

Before Hendley regained his composure, the Cardinals had two more hits and three runs. But nothing could dim the performance of the 24-year-old left-hander who pitched probably the finest game in his three seasons in the majors.

Koufax was touched for 11 hits, but struck out 12 and won his fourth in a row when Ron Fairly drove in the decisive run with a two-out single in the 12th inning and gave the Dodgers a 3-2 triumph over Philadelphia.

In other National League action, first-place San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 4-3, Cincinnati belted Chicago's Cubs 10-2 and the New York Mets downed Houston 10-2 and the New York Mets downed Houston 7-4, ending the Colts winning streaek at six.

After Flood's triple got things started for the Cards, Dick Groat followed with a single, Charley James was safe on an error by Denny Menke and Groat scored the third run on Ken Boyer's single before Hendley worked out of the jam. Menke homered for the first Braves' run in the third inning and Milwaukee continued to pound Curt Simmons, who lost his first after five victories.

Fairly's run-producing single gave Koufax his fifth victory in six decisions. The Dodger southpaw had been lifted for a pinch hitter at the start of the inning after striking out 10 or more in a game for the 43rd time. Jim Gilliam scored the winning run after singling and moving to second on a passed ball. The loss went to Johnny Klippstein, 1-2.

The Giants broke a scoreless tie against loser Don Cardwell in the fifth after Orlando Cepeda led off with the inning's only hit, a pop fly that dropped in short center. Cardwell, now 1-5, walked winning pitcher Juan Marichal to force in one run and hit Felipe Alou to force in another before Bob Bailey bobbled Willie Mays' grounder and let in two more runs. Marichal brought his record to 5-3 with Bob Bolin's relief help.

Frank Robinson led the Reds, collecting a single, double and triple, driving in three runs and stealing a base. Jim Maloney, 5-1, was the winner, Glen Hobbie, 1-4 the loser.

Al Jackson sparked two rallies with singles and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly as he won his fourth against three losses for the Mets. Jackson scattered six hits and had allowed only an unearned run when John Bateman brought the Colts close in the ninth with a three-run homer.

MORNING, DARLING! FRESH STRAWBERRIES—FIRST OF THE SEASON. I KNOW YOU'RE MAD ABOUT THEM.
HELLO, MERLE.
SUCH A TINY GREETING, DEAR? HAVE A BAD NIGHT?
NO, I HAD A GOOD NIGHT, MERLE! PLEASANTEST DREAMS SINCE I'VE BEEN HERE!
HI, DONALD. MAIL'S LATE AGAIN TODAY, AND... OOOPS, EXCUSE ME!
OH, SUSAN, BE A GOOD BUNNY AND PUT THESE BERRIES ON ICE FOR ME, WILL YOU?

Big Eight Director Set For Retirement in June

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Reaves Peters will preside over his last Big Eight spring meeting as executive director starting today, but he'll stay active in athletics.

"We must do everything we can in programs for youth in the big cities," he said. "Thousands of young people have dropped out of school and are without jobs in every major city.

"The playgrounds and programs are available in suburbia, but too often they are being reduced or shut down in the cities."

Peters will retire June 30 at the age of 70. He has handled the business of the conference for 25 years, the first nine as commissioner of officials. He has watched the league grow from six to eight members, with conference members becoming national powers, in almost every sport.

Peters took the lead in urging the conference to share television and Orange Bowl receipts equally among all members. He started the conference holiday basketball tourney and indoor track meet, now annual events.

He has been active in various NCAA and Olympic committees.

Peters has been a leader in improving liaison among conferences. He worked with Howard Grubbs, Southwest Conference executive director, in establishing a Big Eight-Southwest letter of intent agreement for football.

This agreement proved to be a forerunner of a six conference letter of intent agreement for all sports which becomes effective May 20. Big Eight faculty representatives are expected to approve it at this meeting.

Wayne Duker, 34, formerly of Colorado University and a top assistant to NCAA director Walter Byers for 11 years, will replace Peters. The conference is expanding its office, and Duke will hire a full-time assistant.

Peters is president of the new Missouri Track and Field Federation, under the U.S. Track and Field Federation and will remain active in it.

He is a native of Warrensburg, Mo., a graduate of Central State College there, and has a master's degree from Wisconsin.

Peters was a coach and official for many years before his association with the Big Eight.

"I might even boo the officials when I retire," he said.

Oklahoma State Favorite to Cop Tennis, Golf

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A crowded cast of 148 professionals and 10 amateurs began their assault on the Quail Creek Country Club course today in the first round of the $35,000 Oklahoma City Open golf tournament.

Defending champion Doug Sanders, Colonial National Invitational winner Julius Boros and New Zealand southpaw Bob Charles, who took the Houston Classic two weeks ago, headline the field.

While it is one of the best groups ever to play in this five-year-old tournament, pro golf's "Big Three" — Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player —are passing it up for a rest.

Par on the 7,050-yard layout is 36-36—72, and tight fairways with out-of-bounds markers face golfers on most holes.

Sanders engineered a truly remarkable comeback to win the $5,300 first prize money last year. As the final round began, the jaunty Californian was six strokes behind the leader, Texan Don Massengale.

But Sanders staged a furious rally and shot a 5-under-par 67 while Massengale stumbled. Sanders capped his onslaught with a 22-foot eagle putt to win by two strokes over Johnny Pott. Massengale wound up four strokes off the pace.

Pirates To Enter State Meet

AURORA — St. Mary's will be one of 12 teams competing for the State Parochial Track Championship at the Aurora High School track here Friday.

Coach Dan Wright will take a 25 man squad chosen from the group that was second in the St. Mary's Invitational last weekend. Regis, which won that meet in Colorado Springs, will also be favored in the competition here.

Other schools entering teams, in addition to Regis and St. Mary's, include St. Joseph's, Holy Family, Denver Christian, Denver Lutheran, Denver Country Day, St. Francis, Mullen, Pueblo Catholic, Machebeuf, and Mt. Carmel.

Preliminaries are scheduled to get underway at 4 p.m. with the finals following at 7.

Jockey Wins Five At Pimlico Wednesday

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jockey Wayne Chambers booted home five winners at Pimlico Wednesday, including four in a row.

Chambers scored with Julia Halewood ($9.00) in the second, Affectionate ($5.60) in the fifth, Langley Flyer ($3.60) in the sixth, Acrajet ($5.00) in the seventh and Happy Angle ($3.40) in the feature eighth.

Fight Results

WARREN, Ohio—Fernand Chretien, 134, Toronto, knocked out Roy Carruthers, 143, Akron, 2.

Late Homer By Williams Buries Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denver was staying right on Oklahoma City's heels, but George Williams' three-run homer was a tough act to follow—and the Bears weren't quite up to it.

Williams' blast in the bottom of the seventh broke a 3-3 tie and sent the Oklahomans on a 7-3 victory over the Colorado team Wednesday night in the Pacific Coast League.

Dallas-Fort Worth peppered Salt Lake City with 11 hits for a 9-5 victory, Spokane collected 12 hits from Tacoma pitchers to win 6-4, Seattle shut out San Diego 4-0 and Hawaii walloped Portland 9-3.

Oklahoma City scored a single run in the bottom of the first, but Denver evened things in the second with Jim McKnight's homer. The Oklahomans got two more in the third, but Corky Withrow's home run with one on balanced the score again in the fourth. Williams' roundtripper put the 89ers in front to stay.

Joe Christian, George Banks and Ray Jablonski led the Dallas-Fort Worth offensive with a home run apiece. Salt Lake attempted a comeback with four runs in the top of the eighth, but the Texans already had all nine runs under their belts.

Wilbur Wood struck out eight and only gave up six hits, as he notched his fourth victory of the season for Seattle. Billy Harrell knocked in three runs for the Rainiers.

Spokane jumped on Tacoma for four runs in the first inning and scored two more in the third before the Giants got into the scoring column.

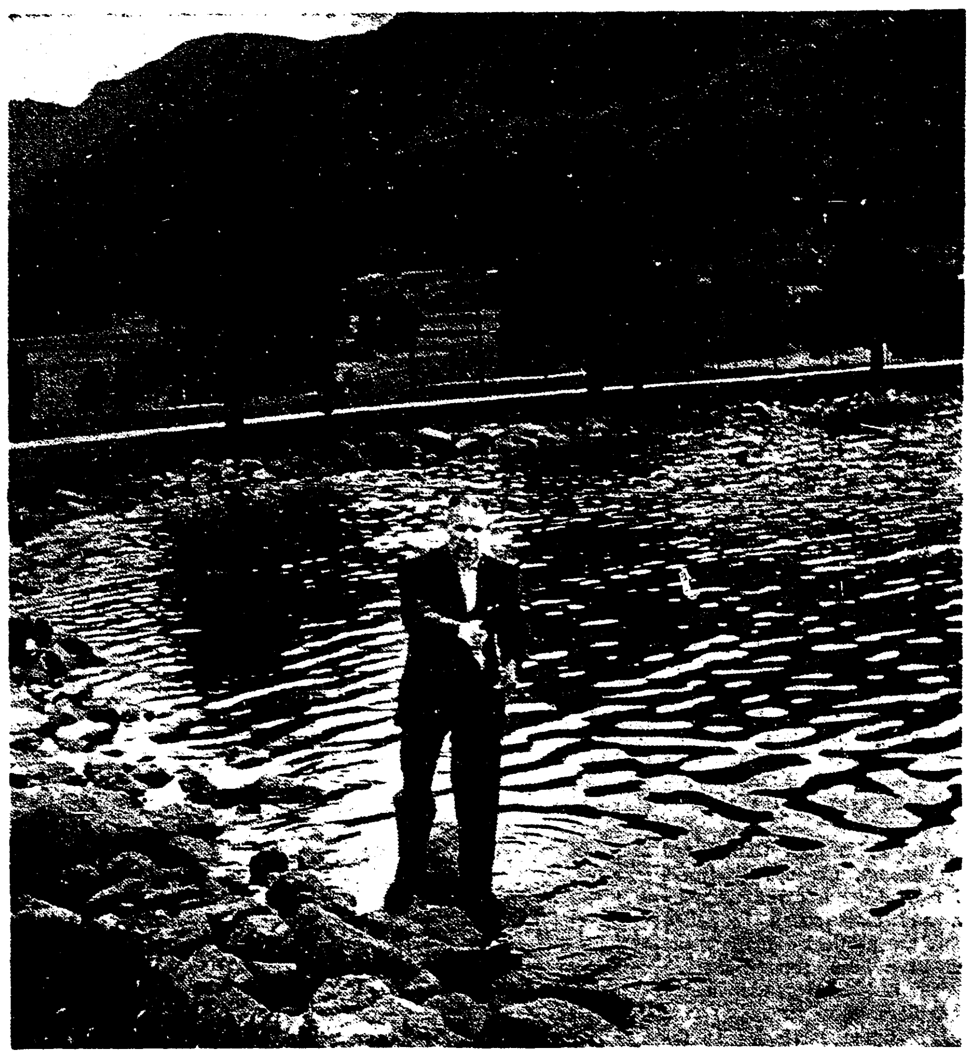
Carlos Bernier stepped up to the plate five times and collected five hits to pace Hawaii's attack. Ed Thomas chalked up his third win of the season with his seven-hitter.

Gene Lipscomb Buried in Native Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Gene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb, a 290-pound goliath of the National Football League gridiron who amused crowds with his antics for a decade, was buried Wednesday in a ceremony almost as colorful as his career.

The coffin of the 6-foot-6 defensive tackle of the Pittsburgh Steelers was borne down an aisle made of 20 women holding floral tributes by fellow Negro professional football players. Only hours before in Baltimore, a medical examiner officially ruled his death the result of an overdose of heroin.

Lipscomb, who played for years with the Baltimore Colts, died early last Friday. His unconscious form was found slumped over a table in the apartment of a friend, who told police the two capped a night of wining and dining by "shooting" heroin.



EXPERT IN ACTION — Eddie Wood, professional fisherman who conducts clinics and gives exhibitions thruout the country, this week is at the Abercrombie and Fitch sporting goods store at the Broadmoor to help Pikes Peak Region fishermen with his tips and demonstrations. He also will be showing the rods, reels and other equipment he had designed for Abercrombie and Fitch. Wood is scheduled to be at the store from 10 a.m. until noon and from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. each day thru Saturday of this week. The fishing clinic is free of charge and open to the public.

Cheyenne Club Honors Athletes

Cheyenne Mountain High School Quarterback Club honored athletes competing in seven sports Wednesday night at the Moors during the 1963 Athletic Awards Banquet.

Some 94 varsity letters were presented to athletes competing in wrestling, track, baseball, hockey, basketball, swimming, and golf. The varsity letters for football were presented during a school assembly earlier this month.

Bill Raines, the triple threat youngster who led Gene Ward's basketball team to the State Class AA finals and participated in football and track, was awarded the coveted Athlete of the Year trophy. Coaches from the school voted on the award which was based on sportsmanship, scholastic achievements. The awardee must be a senior and a varsity letterman.

Chet Franklin, Colorado University assistant football coach, was the featured speaker at the banquet and expounded the importance of the proper mental attitude in athletics.

Academy Frosh Team Wins Triangular Track Meet

The Air Force Academy freshmen won a triangular track and field meet Wednesday afternoon on their home grounds when they topped Trinidad Junior College and Northeastern College of Sterling.

The Cadet frosh tallied 102 points while Trinidad scored 62 and Northeastern scored 7.

Coach Jack Steger's Cadet team completed the season with a 2-1 won and loss dual meet record and won the Pueblo Invitational meet. Their single loss came to Colorado University freshmen. This was the first loss for freshmen tracksters in the history of the Academy.

Cadet Jim Murphy established new freshmen track records in the mile and two-mile events. He was clocked at 4:35.5 in the mile and 9:45.9 in the two-mile run.

Lombardi Signs Henry To Aid at End Spot

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Green Bay Packer coach Vince Lombardi took a step to strengthen his defensive end corps today by signing Urban Henry, who played two years with the Los Angeles Rams, as a free agent.

The Georgia Tech alumnus will probably be tried in the defensive end spot vacated when Bill Quinlan was traded to the New York Giants.

Rookie Dave Robinson of Penn State and veterans Ron Gassert and Ron Kostelnik are also trying for the end spot.

City Congregations Blasted by Pastor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Too many city church congregations "become little islands sufficient unto themselves," and serving on their own needs without reaching out into the community, says the Rev. Orval C. Hartman of Chicago, the Lutheran Church in America secretary for urban churches.

He made the comment in launching a new program here under which a social worker is assigned to stimulate downtown churches to broader activities.

The first London Bridge was built in 963, and was the only bridge over the Thames until the 18th Century.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — The kind of leadership President Kennedy has displayed on the civil rights issue is open to question, but there is little argument that it differs considerably from the kind he promised in the 1960 campaign.

When he was running for the office he pledged himself to "move forward on three broad fronts" if elected — as a legislative leader pushing a bold civil rights program, as chief executive and as a "moral leader."

There has been no significant civil rights legislative program submitted as yet. And there is not going to be, despite the fact that the President has now been twice boxed in by bloody civil rights incidents — the first at Oxford, Miss., last Oct. 1, which forced the use of troops, and now the second at Birmingham, Ala., in which there is the threat of troops.

Yet, despite these ugly racial troubles, it can be assumed Kennedy would still stand behind a claim he made in a civil rights message to Congress, Feb. 28.

In this message, the President said that in the first two years of his administration "more progress has been made in securing the civil rights of all Americans than in any comparable period in our history."

The effectiveness of the President's tactics on the civil rights front, as balanced against his pledges of real leadership in 1960 cannot be properly weighed at this time. But what one of the most astute apologists for the administration has to say about the President's brand of leadership in general suggests the reason for balancing acts on civil rights and other issues.

THIN POPULAR VOTE MARGIN CITED

This appraisal is by Theodore C. Sorensen, special counsel to the President, in a lecture at Columbia University last week.

Sorensen reported that Kennedy is "acutely aware" of this dictum by Thomas Jefferson: "Great innovations should not be forced on slender majorities."

In other words, the President cannot move ahead in the way he promised to because he won by a thin popular margin over Richard M. Nixon.

Sorensen also felt that "presidential appeals for public support must be at the right time and with the right frequency, if they are to be effective." At times the President may feel he "may need to alienate a portion of the public support," but this should never be done "for meaningless or hopeless causes."

Presumably, President Kennedy's national televised appeal last Sept. 30 for public support to keep the Ole Miss James Meredith case from getting out of hand, was in this category cited by Sorensen.

Yet Kennedy said last week that his appeal then "did not seem to do much good." For that reason he turned down a suggestion of a "fireside chat" to put the Birmingham demonstrations in proper perspective.

A 'POLITICAL ANIMAL WITH ANTENNA'

As for the reasons why Kennedy has been in a compromising mood with a Congress controlled by his own party, apologist Sorensen says a President must recognize "the limitations of a lethargic electorate." Sorensen adds in a footnote that what FDR said on this subject is equally pertinent today: "I cannot go faster than the people will let me."

This then, is one reason for the President's hesitancy or refusal, to press for strong civil rights bills.

It is as good an explanation as any for the fact that the administration is firmly opposed to provoking a civil rights scrap in the Senate. This would endanger the tax revision bill, the top priority measure, by alienating needed Southern votes and probably kill off other must legislation.

Reading between the lines of Sorensen's appraisal, it is clear he considers the President first and foremost a political animal with feline antenna able to ascertain a campaign pitfall years ahead.

That explains the overpowering reluctance to act with force in any Southern racial flareup of consequence. Every method of mediation, moderation and persuasion must be tried first. Only in this fashion can Southern Democrats be kept on the reservation.

And yet, in both Oxford and Birmingham, the use or threat of federal force came ultimately, and most sound politicians think the political damage would not have been greater if such moves had been made in the first place.

One of the mysteries in the way the White House handled both these racial troubles, especially in view of their probable impact on the President's reelection chances, has been almost total reliance on the advice of Attorney General Bobby Kennedy.

The President's brother at the time of Oxford was considered great shakes in dealing with Southern politicians. But, in retrospect, his telephone dialogues with Gov. Ross Barnett look like a complete waste of long-distance tolls.

The President's Sunday night decision on Birmingham action similarly came after huddles with Bobby, who had seen his all-out moderation effort go up in the Saturday night rioting.

Southern "moderates" in Congress were warning anyone who would listen on Saturday that the "step-at-a-time" desegration agreement would more likely inflame the situation than quiet it. But the Justice Department at the time was acting as if it had achieved a great victory for law and order thru persuasion.

What part did Vice President Lyndon Johnson play, if any, in either case? He has done a significant integration job as chairman of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunities. He was in Texas when Oxford blew up. He was here in town during the Sunday huddles on Birmingham. But his name did not show on any conference list, either at the White House or Justice Department.

Love Announces First Trip 'To the People'

DENVER (UPI)—Gov. John A. Love announced here that his first trip "to take the government to the people" will be to Lamar June 11-12.

Love said he picked the southeastern part of the state to fulfill a campaign pledge to let the people know first-hand what the state government is doing, because of the drought.

"I think this would be a good place to start because it is in an area which has one of the most important problems that faces the state," Love said.

He said he would drive to Lamar and probably would be accompanied by several state officials, including representatives of the State Department of Agriculture and probably highway officials. He said he would invite people from surrounding counties to attend the meetings.

"I hope we will have good representation from the agricultural people in the area," he said.

The governor said a series of meetings would begin at noon June 11 and run through the evening of June 12. He said it had not yet been decided where the meetings would be held.

An hour-by-hour schedule for the trip will be released later.

Love said he thought communication between representatives of state government and the people "could be helpful" on the drought situation.

He said he did not know if his wife, Ann, would accompany him on the trip.

He is expected to make other similar trips during the summer and fall.

Germans Plan Monument for Former Enemy

LUECHTRINGEN, Germany (UPI) — The 2,700 inhabitants of Luechtringen are making plans to U S. pilot who they think died in erect a monument to an unknown U S. pilot who they think died in saving their village from destruction in World War II.

Hubert Fromme, a blind German war veteran, proposed the construction of a memorial at a recent citizens' meeting. Stone mason Bernhard Stiefel immediately offered to donate the monument and a local youth organization volunteered to prepare the ground.

According to witnesses, a formation of Flying Fortresses passed over Luechtringen on day in March, 1945, heading for the industrial center of Braunschweig, when a crippled bomber suddenly lost altitude and headed straight for the church tower of Luechtringen.

"The plane with its full bomb load would have smashed straight into our church and caused untold devastation," a 76-year-old villager recalled. "But suddenly the bomber was pulled up, barely passed over the church steeple and crashed outside the village in a forest."

Most villagers are convinced the pilot died to save them, instead of bailing out.

But farmer Adam Struck said he pulled the charred remains of the Flying Fortress apart with his horses and removed the bombs, and found no indication anybody had died in the wreckage.

August Dolle, another farmer who picked up two crew members of the plane who had bailed out before the crash, said he never asked them whether anybody else had been aboard.

District youth leader Ewald Heinemeier, a major supporter of the monument idea, said: "Even if Struck didn't find the remains of the pilot in the wreckage, I'm convinced he was in the cockpit at the time—how else could the plane have jumped over the church tower?"

Nobody could recall the exact day of the crash, but several witnesses said it happened at exactly 4:30 P.M. They also remembered that U.S. troops had already taken nearby Uslar, but had not yet occupied the Weser Valley.

The villagers said they have asked U.S. Air Force officers and the U.S. Embassy in Germany to help in investigations.

Tidy Traffic Tips Given in Slogans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pedestrians should be seen and not hurt.

That's one of half a dozen "Tips for New Drivers" that local employes of the firm that makes the Swedish Volvo car came up with in a recent contest.

The others are:

—Drive so that the only time you lost control of your car is when you forget to make payments.

—Remember that people who live near railroad crossings seldom have to buy automobile parts.

—An ounce of prevention should be added to every 10 gallons of gas.

Convicted Britisher Sees Wife in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — British businessman Greville Wynne saw his wife Wednesday for what she said may be the last time before he is led off to confinement in a Soviet prison to serve a sentence for spying against the Soviet Union.

The couple met for 2½ hours in the Soviet Supreme Court building where he was sentenced last Saturday to eight years in confinement.

Lightweight Portable Braille Writer Built

LOUISVILLE (AP)—The American Printing House for the Blind has produced a lightweight, portable Braille writer that was developed over a five-year period. It is three to five pounds lighter and costs $20-$35 less than existing writers.

Officials predicted it would be widely used in blind schools, by blind adults in business and correspondence and by volunteers who transcribe reading materials in Braille for school children.

IMAGINE! I Redecorated the Childrens' Room With Money I Got From Gazette Telegraph Classified Ads

Seem like a pretty big order? It's' not! Exciting things can happen every day to the wise families who use fast-action Classified Ads. Here's how this modern homemaker made Want Ads work for her.

First, she went all through her home and made a list of every worthwhile thing she found that wasn't being used or enjoyed. For example, in the very room Classified Ads redecorated for her, she found good, but outgrown clothing and toys, a musical instrument no one played, a chest — and, smart gal that she is — she even listed the rugs, drapes and spreads she wanted to replace.

When she had her list, she just dialed 632-4641 and gave it to the friendly, experienced Ad Writer who answered. Soon she was in touch with buyers who paid her cash for the things she wanted to sell. This extra cash paid for the newer things she wanted to buy.

Easy? You bet! Put this effective and profitable formula to work for you today. Dial 632-4641 with your list of "sellables." It's inexpensive. A 10 word ad costs only $2.60 for one full week.

Another Bleak Report Issued On Drought

DENVER (UPI)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture issued another bleak report on the drought situation in Colorado today.

The department said topsoil moisture was more critically short in most of the state last week, and warm temperatures and burning winds caused further reduction of crop prospects.

A separate report on fruit crop conditions as of May 1 was not very encouraging, either. The department said prospects for all fruits except apples were only poor to fair as of the first of the fruits execpt apples were only poor to fair as of the first of the month.

Winter wheat suffered considerably from the dry winds, the department said. "Deterioration extended northward as the shortage of moisture became more critical," the report said. "Rapid deterioration was expected to continue until rains are received."

The department said only some local areas in the northwest and southwest parts of the state were not short of topsoil moisture.

"Widespread use of irrigation water was made where available, but in many areas supplies were limited," the report said. "The few isolated showers furnished little or no relief from the persisting drought conditions."

Reports on individual crops:

Winter barley — Continued to show serious deterioration last week.

Spring barley—Seeding in final stages, with acreage "probably reduced" by the dry soils. Germination poor.

Sugar beets — Condition unchanged, with continued irrigation necessary to assure satisfactory stands.

Corn — Considerable progress with planting, but shortage of soil moisture prevented satisfactory germination of newly planted fields and retarded development of young stands.

The report said livestock remained in favorable condition, "but stockmen were becoming worried about feed supplies in some localities." Spring grazing remained extremely short, according to the department, and considerable concern was growing about summer grazing.

SOUNDS FAMMILIAR

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — It seems like old times to the firemen at Truck Co. No. 7 to be under the command of Captain Mingee.

George D. Mingee, city fireman for the past 12 years, was promoted to captain and given top post in the company his father, Lemmie W. Mingee, commanded before his death nearly 13 years ago.

Tipping Is Way Of Life in French Capital

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — Call it a tip, gratuity, pourboire (French), propina (Spanish), manca (Italian) or baksheesh (oriental), the custom seems to have existed since the beginning of time and will probably continue until the end.

For the French, tipping is a way of life — not always welcomed. The Frenchman tips waiters, postmen, garbage men and usherettes in movie theaters. He tips his janitor, telegraph boy, the gas collector, bank messenger and museum guide. On a ferry he tips the boatman; in an elevator, the operator; on a train, the conductor; in a taxi . . . well, naturally.

Has the open hand gotten out of hand? Perhaps.

The tangled problem of tipping recently was the object of a survey by the French Consumers' Federation. It found that Frenchmen shell out around $1 billion yearly in tips; enough to build five transatlantic liners such as "France."

A poll of a cross - section of the population revealed that those in favor of the ancient custom were, naturally enough, the people who considered themselves entitled to tips. Those against were mostly the donors.

It would seem, too, that it is not necessarily the wealthier members of the community who are the most generous tippers. Usually it is those in the lower-income group who are more generous.

Of 326 family men questioned, 90 per cent were against. They declared tipping was "humiliating, awkward, revolting and immoral." Furthermore, they added, it is an "obsequious practice akin to begging" and, finally, "it lowers the dignity of man." Some went further and declared they were in favor of a national antitipping league and the banning of the custom by decree.

The 10 per cent in favor explained that tipping was an indispensable complement of salaries. Also it ensures the tipper of better service. Their opinion was that even if tipping were officially banned it would still continue.

One category of worker who stands most to lose if tipping were abolished is the waitress. According to the researchers, some people admitted giving their regular waitress as much as $20 in tips every month. Next in line are hairdressers, taxi drivers and janitors ($10 a month), postmen and butcher boys ($8 and $6 a month).

Fifty per cent of these generous dispensers of tips calculate them on the basis of 10 per cent, while another 10 per cent figure on 15 per cent.

The Consumers' Federation is all in favor of a campaign against tipping. They believe that a good jumping-off place would be theaters and movies where every usherette expects a tip.

Monsieur Robert Racine, secretary of a trade group of hotels, cafes and restaurants, says "First things come first. The whole scale of wages in all these establishments should be revised. No employe should be dependent on tips, although some waitresses in workingmen's restaurants and canteens make anything from $8 to $12 per day in tips."

But so deeply is the tipping habit ingrained in the French, he added, that even in a chain of Paris cafes where notices are set up in full view of the public indicating that the service charge is included in all prices, a great number of people still leave a tip.

Two Canada Air Tank Bases to Be Closed

OTTAWA (AP) — Two of the four U.S. air tanker bases in Canada used for refueling flight bombers will be closed by July 1, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin announced.

The bases at Frobisher on Baffin Island and Fort Churchill, Man., will be turned back to the Canadian government for civilian airports. Martin said they are no longer needed because of new longer-range tanker planes.

The U.S. bases at Cold Lake and Namao in Alberta will be kept in operation.

Ceres is the largest of the minor planets. It has a diameter of about 427 miles.

Priest to Drive Peace Corps Car to Honduras

By BEN LAIME

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A Jesuit missionary priest from St. Louis, who think more Americans should visit the people of Latin America, plans to drive a Peace Corps car to Honduras this month.

The Rev. Charles Prendergast, a missionary in the province of Yoro in Honduras the past seven years, thinks his gesture may help.

"Let's hope this little car will do a lot of good," he said, "in cementing relations with our Latin-American brothers."

Father Prendergast says Latin Americans respect nations which use power.

"When I say they like power," he said, "I cite for example the invasion of the Bay of Pigs in Cuba. Every child in my schoolroom lost some respect for the United States then, not because we invaded—but because we failed."

He feels persons in his mission have no more affection for the United States than they have for Cuba. "While their enthusiasm for Cuba may be cooling, there is no corresponding rise in their affection for the United States," he said.

One reason for this feeling, Father Prendergast said, is that Americans who live in Latin America—civilians, military and State Department officials—remain aloof.

"For example, the people of Yoro to my knowledge have never seen the American ambassador," he said. "For that matter, they have seen few people from the embassy. We just don't get around to see the right people—the working class."

He sees some hope in the Peace Corps, but admits "it won't be an instantaneous thing. The members of the Peace Corps in Honduras are taken as individuals and not as representatives of the powerful American government."

Red Journalists Are Arrested in Berlin

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The West German government has arrested 11 East German journalists, including four who worked in West Berlin.

The Bonn government permits East Germans to live in West Berlin but does not recognize their Communist regime.

Officials said the arrests and raids on East German news and radio offices in major West German cities were made under a law banning the collection and dissemination of information detrimental to the state.

LAST STRAW

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP)—Burglars who took $4,500 in cash and other loot from the country club restaurant added insult to injury. They used the club's power tools to drill open a safe.

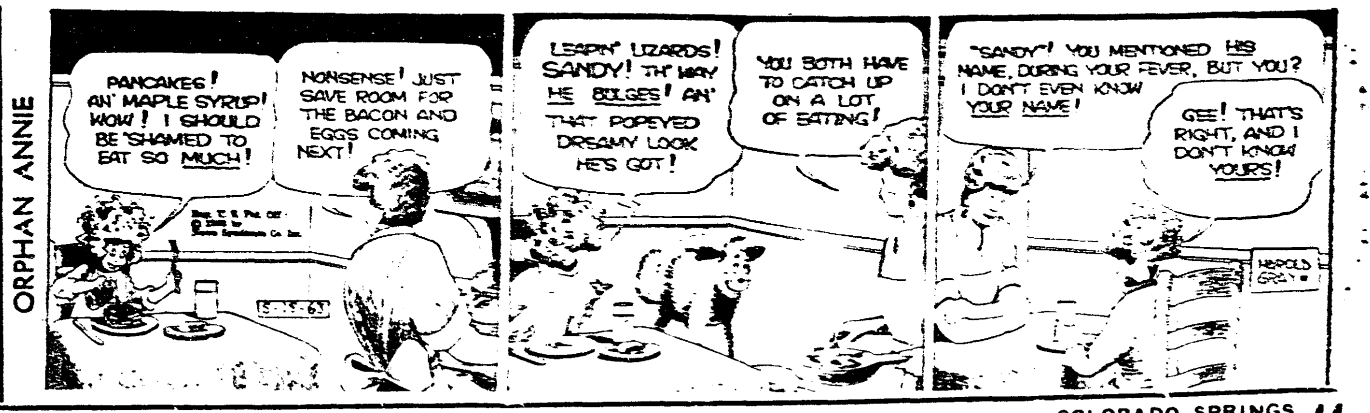
MORNING, DARLING! FRESH STRAWBERRIES—FIRST OF THE SEASON. I KNOW YOU'RE MAD ABOUT THEM.
HELLO, MERLE.
5-16
SUCH A TINY GREETING, DEAR? HAVE A BAD NIGHT?
NO. I HAD A GOOD NIGHT, MERLE! PLEASANTEST DREAMS SINCE I'VE BEEN HERE.
HI, DONALD. MAIL'S LATE AGAIN TODAY, AND... OOOPS, EXCUSE ME!
OH, SUSAN, BE A GOOD BUNNY AND PUT THESE BERRIES ON ICE FOR ME, WILL YOU?
© 1963 by NEA, Inc.



ORPHAN ANNIE
PANCAKES! AN' MAPLE SYRUP! WOW! I SHOULD BE 'SHAMED TO EAT SO MUCH!
NONSENSE! JUST SAVE ROOM FOR THE BACON AND EGGS COMING NEXT!
5-15-63
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! SANDY! TH' WAY HE BULGES! AN' THAT POPEYED DREAMY LOOK HE'S GOT!
YOU BOTH HAVE TO CATCH UP ON A LOT OF EATING!
"SANDY"! YOU MENTIONED HIS NAME, DURING YOUR FEVER, BUT YOU? I DON'T EVEN KNOW YOUR NAME!
GEE! THAT'S RIGHT, AND I DON'T KNOW YOURS!

Another Bleak Report Issued On Drought

DENVER (UPI)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture issued another bleak report on the drought situation in Colorado today.

The department said topsoil moisture was more critically short in most of the state last week, and warm temperatures and burning winds caused further reduction of crop prospects.

A separate report on fruit crop conditions as of May 1 was not very encouraging, either. The department said prospects for all fruits except apples were only poor to fair as of the first of the fruits except apples were only poor to fair as of the first of the month.

Winter wheat suffered considerably from the dry winds, the department said. "Deterioration extended northward as the shortage of moisture became more critical," the report said. "Rapid deterioration was expected to continue until rains are received."

The department said only some local areas in the northwest and southwest parts of the state were not short of topsoil moisture.

"Widespread use of irrigation water was made where available, but in many areas supplies were limited," the report said. "The few isolated showers furnished little or no relief from the persisting drought conditions."

Reports on individual crops:

Winter barley — Continued to show serious deterioration last week.

Spring barley—Seeding in final stages, with acreage probably reduced by the dry soils. Germination poor.

Sugar beets — Condition unchanged with continued irrigation necessary to assure satisfactory stands.

Corn — Considerable progress with planting, but shortage of soil moisture prevented satisfactory germination of newly planted fields and retarded development of young stands.

The report said livestock remained in favorable condition, "but stockmen were becoming worried about feed supplies in some localities." Spring grazing remained extremely short, according to the department, and considerable concern was growing about summer grazing.

SOUNDS FAMMILIAR

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — It seems like old times to the firemen at Truck Co. No. 7 to be under the command of Captain Mingee.

George D. Mingee, city fireman for the past 12 years, was promoted to captain and given top post in the company his father, Lemmie W. Mingee, commanded before his death nearly 13 years ago.

Tipping Is Way Of Life in French Capital

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — Call it a tip, gratuity, pourboire (French), propina (Spanish), manca (Italian) or baksheesh (oriental), the custom seems to have existed since the beginning of time and will probably continue until the end.

For the French, tipping is a way of life — not always welcomed. The Frenchman tips waiters, postmen, garbage men and usherettes in movie theaters. He tips his janitor, telegraph boy, the gas collector, bank messenger and museum guide. On a ferry he tips the boatman; in an elevator, the operator; on a train, the conductor; in a taxi . . . well, naturally.

Has the open hand gotten out of hand? Perhaps.

The tangled problem of tipping recently was the object of a survey by the French Consumers' Federation. It found that Frenchmen shell out around $1 billion yearly in tips; enough to build five transatlantic liners such as "France."

A poll of a cross - section of the population revealed that those in favor of the ancient custom were, naturally enough, the people who considered themselves entitled to tips. Those against were mostly the donors.

It would seem, too, that it is not necessarily the wealthier members of the community who are the most generous tippers. Usually it is those in the lower-income group who are more generous.

Of 326 family men questioned, 90 per cent were against. They declared tipping was "humiliating, awkward, revolting and immoral." Furthermore, they added, it is an "obsequious practice akin to begging" and, finally, "it lowers the dignity of man." Some went further and declared they were in favor of a national antitipping league and the banning of the custom by decree.

The 10 per cent in favor explained that tipping was an indispensable complement of salaries. Also it ensures the tipper of better service. Their opinion was that even if tipping were officially banned it would still continue.

One category of worker who stands most to lose if tipping were abolished is the waitress. According to the researchers, some people admitted giving their regular waitress as much as $20 in tips every month. Next in line are hairdressers, taxi drivers and janitors ($10 a month), postmen and butcher boys ($8 and $6 a month).

Fifty per cent of these generous dispensers of tips calculate them on the basis of 10 per cent, while another 10 per cent figure on 15 per cent.

The Consumers' Federation is all in favor of a campaign against tipping. They believe that a good jumping-off place would be theaters and movies where every usherette expects a tip.

Monsieur Robert Racine, secretary of a trade group of hotels, cafes and restaurants, says "First things come first. The whole scale of wages in all these establishments should be revised. No employe should be dependent on tips, although some waitresses in workingmen's restaurants and canteens make anything from $8 to $12 per day in tips."

But so deeply is the tipping habit ingrained in the French, he added, that even in a chain of Paris cafes where notices are set up in full view of the public indicating that the service charge is included in all prices, a great number of people still leave a tip.

Two Canada Air Tank Bases to Be Closed

OTTAWA (AP) — Two of the four U.S. air tanker bases in Canada used for refueling flight bombers will be closed by July 1, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin announced.

The bases at Frobisher on Baffin Island and Fort Churchill, Man., will be turned back to the Canadian government for civilian airports. Martin said they are no longer needed because of new longer-range tanker planes.

The U.S. bases at Cold Lake and Namao in Alberta will be kept in operation.

Priest to Drive Peace Corps Car to Honduras

By BEN LAIME

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A Jesuit missionary priest from St. Louis, who think more Americans should visit the people of Latin America, plans to drive a Peace Corps car to Honduras this month.

The Rev. Charles Prendergast, a missionary in the province of Yoro in Honduras the past seven years, thinks his gesture may help.

"Let's hope this little car will do a lot of good," he said, "in cementing relations with our Latin-American brothers."

Father Prendergast says Latin Americans respect nations which use power.

"When I say they like power," he said, "I cite for example the invasion of the Bay of Pigs in Cuba. Every child in my schoolroom lost some respect for the United States then, not because we invaded—but because we failed."

He feels persons in his mission have no more affection for the United States than they have for Cuba. "While their enthusiasm for Cuba may be cooling, there is no corresponding rise in their affection for the United States," he said.

One reason for this feeling, Father Prendergast said, is that Americans who live in Latin America—civilians, military and State Department officials—remain aloof.

"For example, the people of Yoro to my knowledge have never seen the American ambassador," he said. "For that matter, they have seen few people from the embassy. We just don't get around to see the right people—the working class."

He sees some hope in the Peace Corps, but admits "it won't be an instantaneous thing. The members of the Peace Corps in Honduras are taken as individuals and not as representatives of the powerful American government."

Red Journalists Are Arrested in Berlin

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The West German government has arrested 11 East German journalists, including four who worked in West Berlin.

The Bonn government permits East Germans to live in West Berlin but does not recognize their Communist regime.

Officials said the arrests and raids on East German news and radio offices in major West German cities were made under a law banning the collection and dissemination of information detrimental to the state.

LAST STRAW

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP) — Burglars who took $4,500 in cash and other loot from the country club restaurant added insult to injury. They used the club's power tools to drill open a safe.
